Joe Hill Builds Another Hill Climber

Last Summer when the sun was pelting down with all its might on Indiana, Joe Hill observed that for some reason his roses were doing slightly better in his greenhouse 60 feet wide than in his 80-foot wide greenhouse.
His conclusions then were that his house 80 feet wide, of necessity, had so much iron and steel in it that it held the heat more.

He just naturally mentioned his conclusions and first thing you knew, word was passed along that "after this Joe Hill was going to build all his houses not wider than 40 feet."
But those who knew him best, kind of shrugged their shoulders and said: "Wait and see."

In our several years of most pleasant business relations with Mr. Hill, we have particularly been impressed with the careful way he goes about things.

He has the highly valuable faculty of not going to extremes one way or the other.
This trait was evidenced in his decision as to the width for his new house.
It is neither 40 nor 60 feet wide, but 51 feet 2 inches.
This is the size he has figured out is the best width for his purposes, all things considered.

We take the liberty of giving these facts, believing it may be of assistance in helping some growers to overcome any indecisions they may have on the widths to build.
Any assistance we can give in helping such of you growers to arrive at the width best suited to your crops and growing methods, we shall be only too glad to do.
Don't hesitate to put your problems up to us.

What a prominent western grower thinks of A. B. C. Cyclamen seed:

American Bulb Co. Lincoln, Neb., June 28, 1922
Dear Sirs:

Book my order for 11,000 Fischer's Cyclamen seed as per list herewith. Send all by Aug. 15th to Sept. 1st. Don't fail me. I had this seed last fall and have the strongest and cleanest lot of plants I ever grew. Several thousand in 4-inch are throwing flowers and colors are rich and large and all perfect—not a trace of disease thus far. Yours truly, (Signed) C. H. FREY.

THE FLORISTS' REVIEW

SELLING BIRDS AS A SIDE LINE

Striking success has been made of side lines by some florists, without loss or lack of interest in flower trade. Birds are a notable example. Here are the opinions that come from several florists' experiences. They will be valuable to every retail flower store proprietor.

INCREASING numbers of retailers throughout the country are finding it quite profitable to carry side lines in connection with the sale of flowers. Among them are those who have undertaken to handle birds and, in some cases, cages and accessories. There are many others, judging from inquiries, who are considering installing this particular side line. Without question, it would be highly beneficial for the latter class to hear about the experiences and to learn the opinions of those who have actually sold birds as a side line.

On this subject probably no tradesman is better informed than James A. Wiebens, manager of the retail store of James Vick's Sons, Rochester, N. Y. Concerning the topic Mr. Wiebens says:

"Perhaps the first question that enters the mind of a man who intends to handle birds is where to get his stock. There are two sources of supply—the American breeder and the American importer of German-bred birds, although a great many more birds find their way to the hands of dealers through the hands of importers than through the hands of breeders; at least, that is my impression.

Leading Importers.

"The following are some importers whom I have found to be reliable; all are located in New York city: Louis Ruhe, 351 Bowery; Henry Bartels, 72 Cortlandt street; William Bartels Co., 44 Cortlandt street; Max Geisler Bird Co., 28 Cooper square; J. W. Simmons & Co., 256 West Twenty-third street.

"As to the varieties of birds to handle, we have always confined ourselves to canaries. 'Love birds' and finches have fair sale in some localities. Parrots, in my opinion, are a nuisance. Unless one is going into the pet stock business, I do not think he ought to put in too big a line of birds. Hartz Mountain and St. Andreasburg rollers are the two canaries used most, and my experience has been that one sells about as well as the other, although most people will tell you that the rollers are the best birds and the best sellers. Since there is a well defined public taste for both varieties, it is almost necessary to handle both varieties.

"As to how best to handle the birds—this is a relatively simple matter. They require little care, except to give them fresh food and water once a day and keep them out of a draft. Drafts are nearly always fatal to birds. Birds should never be hung between two open windows or in any other position where there is a direct current of air. One open window in a room is good, because a bird, as well as a man, needs fresh air. During the busy season, we usually stock them on our shelves or counters in stock cages with a cardboard or paper between cages, so that the birds cannot see one another. They seem to sing better when they are handled in this way. Of course, a man who handles birds has to handle cages also, and a good line of cages can be obtained.

"Here is a word of caution: Do not guarantee a bird to be a good singer any more than you would guarantee a good crop of vegetables when you sell a package of seeds—and for the same reason. Handle only the best that can be had. Be sure in your own mind and from your own experience that they are good singers. Then let the customer pick out his own bird and spend any length of time he finds necessary in the store to convince himself that it does sing and take it home on his own responsibility. The bird may be so handled that it will refuse to sing for a time, at least, after it has passed to its new owner. A second and more important reason for not guaranteeing a bird is that birds all look alike, or mostly so. There are people who might buy a good singer from you, take it home and in a short time bring back to you another bird that has never sung and never will, and they will claim that it is the one which they bought from you. This has happened, not once, but frequently, in my experience. It is better to have things clearly understood at the beginning."

Up in St. Catharines, Ont., W. W. Walker, who is well known to the trade as a wholesale and retail florist, has had a considerable amount of experience with birds, and from his experience he has learned some definite facts, especially as to the kinds of birds he has handled with most success. Mr. Walker says that he knows birds are a paying proposition and that they have drawn for him a considerable amount of trade that he would not otherwise have obtained. He says concerning the birds to carry:

Birds to Carry.

"To start with canaries, the Belgian rollers are the best and I always advise against buying the cheapest grade; I have found that the second grade sells the best, with a few extra selected stock for those who care to pay more. Next in order is the English Yorkshire canary, the common, not the color-fed. The color-fed loses its color at the next following molt, as it is only the food that gives the coloring; when this is fed at the time of the birds' feathering it produces the color. The English Yorkshires are fine; large birds and hardy—not susceptible to colds in the throat. Next comes the English

What's Your Experience?

In this article several members of the trade contribute their experiences in selling birds as a side line. Other florists who have had similar experience, whether their conclusions differ from or agree with the statements here made, will add to the trade's sum total of knowledge on this subject by writing the Editor what they have learned. Your contribution will be welcome.

Norwich. The Norwich is a short, heavy bird, a fine looker and usually the largest and heaviest bird, but in my experience a little more tender than the Yorkshire. Next can be mentioned the English Border, a little canary resembling the Belgian roller. For fancy trade might be included the crested Norwich, the Manchester Coppie, a large bird, and the Dutch Frilled canary.

"I have found the canaries mentioned the hardiest and best all-around birds to handle. Female canaries can be carried in the breeding season, February and March, but I should advise against too many.

"Among the birds I have carried I might mention the mules, as they are called. There is the linnet mule, a cross between the linnet and canary. The linnet mule is the best. Next comes the goldfinch mule. I have kept a few parrakeets, or 'love birds.' While they do not sell so well, they are well worth the money on account of the attention they attract. They are hardy little chaps; the green and yellow ones are the best. I have found it a good idea to keep an odd bird or two occasionally, just to uphold the interest in the window.

Time to Stock.

"In regard to the best season to get stock, I should say early November, so the birds can get used to the store by Thanksgiving time and Christmas. It is surprising to see how many persons will send a bird home to mother or wife. I strongly urge the buying of good stock. I have guaranteed all my birds, allowing any bird that did not give satisfaction in a week's time to be returned and the amount allowed on any bird in the shop. And I might say that I did not have returned one bird out of the 200 I handled the first year.

"I have found the William Bartels Co., New York, a well established firm in handling a full line of birds."

Birds have paid and have paid well for many other florists, also. As an instance, there is the Zieger Co., of Pittsburgh, which started out to carry birds and before long found it advisable to issue a list of the birds carried. This includes well over 100 names, from the ordinary canary at a modest price to trained African parrots at $150 each. This firm carries a complete line of bird seeds, bird food and all supplies and gives estimates on building and stocking private aviaries. The stock of birds is said to run from 1,000 to 1,500 birds.

The L. Bemb Floral Co., Detroit, Mich., issued a catalogue of bird houses. These houses were for the purpose of providing habitations for wild birds, but they represent a side line that is closely related to the dealing in birds. A few bird houses or a great many should bring in customers. The list of houses issued by the L. Bemb Floral Co. included many, from a wren log house, at 75 cents, to a bungalow for fourteen families of martins at $15.

Birds as Advertisers.

No one will deny the advertising power of birds and bird cages in the display window. People are always fond of watching "live things" and an odd bird is certain to attract a crowd. An example in point is the Routledge Seed & Floral Co., Portland, Ore., which occasionally features birds or their cages in the window. In one particular instance a group of cages was arranged on shelves and on the floor of the window. A card calling attention to the display said: "Another shipment of bird cages just in. Some of those popular steel cages among them." This display attracted a crowd and much business.

In regard to handling birds, A. Washburn & Sons, Bloomington, Ill., have the following to say: "We handled imported canaries for several years before the war stopped the importation of them, but we felt that they were not a source of profit to us. Some birds were lost in shipping; occasionally one died and, as we guaranteed the birds, we had an occasional one which proved to be a female to replace. Of course, it took considerable time each day to care for the birds and there was some expense for seed. We worked up considerable trade on seed, cuttle bone, manna, etc. We have continued these items and we find them profitable."

Caplan the Florist, of Boston, Mass., states that whether or not birds can be carried in a florists' shop with profit to the owner is a question to be considered. Six months after Mr. Caplan had introduced birds he said, "I have had all kinds of birds in my store and they net me a fairly good profit, although, in spite of all I can do, some birds will die. And a dying bird is useless. There are also the watering and feeding and cleaning, all of which require considerable time and labor. The sales on birds are larger during the winter months than during the summer months.

"Birds and flowers make an attractive window to which many people are drawn and, whether or not it pays to keep a large number of birds in stock, no one can question the advertising value of song birds or the decorative value of artistic bird cages."

ROSE BUSHES FOR RAILROADS.

The American railroads, with their miles of cinder-strewn tracks, stones, grass and scrub bushes, are in a fair way to undergo a marvelous transformation. The New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad Co. is reported to have started something which, if taken up by other roads, will mean the ultimate beautification of railroad track landscapes. The New England road found, after investigation, that climbing roses form one of the best preventives of erosion. Their roots and trailing vines behave in precisely the right way to keep earth and rocks from slipping down over the rails during heavy summer showers. Therefore, it is stated, the company has rambler roses planted along its route from New York through Connecticut. In the rose season, says report, the railroad embankments were a joy to passengers, with their festoons of pink and red blossoms.

Here's a lesson to the practical-minded everywhere, not to scoff at beautiful things for their apparent lack of utility. Almost any day it might be discovered that beauty, particularly in nature, repays all attention given it, by rendering great practical service.

MOTT-LY MUSINGS

A single rose is fair to see; the dollar kind the florist sells, Viewed from an artist's point of view, a tale of care and culture tells
And in its slender silver cup provides a touch of lovely grace,
Tall, straight and perfect and precise, a lamp to light a darkened place,
But there's a lovelier sight to see, the roses in a garden grown,
Old-fashioned blooms of red and white with all the petals fully blown.

The florist might not call them fine, the artist's eye might fail to see
True beauty in so mixed a mass, but still they mean a lot to me.
I've known this rich bouquet for years, with every summer that has been Always upon the table there this glorious cluster I have seen,
And I can call them all by name; this red one shading almost black
Has been a boyhood friend of mine—a jacquemi-not—best known as Jack.

Paul Neyron with his heavy head of pink has seemed to rule the place,
The giant of the garden plot, and scornful of Frau Druschki's grace.
And there's the golden Sunburst, too, a glorious yellow, short of stem,
That table bowl were incomplete, unless it had a few of them.
Old friends since first this heart was young, modest and brave and loyal still,
Lighting our rooms from day to day and never sending in a bill.

I will admit the florist's art and grant the grace his blooms possess,
But those old-fashioned roses seem to hold much more of loveliness,
And I can bend above a bowl some gentle hand has filled with care,
And seem to see once more the smiles of all my long-lost friendships there.
I need no catalogue or guide, in bowl or by the garden wall;
Like old-time friends I know their names, and I'm at home among them all.

"Fine," observed Joseph Traudt, Canajoharie, N. Y. "Our poetic friend, Edgar A. Guest, shows intimate knowledge of the queen of flowers. We have several patrons equally familiar, and attribute this to the increasing popular taste, for which we must give publicity a large share of credit."

Henry Schrade, Jr., of the Henry Schrade establishment, Saratoga Springs, N. Y., had an exciting experience on the evening of July 17. When leaving his garage he was set upon by two men. Though temporarily dazed by the blow he received, he tackled the larger of the two, at the same time giving an alarm which brought Henry Schrade, Sr., to his assistance. Together they subdued the bandit, landing him in the police station. Our valiant confreres are the recipients of much praise for the fight they put up. The second bandit evidently thought discretion the better part of valor, for he vanished during the battle.

BUILT ON NEIGHBORLY SPIRIT

Henry Field, president of the Henry Field Seed Co., Shenandoah, Ia., tells in his inimitable conversational way the story of the growth of his $2,000,000 seed business in the August issue of System Magazine, by courtesy of which the interesting narrative is reprinted here for Review readers. The article, entitled "We Built Our Success on the Neighborly Spirit," sets forth an unusual sales philosophy, by which has been built a remarkable business.

I WANT to remain an amateur. I believe that if I were to become a professional a good deal of the business I have built up would be lost. In fact, I consider this to be my first important business policy.

I will try to make you understand what I mean. I don't want any of my customers or prospects to think that I consider myself in any way above them. I don't want to conduct my business or equip my offices or seed houses in a way that will look the least bit professional. Every bit of furniture in my offices was made by myself or some of my men, right here. We don't have rolltop desks or mahogany chairs or anything of that sort. And one reason why we don't is because it is my policy not to give any encouragement to any of my employees who might have a tendency to become professional.

Consider the matter yourself, as a customer in my particular line. High-brow talk and aloofness and "professionalness" don't appeal to you. You like to buy from a man who you think is on the same level as you are. You want him to talk just the way you talk and tell you just the things you would like to know.

Neighborliness in Type.

A seed business is essentially a mail-order business. And so, much of my dealing with customers has to be by mail. Not so many of them visit me at my seed house. And so I have had to carry this policy into all of my literature.

Hooked right up with policy number 1 is policy number 2: "I talk to my customers as though they were common everyday folks like myself."

A great deal of my "talking" to customers is through a house organ that I publish. This is called "Seed Sense" and contains a great lot of information about my customers, about my family, and about things my customers and I are personally interested in, but which to more professional business men might appear trivial. I don't figure that it is necessary to talk shop constantly in order to induce men to buy seeds. As a matter of fact, I think that is the wrong way. And that is why I have adopted the policy I have just mentioned.

It is very fortunate for carrying out my plan that I have a big family. This gives me something new about the family to say each time I publish an issue of Seed Sense. And do you know, there isn't anything in the world that folks like to read about any more than somebody else's family?

For example, the cover of one of these magazines contains a number of photographs, with rather a lengthy caption under each one. These photographs all show the latest addition to my family, and in most of them the next oldest daughter, Ruth, is shown. Children always make interesting pictures, and I believe that this series of pictures was made a great deal more interesting by the fact that the captions under the pictures were written like a letter from Ruth, and her name was signed to it.

These captions were written about like the little girl would talk. Under the first picture it says, "You can't guess what we've got at our house. A new little sister just 3 weeks old. I ain't the littlest girl any more now, for she's lots littler than I am. They let me hold her sometimes, if I'm real careful. She's lots nicer than a doll."

This same sort of conversation is followed under each picture, including the one where mama is holding the baby and the one where I am holding the baby. The last picture is a picture of Ruth all by herself, and this is what it says under that:

"They just don't pay any attention to me any more. Maybe I'll run off or something to make them feel bad. I knew a boy once and nobody loved him and he went out in the garden and ate worms. He ate two green ones and one woolly one and he like to died.—Ruth."

MAKING CUSTOMERS INTO FAMILY FRIENDS

"I TALK to my customers as though they were common everyday folks like myself. It is very fortunate for carrying out my plan that I have a big family. This gives me something new about the family to say each time I publish an issue of 'Seed Sense.' And do you know, there isn't anything in the world that folks like to read about any more than somebody else's family?"

Courtesy of System Magazine.

I expect that some hard-headed modern business men will think that this sort of thing is all foolishness, but it's just the sort of thing I have been doing for the last fourteen years, and during that time I have built up a business that comprises some 300,000 orders in one year, amounting to around $2,000,000. I can quote letters by the ream which show positively that this policy makes scores of friends for my seed business and brings me hundreds of orders. These letters I usually publish in Seed Sense, so that other prospects may read them and enjoy them as I do. And this, of course, helps along the game.

This leads right into policy number 3: "I make my campaign a family affair, including the customers as part of the family."

Family Affair.

Seed Sense is always full of photographs that have been sent to me by customers. Sometimes the photograph shows nothing but the customer's baby. Sometimes the picture shows the results of planting the seeds that were purchased from me; but it makes no difference what it shows, if it is an interesting picture and if it was sent by a customer or friend, it gets into the little magazine and pleases not only the person that sent the picture, but also all of the other readers. And as long as we all belong to the one big family, we, of course, all enjoy seeing members of the family in print and reading about them.

I never boast in my catalogue about selling seeds to some rich, well known farm owner. I practically never print a picture of any one dressed up in their best Sunday-go-to-meeting clothes. The pictures that I print are those of ordinary common folks in their everyday clothes—snap shots are what I like, not pictures posed by a professional photographer.

Sometimes I mention something about seeds under the pictures from my customers, and sometimes I don't. For example, in one issue of Seed Sense I published a picture of a little girl standing on a chair. And this was all that it said under it: "A little Ford runabout. This is Katherine Ford, just 11 months old, and she is big enough to play with her pups and cats and wears overalls, too.—Mr. and Mrs. Ford, Commerce, Mo."

Maybe I had better hurry on to policy number 4 for fear some of you folks who don't quite understand this method of dealing with customers will think I have no real business policies at all. At any rate, here is policy number 4: "I see that every customer gets a square deal, and I see to it that he knows he is getting a square deal." If you were to visit my seed house in the rush season, you would find at one of the tables a clerk making out bank checks, many of which read for the insignificant sums of 1 cent, 2 cents, 3 cents and other small amounts.

Now, why in the world do you suppose a man having a $2,000,000 business would fool around with such a proposition as that? I know it does look foolish to a great many people, but I would be scared to death to stop it. I wouldn't be giving a square deal to my customers if I didn't return to them every cent they sent to me over the actual cost of what I sent to them.

Sometimes a customer makes a mistake in his figuring and sends a few cents too much. Those few cents, whatever they are, are always sent back in the form of a check.

Perhaps you wonder how I can afford to waste a 2-cent postage stamp and the time it requires to make out a check for 2 cents in order to get 2 cents back to the customer. I can afford it, though, and there is big profit in it because a customer who is treated that way always comes back and brings a lot of his neighbors with him. There is the big idea back of policy number 4.

I don't advertise anywhere near as much as a great many concerns handling a similar amount of business. I don't have to. My "loving friends"—the members of my big family—advertise for me.

Gathering Friends.

Let me give you a striking example. You may call it rather a quaint example, but I like it because it is so human and so much like the results that I am getting every day by following these policies I am outlining. It is a letter from one of my customers in Missouri and was published in one of the issues of Seed Sense.

I published it with the title, "A Man Who Tried to Fool His Wife." It reads as follows, "I have fifteen or twenty seed catalogues carefully laid away for frequent reference, and they are still coming. I am not a market gardener either—just a small farmer who enjoys a good garden when it happens to beat the bugs and the drought to it. With a fairly good knowledge of the above-mentioned catalogues, I was not feeling much in need of any additions to the list, when my attention was called to yours by a neighbor. However, with the weakness I have always manifested in that direction, I ran through it and finally accepted his permission to take it home.

"I had expected to avoid detection in placing it with the growing collection on the table, but my wife saw it and wished to know what it was. 'Just a copy of the school laws,' I said, and got it out of sight at once. But she had seen a picture of berries on the cover and remarked that it was a pity I didn't have enough catalogues without borrowing of the neighbors.

"Then she was mean enough to get it down and read darn near everything in it before I had a chance to get at it again. She even read the page entitled 'Women's Rights in a Garden' out loud to me and made me listen (didn't have to try very hard), though I was reading war news at the time. Then with an inconsistency almost unbelievable she calmly announced that we'd buy our seed of Field this year, and so here's our order.

"Your catalogue hits me in exactly the right spot; it's different in every way; so bright, so hearty, so sympathetic and helpful. Every page is a handshake with a hearty laugh thrown in. Don't forget to put me on your list for Seed Sense and send me a copy of your catalogue.—B. S. Powers."

I suppose that sounds rather trivial and unconventional to some, but don't you see the point? This man was brought to me as a customer by a neighbor who had become interested in my way of dealing with my customers. Publishing his letter gave a lot of other customers the idea of lending their catalogues to their neighbors, and so the circle grows.

Results Approve Policy.

Even with this information, I can feel some of the readers of this article just aching for an argument against this easy-going way of doing business. Well, I don't call it easy-going, although some of my professional friends have used a term almost as strong as that. But here's the one big argument I have to put up to you which will overcome anything you might say against this plan: "I sell my goods to people who like this sort of treatment." There are so many of them in the United States that it keeps me busy getting together goods enough to supply them all. If they like this sort of treatment, you will have to admit that this is the way to treat them in order to get their business.

Let me go a little further in showing

COMING MEETINGS

GARDENERS AT BOSTON.

A meeting of the New England branch of the National Association of Gardeners and the convention committees will be held at Horticultural hall, Boston, Friday evening, July 28, at 7:30 p. m., daylight saving time, to complete the plans for the coming convention of the association, which is to take place in that city September 12 to 15.

The first two days of the convention will be devoted to business meetings. The annual banquet, which will be a unique affair, will be held on the second evening of the convention.

On the third day, the famous north shore will be visited, the attendants at the convention leaving Horticultural hall early in the morning in automobiles. The finest gardens in Beverly Farms, Manchester, West Manchester and Prides Crossing will be inspected. The party will then proceed to Ipswich, to become the guests of Mr. and Mrs. R. T. Crane on their extensive estate at Castle Hill Farm, where a real New England clambake will be served. Later the beautiful gardens of this 2,500-acre estate, of which Robert Cameron, the president of the association, is superintendent, and its 5-mile coast line and rolling dunes of white sand, will be inspected. A stop will be made at the Cedar Acres gladiolus and dahlia farm of B. Hammond Tracy on the return to Boston, and other places of historic interest will be passed en route.

On the last day of the convention, the noted Arnold Arboretum, with its matchless collection of trees and shrubs, and part of the Boston parkways will be visited. Later the visitors will be taken to Cambridge, where, under the shadow of Harvard College, the world-famed collection of glass flowers in the Agassiz museum will be seen. Leaving Cambridge, historic Lexington and Concord will be visited, and later the famous Walter and Henry S. Hunnewell estates in Wellesley, with their wonderful specimen trees and shrubs.

W. N. Craig is general chairman of the convention committee. Other committees are as follows:

Banquet and entertainment—Andrew Rogers, chairman; James Methven, William Downs, Stewart A. Forbes, Henry Stewart, A. P. Dewar, L. B. Whyte, Gordon P. Stewart, John G. Duguid, William Till, Percival C. Veinot, James Donald.

Program—Patrick W. Burke, chairman; W. D. Nickerson, John Morris, W. D. Coutts, Thomas H. Westwood, Peter Arnott, Donald McKenzie.

Ladies' reception—Mrs. B. Hammond Tracy, chairman; Mrs. W. N. Craig, Mrs. William Anderson, Mrs. George Stewart, Mrs. Duncan Finlayson, Mrs. Andrew Rogers.

Finance—William Kennedy, chairman; Frank Murray, Peter Miller, William Anderson, George F. Stewart, Eric Wetterlow, Herbert W. Clarke, William R. Thornhill, John L. Russell.

Transportation—Walter H. Golby, chairman; Julius Heurlin, Duncan Finlayson, Alfred E. Parsons, William C. Rust, James Marlborough, B. Hammond Tracy, James Wheeler.

Publicity—William N. Craig, chairman; Gustave Thommen, E. I. Farrington.

Members going to Boston by way of New York will leave Monday evening, September 11, at 5 p. m., over the outside route of the steamers to Boston.

DAHLIA GROWERS TO MEET.

J. K. Alexander, of East Bridgewater, Mass., president of the Wholesale Dahlia Growers' Association, has announced that the annual meeting will be held at the Hotel Pennsylvania, New York city, Monday, August 14, from 9:30 to 12:00 a. m. and from 2 to 6 p. m. The meeting will be held on the mezzanine floor, and the room number will be posted in the lobby of the hotel, as well as on the mezzanine floor. It is hoped that the members will have luncheon in a group, as the meeting will then be much more interesting.

The meeting will be of great importance to dahlia specialists and all interested in the dahlia commercially. Among other things to be discussed will be the position the society wishes to take relative to quarantine 37. Legislation on a protective tariff, should the quarantine be revoked, will be discussed.

Means of fighting the European corn borer will be discussed and legislation on the corn borer taken up.

Minimum wholesale and retail prices will be talked over and plans or means of marketing any surplus stock will be debated.

United efforts will be talked over and plans made, so that buyers who fail to pay their bills for dahlias will be known to all members of the association, as a means of protecting them against loss.

J. K. Alexander will advocate a systematic discarding of inferior varieties of dahlias, as a means of cleaning worthless varieties off the market and replacing them with more up-to-date varieties. Many varieties now commonly grown are inferior to newer ones of the same colors, which are little grown, but far superior, being more abundant in flowering and better in shape and size.

RUDIMENTS OF ROSE GROWING

By C. H. TOTTY.

In this article are answered the questions which confront new members of the trade who undertake rose growing. Because of its brevity, it covers only the high spots, and because it is written for those who know little about commercial rose growing, the experienced grower may pass it by, unless he wishes to compare his methods with those advised by this well known authority.

PRINCIPAL PROBLEMS.

Proper Soil.

It has always been considered that any soil that will grow good corn is ideal for roses. An ideal soil for roses is one composed of clay loam tending rather to heaviness than lightness. Whether it is a clay loam, sandy loam or black prairie loam of the middle west, roses seem to do equally well. It is true that loam with a percentage of clay in it produces growth more quickly than the heavier soil, but the heavier soil, once the plants are well established, will bring larger blooms of better texture. I have seen excellent rose soil produced by adding fifty per cent heavy clay to light, sandy loam. If the soil is of such character that the plants will make strong roots in it and plenty of them, it is comparatively easy to have good results at all times.

Benches or Beds?

The question always arises, which is better, raised benches or concrete beds on the ground, some two or three feet high and filled in at the bottom with ashes or gravel? In my section, New Jersey, where a large percentage of the roses sold in New York markets are produced, we pin our faith to raised benches, some two to two and a half feet high above the ground, carrying four or five inches of soil. The idea is that at all times the roots, being in shallow benches, are more easily controlled, and the heat underneath the benches keeps the plants in a more active condition. If the roses are going to remain in the houses two or three years, the solid beds will be found more advantageous. I have seen plants crop continuously in solid beds three years in succession and at the end of that time they were still in wonderful shape, although six to eight feet high. A solid bed, if the drainage is good, would perhaps fill the bill in some districts more satisfactorily than a raised bench. The raised benches of concrete seem to be the last word in rose growing and many of our growers are putting in these benches, since the life of a concrete bench properly made and reinforced is almost indefinite, where a wooden bench, no matter how good it may be made, soon shows signs of decay.

Time and Method of Planting.

As to what is the best time for planting, we consider that plants set out, at the latest, July 15, in order that they may be established in good, healthy condition and produce a good crop by Thanksgiving, is about the most suitable time for planting. It may be that one florist, owing to some purely local condition, may have a better market the week or two of school commencement or at some other particular occasion, but in the main the profitable rose market is from Thanksgiving until April.

The distance apart to plant has occasioned some discussion among rose growers. Not so long ago some of the best growers set their rose plants eighteen inches to two feet apart in the rose benches, figuring that high-grade flowers could only be produced in this manner. The efficiency expert said roses set out in the benches twelve inches apart would take as many plants again, and the space not occupied by rose plants when they were set out farther apart was so much waste for the first year until the plants got big enough to fill in this space. In the case of Premier, whose foliage is small, where the plants are set far apart in the benches, the space is wasted; in addition to wasting the space, one wastes the fertilizer, labor and water that are applied to this bench, and this difference may tell the tale of profit and loss in a crop of roses. Another thing, the labor is the same whether you are growing 200 or 300 plants on a bench and it costs no more to look after the larger number than the smaller, and naturally it is logical to assume the return per square foot would be greater from the larger number of plants.

Grafted or Own-Root?

Another question arises: Which is the better to set out, grafted or own-root stock? Every good grower will tell you grafted is better. Grafted roses have a stronger rooting system and consequently will assimilate more food and water, thereby producing more flowers on longer stems. It is true, some few roses of the yellow varieties are not amenable to grafting on Manetti stock. Sunburst is found to do better on its own root, though doubtless the growers will experiment until they find a stock that will have the same affinity for Sunburst as Manetti has for the other varieties. Given two benches set out with plants from 3-inch pots at the same time, own-root and grafted, the grower will cut one and possibly two crops from the grafted stock before the own-root stock has produced stems long enough to enable one to cut a first-class crop of flowers. It is a great mistake to begin to cut plants as soon as they start producing flowers. The first thought should be to produce chiefly a healthy plant and one that can be handled to good advantage later. The first crop of buds is of little or no value and they should be pinched off. The idea in growing the plants the first few months is to encourage as many leaves as possible, so the plant may make a good, healthy root growth, maintaining the balance between the root and the top. A crop can be cut in from eight to ten weeks after the plants are benched, depending considerably on the condition of the plants when they were set out, but in no case must the wood be sacrificed in the earlier stages.

When the plants have attained sufficient size to cut flowers, one should leave two good eyes, from which the future shoots will come.

Staking and Watering.

In staking, some growers place an iron stake alongside each plant and tie the growth to it. In our own case, we run a wire over the top of the plants, tying the taller shoots to the wire and letting the others remain free. This will give a more open growth, as the plants can get plenty of air circulating between them and it keeps them in better condition at all times.

Watering is quite important in the sense that if the stock is watered at all it must be thoroughly. This is particularly important in a case where the benches are raised, as the plants are liable to dry out before you know it. When the plants are in a good, healthy growing condition, they will take quantities of water every few days. Syringing is a separate process from watering. Before syringing, be sure you look over the bench and see there are no dry spots at all. Scald will frequently occur when the plants have been heavily syringed and there is a bright sun, if the plants are dry at the roots. Syringing is necessary—yes, even vital, in the successful cultivation of roses. Most growers work out their own model for a sprayer, but any good sprayer that will get underneath the foliage, washing it clean and quickly, will do. One should be careful in spraying to see that the ends and sides of the bench are not neglected, as it is in such spots that red spider almost invariably gains a footing. As to how often one should syringe, every good, bright day is none too often, since the number of days in which one can do so in winter is limited.

Feeding.

Feeding is a rock on which some enthusiastic growers fall down. We shall assume the plants were set out in soil that was mixed with cow manure and perhaps there was a little bone meal mixed through it. In such a case the original soil should carry the plants along until September. Most growers today use tankage or some other artificial fertilizer to help along the growth of their plants. There are many kinds on the market, most of them fine for the purpose. It is far better to use these fertilizers in small lots and often than to apply a heavy mulch of fresh cow manure and take a chance on its injuring the leaves of the plants. I have seen a prosperous-looking house of roses absolutely ruined by a heavy dose of cow manure, applied at a season when the house had to be closed for weeks and the plants were in no shape to take the heavy feeding. Where cow manure is used during the winter months, it should be used with caution and incorporated with dry loam to absorb the ammonia. Some growers have a system arranged whereby the liquid manure, which is the ideal method of feeding plants, is pumped through the water pipes and applied to the plants in this manner. Pipes should be installed to operate this liquid manure separate from the water pipes, as otherwise it will contaminate the water, causing typhoid amoug the men, and this is worse than not being able to apply the liquid manure to the plants at all.

Temperature.

As to the proper temperature at which to grow roses, a good average temperature is 58 to 60 degrees at night and 75 to 80 degrees in the day, ventilating as much as possible at all seasons of the year. Always give the plants plenty of air, so that mildew will not make a start. In a closed house, mildew will commence and spread to all the plants quickly. Some roses need a higher temperature; for instance, Mrs. Ward, in order to get a long stem on flowers, needs a temperature of 62 to 64 degrees, but the temperature given above is, in the main, a fair, average temperature for all varieties grown today.

These notes cover the high spots of rose growing. Readers who find some points sketchy may write The Review for detailed information on particular points. Rose growers who are not members should join the American Rose Society, so they can get the advantage of the annuals and the fellowship of the association of kindred minds.

MONTREAL MEETING

CANADIAN FLORISTS' PROGRAM.

Twenty-fifth Annual Convention.

The Canadian Florists' and Gardeners' Association will celebrate the completion of a quarter century of work in behalf of the Dominion trade when it meets at Montreal, August 8 to 11. Headquarters will be at the Windsor hotel. A most interesting program has been prepared covering the three days. The local committee has been hard at work on arrangements for several months and a record gathering of Canadian florists is anticipated. The local committee consists of E. J. Hayward, president; Herbert J. Eddy, secretary; R. Scott, treasurer; James McKenna, F. J. McKenna, A. C. Wilshire, H. McKinley, Thomas Hill, Ed. Gernaey, R. Burrows, J. Bennett, W. C. Hall, G. W. Pascoe, D. McDonald.

While a fair share of the time has been set aside for the transaction of the association's business and the hearing of addresses and discussions of them, a considerable proportion of the time has been allotted to sight-seeing and visiting local places of trade interest.

Opening Session.

The program of the opening session Tuesday morning, August 8, at 10 a. m., will be as follows:

Official opening by E. J. Hayward, president of local committee.
Invocation, by Rev. F. Williams.
Address of welcome, by Mayor Mederic Martin.
Reply, by Alexander Simpson, Toronto, Ont.
Introduction of all past presidents, W. W. Gammage, 1898-1899; James McKenna, 1900; J. H. Dunlop, 1901; Joseph Bennett, 1902; T. Manton, 1903; E. J. Mepsted, 1904; G. W. Robinson, 1905; W. G. Fendley, 1906; W. J. Lawrence, 1907; John Walsh, 1908; Ed. Dale, 1909; H. Philpott, 1910; John Connon, 1911; A. C. Wilshire, 1912; W. Muston, 1913; H. B. Cowan, 1914-1915; F. W. Adam, 1916; James Fraser, 1917; E. H. Hayward, 1918; G. Douglas, 1919; E. B. Hamilton, 1920; W. E. Groves, 1921-1922.
President's address, by W. E. Groves, Hamilton, Ont.
Discussion of president's address, opened by W. Foord, Toronto, Ont.
Secretary-treasurer's report, by Herbert J. Eddy.
Report of educational committee, by H. J. Moore, Toronto, Ont.
Report of registration committee, by H. J. Moore, Toronto, Ont.
Report of legislative committee, by E. B. Hamilton, London, Ont.
Report of press and publicity committee, by E. J. Hayward, Montreal, Que.
Report of tariff committee, by Major John Connon, Hamilton, Ont.
Report of membership committee, by Harry E. Groves, Hamilton, Ont.
Address: "Cyclamen Culture," by Herman Bartsch, president and manager of the W. W. Edgar Co., Waverley, Mass.

In the afternoon, at 2:30, the following program is scheduled:

Greeting from Society of American Florists, by Charles H. Totty, Madison, N. J.
Address: "Rock Gardening," by F. Gilbert, London, Ont.
Address: "What Science Can Do for the Florist," by Prof. J. W. Crow, Guelph, Ont.
Appointment of judges of trade exhibits.
Questions and announcements.

In the evening a reception to President W. E. Groves will be given by the Montreal Gardeners' and Florists' Club.

Second Day.

The morning session Wednesday, August 9, will be of especial interest to the retail florists. There will be a demonstration of designs, bouquets, baskets and corsages, with a discussion of the proper ways of making them. This will be followed by an open discussion as to the means of increasing sales and decreasing expenses, the cost of doing business, grading and packing, high prices on special flower days, and cooperation. At this session will be held the annual meeting of the retailers' subsection of the association, including the election of officers.

Wednesday noon there will be a drive to the mountain top, where lunch will be served. In the afternoon, members of the association will be guests of the Montreal harbor commission on a trip around the harbor. In the evening, the association will hold its banquet, at the Windsor hotel.

Thursday's Schedule.

Thursday, August 10, will be devoted to what is termed the anniversary drive. This will include a motor trip around the island, stopping at many places of interest. The first stop will be at Lachine, where the travelers will be guests of Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Smith. They will be provided with lunch as the guests of McDonald College. Afterwards the summer residences of R. B. Angus and F. Clerlant Morgan, at Senneville, will be visited and then those of A. E. Ogilvy and Lord Atholstan, at Cartierville, and others.

Return will be made by way of the McKenna greenhouses, on Cote de Neiges road, where the visitors will be the guests of the firm of McKenna, Ltd.

Thursday evening, at 8 p. m., will be a business session, opened by an address by A. Walker, of McDonald College. This will be followed by an open discussion on "What Can the C. F. G. A. Do for the Private Gardener?" The election of officers and the completion of unfinished business, as well as the customary closing routine, will occupy the remainder of the evening.

Closing Day.

Friday, morning, August 11, there will be a trip to Rougemont, where the Rouville Greenhouses will be visited. The ladies will be the guests of Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Wilshire, at their residence, Back River, for lunch, returning to Montreal as the guests of Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Hall for tea. The convention will close with a good-bye evening at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Hall, Montreal West.

Further information regarding convention arrangements may be had by addressing the secretary, Herbert J. Eddy, 4425 Sherbrooke street, Montreal, Que.

JERUSALEM CHERRIES.

Kindly give me cultural directions for the growing of Jerusalem cherries. I have my stock planted in the field from 2¼-inch pots. Should the plants be pinched back? At about what date should they bloom in order to be in good season for the holidays? L. S.—N. Y.

If your plants are bushy in habit, there should be no need to do any pinching. The plants should be starting flowers now. Some of mine are already fruiting freely. Do not worry, however, if your plants are not yet in flower, as there is ample time ahead of them before the holidays. C. W.

CLEVELAND CHERRIES SLOW.

We are having our first experience with Cleveland cherries in the field. The plants are making good growth, but they are not branching so freely as we think they should to make good, stocky plants. At this time or a little later can we safely top them and get a good crop of fruit before potting time?
J. N. S. & S.—O.

I have never found it necessary to pinch any of my Jerusalem cherries; the plants always grow bushy naturally. If yours are running up without branching at all, pinch out the tops of the largest stems at once. Berries are already of good size on many of my plants of Cleveland. It is better to plant in soil not exceptionally rich, as the plants make a more sturdy growth in the soil that is not so rich and fruit more freely.

East Orange, N. J.—Alpheus J. Norman, Jr., recently opened a retail store at 76 Main street, using the name Sunshine Flower Shop, because of the well known quotation, "Flowers are the sunshine of life."

Terre Haute, Ind.—Clarence Wagner, who is associated with his father in the greenhouse trade here, is a crack bicycle endurance rider in the summer time. Recently he established a new coast-to-coast record, riding from New York to Santa Monica, Cal. He rode 3,326 miles in twenty-eight days, five hours and fifty-nine minutes, cutting seven days off the former record.

MORE LILIES FOR FLORISTS

CULTURE OF HARDY LILIES.

By W. N. CRAIG.

Wide Variety.

Of the numerous hardy garden plants, none surpass, or even equal, the lilies in stateliness and beauty. There are probably at least 100 well defined species, but quadruple that number have been introduced and described. Many of these have disappeared, or nearly so, and, outside of special collections, it is exceptional to find more than half a dozen varieties in even good gardens. New England has some fine American varieties and California has some lovely sorts, although the latter are difficult subjects to grow in the less balmy states. Europe has given us a few useful sorts, but it is from China and Japan that the greatest number of good garden lilies have been received. Some of the oriental varieties are: Auratum, speciosum, japonicum, longiflorum, Sargentiæ, regale, Brownii, tigrinum, sutchuenense, Henryi, Hansonii, tenuifolium, concolor, Wallacei, Batemanniæ, rubellum and Leichtlinii. Several new varieties have come from western China in late years and, undoubtedly, a good number of undiscovered varieties are growing in western China, Tibet and southern Siberia.

From the Himalaya mountains comes the most noble of all lilies, L. giganteum—not the giganteum of florists, which is merely a form of longiflorum, but a stately variety growing ten to fourteen feet in height. From warmer parts of India come neilgherrense and nepalense. From Europe we get the immaculate L. candidum, considered to be the lily of the bible; this variety also grows in Asia. Other European varieties are Martagon, monadelphum, chalcedonicum, pomponium, pyrenaicum, bulbiferum and croceum. One or two of these are also fond in Asia.

Among our northern American lilies are superbum, canadense and philadelphicum, while in the warmer states, particularly California, grow such varieties as parvum, Grayi, Kelloggii, Humboldtii, Roezlii, pardalinum, Parryi, carolinianum and washingtonianum.

Habits and Soil.

Some varieties of lilies are benefited by the use of lime; among these are candidum, chalcedonicum, elegans, Hansonii, tigrinum and monadelphum. Practically all other varieties are injured, many seriously, by its use. With the exception of canadense and superbum, which, in a wild state, are often found luxuriant in a damp soil, practically all other varieties want "dry feet" in winter and require good drainage. Certain varieties, like regale, candidum, Sargentiæ, elegans, tigrinum and Martagon, while they will grow and flower in the shade, succeed better in the full sunshine. On the other hand, auratum, Hansonii, Henryi and japonicum are seen at their best in partial shade, although they can be grown in an open field.

A great many lilies produce stems and roots above the bulbs. Prominent varieties in this class are speciosum, Wallacei, Sargentiæ, regale, tigrinum, longiflorum, Leichtlinii, elegans, Henryi, dauricum, auratum, concolor, Brownii, bulbiferum, croceum, rubellum and Batemanniæ. On the other hand, canadense, Martagon, tenuifolium, testaceum, a lovely hybrid lily; giganteum, candidum and chalcedonicum make few stem roots. A knowledge of which varieties emit numerous stem roots and produce new bulbs above the old ones is helpful at planting time.

The time to plant lilies varies considerably. Usually the bulbs are well matured, fit to be dug, about a month after they flower. Bulbs may then be safely lifted and replanted with as little delay as possible. There is no advantage in lifting the bulbs and storing them for several months, with an idea of resting them. Scaly bulbs, like lilies, want to be out of the soil for as brief a space of time as possible. It is true, we are dependent on foreign sources of supplies for the bulk of our garden, and practically all forcing, lilies, but experience with these bulbs has clearly proved that smaller but plumper home-grown bulbs of longiflorum, giganteum, candidum, speciosum and Henryi have proved distinctly superior to the larger but more flaccid imported bulbs.

How to Propagate.

Liliums are propagated in several ways; namely, by offsets, bulbils or bulblets, scales and seeds. The bulbils are produced quite abundantly on the stems of such sorts as speciosum, Henryi and tigrinum, usually coming of a dark green or purplish color, and can be taken off to the best advantage about a month after the flowers have faded. Scales broken off accidentally or purposely can be depended upon to produce little bulbs in time, if planted in flats or frames in sandy loam and covered about an inch deep.

Unless the quantity used is large, flats are preferable for both small bulbils and scales. If, however, the stock is large, a frame or frames should be used. Do not put manure in the soil unless the manure is old and well pulverized. Leaf-mold is good, and a good deal of sharp sand should also be used. Both bulbils and scales should be set as close as two inches apart in the rows. The second year many of these should flower, and the greater part the year following. Offsets are of a larger size than bulbils and many of them should flower the year after planting.

The way to increase lilies in the greatest abundance is from seed. Some varieties, like regale and Henryi, will produce seed pods in abundance. On the other hand, such sorts as candiduna, Brownii, speciosum, testaceum, longiflorum, Hansonii, elegans and tigrinum will be sterile unless pollenized by hand. Some lilies germinate much more quickly than others. Occasionally auratum and speciosum will lie dormant for a whole year and then come up abundantly. Other sorts, like regale, Willmottiæ, longiflorum and Sargentiæ, will germinate within two weeks after planting in a warm greenhouse.

When to Start Seeds.

"When is the best time to sow seeds of lilies?" is often asked. Some growers claim that success cannot be attained unless the seeds are sown as soon as possible after harvesting, but I have had the best success by sowing the seeds in December, January and February in flats in a night temperature of 58 to 60 degrees. The soil used should be light. I use leaf-mold or cocoanut fiber, to which plenty of sharp sand has been added, making a nice, smooth surface upon which to sow the seeds. After sowing, water the seeds, using a fine rose on a watering can, and then dust a light covering of sand over them. Lily seeds are exceedingly light and, if sand is dusted over them when they are dry, they will jump and you will have difficulty in covering them. When the seeds are dampened first, however, you will experience no trouble in covering them.

Lily seed germinates quickly in some cases. Some flats of regale look quite green in a week or ten days. The idea that it takes two or three years to flower lilies from seed is utterly wrong. The writer has flowered regale nine months after sowing and, when the seed is sown even as late as March, if pricked off into flats and later transplanted to a frame, a great proportion of the plants will flower the summer of the following year, or fifteen to sixteen months from the time of sowing the seed.

It is not good policy to allow the buds to remain on the seedlings the first or second seasons. It is nice to see a frame or bed filled with lilies carrying one or more flowers, but if you want bulbs to develop, pinch out the buds, merely leaving a few to give you an idea how good your stock is. After the seedlings are transplanted into frames, a little shade may be given them for a few days. Full sun thereafter suits them best. Where water can be given, it will prove a decided advantage until flowering time. It is best to screw a brass rose on the hose when watering, as the chance of injuring the small seedlings is then much reduced.

Preparing the Soil.

When coldframes are not at your disposal, beds in the open will answer the purpose. In the colder states, frames are preferable. Never use any fresh manure in the soil. A soil composed of peat is not necessary. Nearly all lilies thrive well in loam, but charcoal and sand, added to the soil, will help to keep it sweet and wholesome. When the bulbs have reached the flowering size, they can be planted in the field, if preferred. Better success, however, is likely to be secured where they can be kept under close supervision.

Such lilies as auratum, speciosum, regale, Henryi, tigrinum and superbum should be planted nine to twelve inches deep, after they have developed into good flowering bulbs. Candidum wants shallow planting; four inches is ample. Most other lilies do better if planted eight to ten inches deep, particularly where they produce roots on the stems above the bulbs. At planting time it is well to put some sharp sand above and below the bulbs. In the case of candidum, which must be planted in August or September, bulbs do better if laid partly on their sides. If they are well dusted with sulphur at planting time, they will be free from disease.

In cases where varieties like auratum and speciosum arrive late, it is best to mulch the ground with straw or leaves, to exclude frost. Remove this and plant them as soon as received, which will probably be in late November or December. It does not pay to keep lily bulbs out of the soil any longer than is absolutely necessary. It is well to use a mulch of old manure during the winter and a similar mulch retained until the bulbs flower helps to keep the roots cool and moist.

Be sure to plant the bulbs deep rather than shallow. In a state of nature, lily bulbs are often found eighteen inches or more below the surface, and when, as not infrequently happens, they are covered little more than hyacinths or tulips, nothing but failure and disappointment can result.

Price Quotations.

Only a few lilies appear on the wholesale markets. These are mainly forms of longiflorum and speciosum, with smaller lots of candidum. The last two years regale has appeared in fair numbers. Prices vary considerably, according to the season. Longiflorums will bring as low as $6 to $8 per hundred at times and at Easter $20 to $25. Candidum has a shorter season; forced flowers realize $6 to $12 in June. Forced speciosums, both album and colored forms, like Melpomene, rubrum and magnificum, sell at from $4 to $10; occasionally, in times of scarcity, they may bring a little more. Other lilies appear on the markets too seldom to be quotable.

There would seem to be a big field in America for the growing not only of the few varieties common to the florists' wholesale trade, but of the much larger number interesting to the increasing army of garden lovers. Returns from the sale of bulbs would naturally be much greater than those from cut flowers. It would be well to start with one or two well known and popular hardy varieties, and if these did well, to try one or two more. The supply of flowering bulbs, it can be safely said, is far below the demand, if we except the one or two kinds commonly imported, and I am firmly of the opinion that, given proper soil and attention, just as fine speciosums, auratums and candidums can be grown here as in Japan or France, while the time is not far distant when the more tender longiflorum will be produced here in sufficient quantities to make importations from Japan unnecessary.

LEHENBAUER GOES TO NEVADA.

Philip A. Lehenbauer, plant pathologist at the University of Illinois, has resigned and accepted a position as head of the department of horticulture at the University of Nevada. Dr. Lehenbauer has become well known to members of the greenhouse trade, particularly in the central states, because of his valuable investigations of greenhouse soils and other problems of the florist. He has contributed a number of articles to The Review and has addressed growers' organizations frequently in the last few years. Only last week he spoke to the St. Louis district organization of the National Flower Growers' Association, at Rock Island, Ill., on greenhouse soils, his paper appearing in full in The Review for July 20.

Dr. Lehenbauer, though a young man, so rapidly won a place for himself in the esteem of the trade because he combined a grasp of theoretical scientific knowledge with a clear understanding of the practical problems of commercial work. He first won particular note in the trade when he presented a paper on soil conditions at the meeting of the American Carnation Society in Chicago, in 1920, a paper which W. N. Rudd declared at the time to have been the clearest and most helpful paper he had heard presented at a florists' gathering by a scientific man. The department of horticulture at the University of Illinois and the florists of the state, with whom he has come in close contact, will miss Dr. Lehenbauer on his departure for Nevada, but they find consolation in the fact that they will, in all probability, be able to enjoy the results of Dr. Lehenbauer's investigations made there as well as those in Illinois.

Field of Lilium Regale, or Myriophyllum, Grown for Bulbs, in Massachusetts.

FLYOSAN IN GREENHOUSES.

No doubt most florists have seen advertised in newspapers a preparation called Flyosan, sold primarily for the destruction of house flies and other insects in dwellings. Several members of the trade have spoken of the preparation as valuable in the greenhouse also. Among them, R. F. Heberling, grower at the Lake View Greenhouse & Celery Gardens, of which O. M. Vail is proprietor, at Canton, O., gives detailed information regarding his experience with Flyosan. He says:

"Flyosan is the most powerful contact insecticide I have ever used. It came to me through an agent's recommending it to kill house flies. I tried Flyosan on Easter Greeting pelargoniums to exterminate white fly and had wonderful success, killing white fly instantly without bad effect on the plants.

"I have also used it on cyclamens and cinerarias for thrips, with splendid results. When I sprayed rather heavily on the cinerarias, however, I found that these wilted. For white fly on primulas I used Flyosan with great success without injury to the plants. An old plant of Asparagus plumosus was entirely rid of scale by means of Flyosan, without damage to the plant itself.

"I use Flyosan with a hand spray just as it comes to me in the cans. I should advise anyone using it to spray lightly and cautiously, vaporizing the liquid as much as possible, as it requires only a little to get the desired results. Spraying heavily with Flyosan, I believe, would injure plants. I have been using Flyosan for nearly a year."

WAUGH IN FOREST SERVICE.

Dr. Frank A. Waugh, professor of landscape engineering at the Massachusetts Agricultural College, Amherst, Mass., has been appointed recreation engineer in the forest service, United States Department of Agriculture. Dr. Waugh, who is well known to the trade as an author and as one of the leading landscape architects of this country, will spend the summer formulating plans for the development of public camp grounds and summer home sites in the national forests of Colorado, Wyoming, Utah, Idaho and other western states. This study is a part of the established plan of the forest service toward providing adequate camp and sanitation facilities for the 5,500,000 persons who yearly seek rest, health and enjoyment in our national forests.

AMERICAN ROSE SOCIETY.

Registration.

The following rose has been offered for registration by the Cottage Gardens Co., Queens, N. Y., and passed upon by the registration committee of the American Rose Society:

Eureka: Class, hybrid tea; parentage, unnamed seedling x Ophelia; habit, erect growth, throwing long, straight stems; character of foliage, somewhat similar to Ophelia; freedom of growth and hardiness, free and hardy; color, bright rose pink; form, long-pointed bud, outside petals recurved; fragrance and bud, slightly fragrant; petalage, medium full; freedom of bloom and lasting quality, remarkably free bloomer. The rose is similar to Chatenay except darker in color and superior for the following reason: Much stronger grower than Chatenay.

If no objection to such registration is filed with the secretary of the society within three weeks after this publication, the registration will become permanent. John C. Wister, Sec'y.

Beaumont, Tex.—Mrs. J. D. Koch, who is entering the trade in a small way, will begin by erecting a lath house. Mrs. Koch has a plot of ground, 145x150 feet, a part of which will be used as a site for the building.

Lake Placid, N. Y.—Mrs. Bernard Farley has sent out announcements to the effect that she has gone into the florists' business at her home on Grand View Hill. Mrs. Farley expects soon to be able to build a greenhouse.

K. C. AT THE BAT

PREPARE AT KANSAS CITY.

Committee Chairmen Meet.

Chairmen of committees on S. A. F. convention arrangements met at luncheon at the Midday Club, Kansas City, Mo., Wednesday, July 19.

At this meeting were William L. Rock, general chairman, and the following chairmen of subcommittees: Hugo R. Neff, Mrs. T. A. Moseley, L. R. Bohannon, W. J. Barnes, T. J. Noll, William Wade, Alpha Elberfield, M. E. Carter, H. Kusik, John Klaus, Arthur Newell and Samuel Murray. Benjamin Brown, Mrs. Williams and other correspondents were present, together with W. M. Symon, publicity director of the Kansas City Chamber of Commerce, who is handling the general features of the convention publicity.

A letter was read from the Kansas State Florists' Association, telling of the wonderful work being done by that organization. It is expected that between 200 and 300 from Kansas will attend the convention.

Reports from all committees were made to Chairman William L. Rock. Mr. Rock said that he and Samuel Murray had visited the newspapers of the city and were promised generous publicity for the convention. The papers will gladly use all news relating to the meeting. They have already printed a number of stories concerning it. A unique feature will be a radio concert and invitation to be broadcasted by the Kansas City Star the evening of August 7. The Star office is equipped with one of the most complete and powerful broadcasting stations in the world. It is capable of reaching any point in the United States and Canada. A musical program by local florists, a talk by William L. Rock and a short talk on "How to Beautify Home Grounds," by Prof. H. C. Irish, of St. Louis, will be some of the numbers. Mr. Rock will extend an invitation to florists all over the country to attend the convention. The novelty of this new form of communication will appeal to all who have an opportunity of listening, it is believed. All florists who have radio connections are requested to tune in for this concert.

The complete program to be broadcasted through the Kansas City Star radio station, W. D. A. F., Monday evening, August 7, from 8 to 9:30 o'clock, central time, is as follows:

Selection by the Kansas City Florists' Club orchestra.
Short invitation to the S. A. F. convention, by William L. Rock.
Vocal trio, by Sam Worley, Harry Kessell and Bert Beuder.
Saxaphone duet, by Arthur Mohr and Ray McDonald.
Vocal solo, by Mrs. Katherine Moseley Beaman.
Short address on "City Beautification; Its Educational Advantages."
Violin solo, by John McClure.
Selection, "Say It with Flowers," by Florists' Club orchestra.
Saxaphone solo, by Arthur Mohr.
Medley, by Florists' Club orchestra.
Piano solo, by Eddie Werner.
Tenor solo, by Robert Bohannon.
Selection, by Florists' Club orchestra.

It was announced at the committee meeting that the Coöperative Club would gladly help out by offering cars for the S. A. F. convention.

John Klaus, chairman of the sports committee, announced that he had collected $300 in cash and prizes for the bowling contests. The first prize will be a silver loving cup, given by the Kansas City Florists' Club. Other prizes will be given to clubs and individuals.

Golf players will be given a sunrise breakfast at the Meadow Lake Country Club one morning of the convention.

Entertainment for Women.

A change has been made in the entertainment of the women visitors to the convention. It was first planned to have a luncheon and musicale the opening day of the meeting. As it was feared that some of the visitors might not arrive in time for this and that it might interfere with attendance at the business meetings, it was deemed advisable to postpone the luncheon until Thursday, August 17. The luncheon will be followed by a musicale and later by a drive over the boulevards of the city. Mrs. T. A. Moseley, 724 Minnesota avenue, Kansas City, Kan., requests all women who intend to be present at the convention to send her their names as soon as possible. Mrs. Moseley is chairman of the women's entertainment committee. She desires to make reservations in advance for the luncheon and, in order to do this, must know how many will attend. All of the women visitors are cordially invited. J. E. K.

KANSAS CITY CONVENTION.

Railroad Travel.

The official program for the Kansas City convention is off the press and copies have been mailed to every member of the S. A. F. With each copy was enclosed a railroad identification certificate, which, when properly filled out, entitles a member and members of his family to a return ticket at the rate of one and one-half regular fare. This certificate is absolutely necessary to get the reduced rate. Any member not receiving a certificate should make immediate request of the secretary for one.

It should be borne in mind that the railroad certificate is good only for a member of the society in good standing and his family. Anyone not a member of the society and wishing to travel to Kansas City at the reduced rate, should take out a membership, the cost of which is $5. Remittance should be made to John Young, secretary, 43 West Eighteenth street, New York, and a railroad certificate will be promptly forwarded with a membership card.

State Vice-Presidents.

State vice-presidents are urged to send in their annual reports to the secretary, addressing them either to his New York office, or in care of the Muehlebach hotel, Kansas City, Mo. State vice-presidents are also reminded that the official program of the convention provides for a conference of these officers at the Wednesday evening session. President Pennock will preside and is anxious to have all vice-presidents in attendance take part in it. Any who cannot be present at the gathering are urged to send in suggestions or recommendations bearing on the possibility of closer coöperation and support by state officers in the society's work.

Trade Exhibition.

There is still a limited amount of space in the trade exhibition for prospective exhibitors, but applications for locations should be sent to the secretary immediately, addressed in care of the Muehlebach hotel, Kansas City, Mo.

The following is a complete list of exhibitors who have reserved space up to and including July 24:

American Bulb Co., Chicago.
American Greenhouse Mfg. Co., Chicago.
W. W. Barnard Co., Chicago.
H. Bayersdorfer & Co., Philadelphia.
Bergman Decorating Co., Chicago.
Bergman-Koropp Co., Chicago.
Brandau Art Flower Co., Chicago.
Brunswick-Kroeschell Co., Chicago.
Burlington Willow Ware Shops, Burlington, Ia.
Cohen & Hiller, New York.
Eastern Wreath Mfg. Co., Providence, R. I.
John A. Evans Co., Richmond, Ind.
Robert Craig Co., Norwood Station, Pa.
J. W. Davis Co., Terre Haute, Ind.
De La Mare Co., New York.
DeWitt Sisters, Battle Creek, Mich.
Henry A. Dreer, Inc., Philadelphia.
Garland Co., Cleveland, O.
Ove Gnatt Co., La Porte, Ind.
Mrs. A. Hamberger, Brooklyn, N. Y.
Hammond's Paint & Slug Shot Works, Beacon, N. Y.
Joseph Heacock Co., Wyncote, Pa.
A. Henderson & Co., Chicago.
Henshaw Floral Co., New York.
D. Hill Nursery Co., Dundee, Ill.
Hulson Grate Co., Keokuk, Ia.
Allan Humason Co., Chicago.
Roman J. Irwin, New York.
Jackson & Perkins Co., Newark, N. Y.
C. A. Kuehn, St. Louis, Mo.
H. B. Fred Kuhls, Brooklyn, N. Y.
H. Kusik & Co., Kansas City, Mo.
M. Levine Co., New York.
Lion & Co., New York.
Lindley Box & Paper Co., Marion, Ind.
Lord & Burnham Co., Chicago.
Master Mfg. Co., Chicago.
McCallum Co., Pittsburgh, Pa.
John C. Moninger Co., Chicago.
Morehead Mfg. Co., Detroit, Mich.
Morris Paper Co., Chicago.
Nebel Mfg. Co., Cleveland, O.
Joseph G. Neidinger Co., Philadelphia.
T. J. Noll Floral Co., Kansas City, Mo.

S. S. Pennock Co., Philadelphia.
F. R. Pierson, Tarrytown, N. Y.
Pinehurst Floral Co., Pleasant Hill, Mo.
Poehlmann Bros. Co., Chicago.
C. C. Pollworth Co., Milwaukee, Wis.
Quincy Art Willow Ware Co., Quincy, Ill.
Raedlein Basket Co., Chicago.
A. L. Randall Co., Chicago.
M. Rice Co., Philadelphia.
J. K. Rugowski Seed Co., Manitowoc, Wis.
Schloss Bros., Ribbons, Inc., New York.
Shearer & McCarthy Corp., Camden, N. J.
Skinner Irrigation Co., Troy, O.
Irving Stein, Chicago.
L. C. Stroh & Sons, Batavia, N. Y.
Stuppy Supply Co., Kansas City, Mo.
William Usinger, Pittsburgh, Pa.
Vaughan's Seed Store, Chicago.
Wertheimer Bros., New York.
Roy F. Wilcox Co., Montebello, Cal.
George Wittbold Co., Chicago.
Woerner Wire Works, Omaha, Neb.
W. M. Woodruff's Son & Co., Lowgap, N. C.
Zane Pottery Co., South Zanesville, O.

Exhibitors should communicate with the secretary, in care of the Muehlebach hotel, their requirements in the way of official signs for their exhibits, enclosing the necessary copy. Three lines are permitted on each sign, name, business and home address. Particular attention is called to the importance of having all decorative material used in booths fireproofed before it is placed in position, thus preventing the possibility of annoyance after the opening of the exhibition.

New Directors.

Two new directors have been added to the list of directors under affiliation: James W. Begbie, Shreveport, La., president of the Texas State Florists' Association, and C. Leslie Whipp, Jacksonville, Fla., president of the Florida State Florists' Association.

Secretary's Kansas City Address.

The secretary will arrive at the Muehlebach hotel, Kansas City, Saturday, July 29, where all communications on convention matters should be addressed. Correspondence on other matters should be addressed to the New York office, 43 West Eighteenth street.

John Young, Sec'y.

SHALL S. A. F. DECIDE?

I am most desirous of placing before the Society of American Florists, at the annual convention at Kansas City in August, three important matters that should be decided by the society as the mother organization of our fraternity. If this is done, there will be no further arguments as to what is right or wrong.

Resolutions should be adopted in regard to the list of flowers to be known as birthday flowers. There are now so many opinions on this subject that such a list should be settled upon once for all and should have the endorsement of the association. If such a list were made a matter of record, it would be universally accepted by all florists and could be submitted to the public as a standard, authorized list. I would suggest the following list of birthday flowers:

January	Carnations	Constancy
February	Violets	Modesty
March	Lilies of the Valley	Innocence
April	Sweet Peas	Tranquillity
May	Pansies	Consideration
June	Roses	Devotion
July	Gladioli	Contentment
August	Larkspur	Sincerity
September	Asters	Courage
October	Dahlias	Faith
November	Chrysanthemums	Hospitality
December	Orchids	Fascination

Accompanying all of the above should be sent a bunch of forget-me-nots.

Second, we should have a schedule of rules for judging table decorations, brides' bouquets, baskets and vases of flowers. Such a schedule of rules should be framed and endorsed by the Society of American Florists. Then, no matter where flower shows were held, in large or small cities, the same rules would guide all.

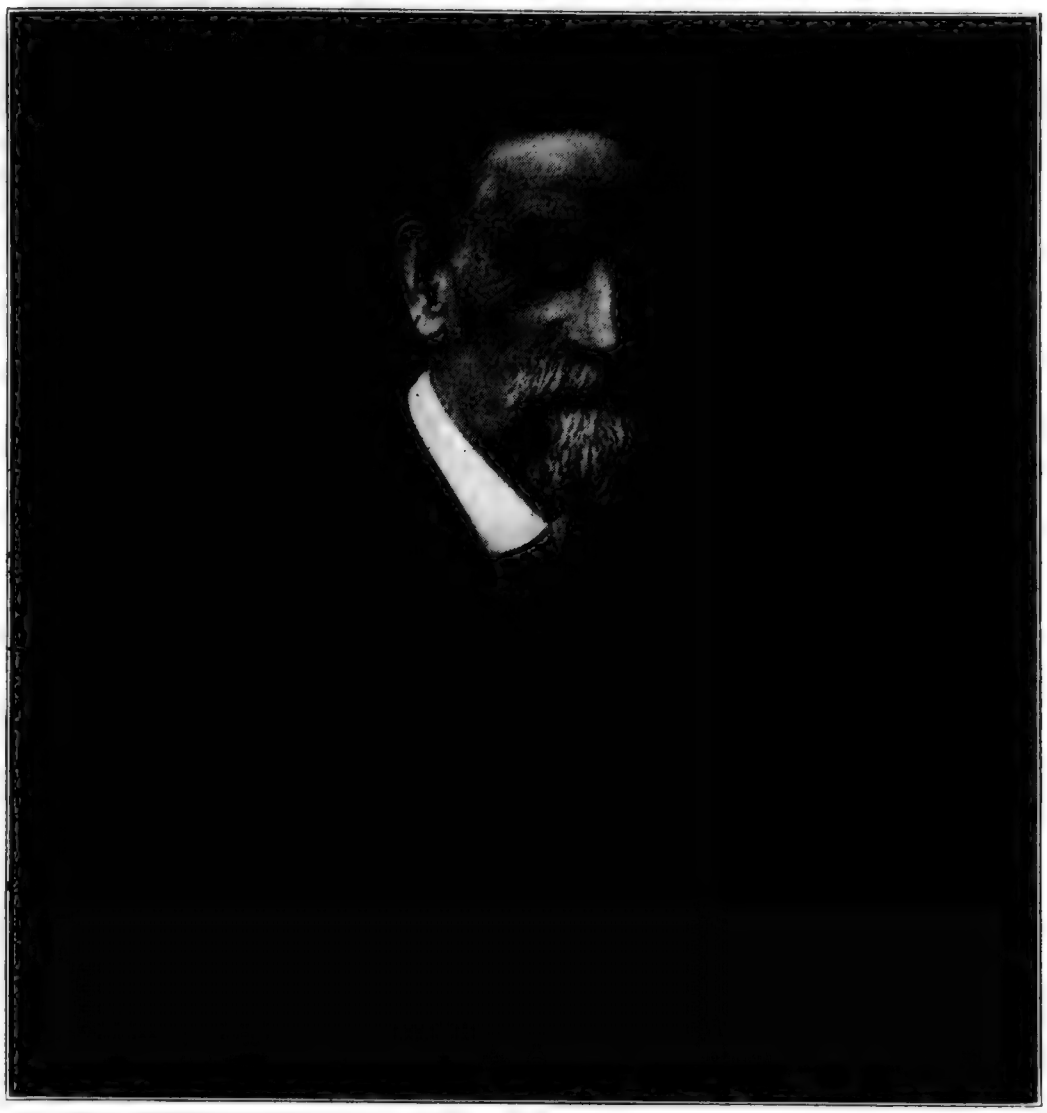
Third, there should be a table known as the grading table, especially for roses; one that would be used by all growers, so that retailers would have some way of knowing how to place their orders and for what grades. If such resolutions were passed by the Society of American Florists, everyone would feel that each of these important matters would have an official backing.

Henry F. Siebrecht, Jr.

LADIES' S. A. F.

The annual meeting of the Ladies' S. A. F. will be held Wednesday, August 16, at 10:30 a. m., at the Hotel Muehlebach, Kansas City, Mo.

The reception to the members of the S. A. F. will be held Wednesday evening, August 16, in the ballroom of the Hotel Muehlebach, at 8:30 p. m.



The secretary will have an office in the convention hall open Tuesday, August 15, and an office open at the Hotel Muehlebach the next day.

Two amendments will be acted upon at the annual meeting, both having been passed as motions at the meeting in Washington in 1921. Article 9—Section 2 was voted to read: "Members to be reinstated on payment of $4 back dues, but not entitled to life membership until after two years." Article 11 was voted to read: "The Ladies' S. A. F. shall have one entertainment during the annual meeting restricted to members of the Ladies' S. A. F. and their families and members of the S. A. F. guests of members, except a lady member's escort, admitted by paid ticket only."

Miss M. C. Gunterberg, president, has appointed Mrs. J. J. Hess, Omaha, Neb., as auditor for the year 1922.

Mrs. Albert M. Herr, Sec'y.

WHO'S WHO IN THE TRADE AND WHY

SAMUEL MURRAY.

FOR many years those attending the conventions of the S. A. F. have enjoyed the warm geniality of Samuel Murray's smile. This year, it would appear, the smile is warmer and more genial than ever, perhaps because the convention is coming right to his own home town, Kansas City, Mo.; perhaps because, as vice-president of the great organization, he is happy to extend the hand of hospitality and cordiality. Mr. Murray was born in Brooklyn, N. Y., in 1862, and soon thereafter he was taken to Scotland, where he stayed with his father, a head gardener. At 14 years of age he worked in the gardens and at 20 came to America, where he obtained employment with Peter Henderson. He stayed with the latter two years. Then he was private gardener for six years. Then he went to St. Joseph, Mo., on the advice of John N. May. In 1889 he went to Kansas City and established his business. Mr. Murray has always been a powerful influence in all movements for bettering the trade. Skillful as a grower, he is marvelous also as a propagator of friends.

LADIES' GREETING.

A folder of greeting to Kansas City has been sent out in behalf of the Ladies' S. A. F. It gives views of the convention city and describes its interesting features. This year the Ladies' S. A. F. will celebrate its fifteenth anniversary. In 1907 Mrs. Charles H. Maynard recruited eighty-eight members; now there are nearly 400. The present officers are: President, Miss M. C. Gunterberg, Chicago; first vice-president, Miss Olga Hubbard, Topeka, Kan.; second vice-president, Mrs. Herman Knoble, Cleveland, O.; secretary, Mrs.

Albert M. Herr, Lancaster, Pa.; treasurer, Miss Perle B. Fulmer, Des Moines, Ia.; directors, Mrs. Joseph Manda, South Orange, N. J.; Mrs. Theodore Wirth, Minneapolis; Mrs. Philip Breitmeyer, Detroit; Mrs. C. C. Pollworth, Milwaukee, Wis.; Mrs. H. G. Berning, St. Louis; Mrs. Dan MacRorie, San Francisco.

KANSAS FLORISTS TO MEET.

At Fredonia.

The Kansas State Florists' Association meeting will be held at Fredonia, Kan., August 3 and 4. This meeting will be the second annual convention of the association, and the directors are planning a meeting which will be second only to the S. A. F. convention to be held at Kansas City, Mo., August 15 to 17. The association has 145 members and it is expected that ninety-five per cent of these members will attend the convention. The officials of the association expect about 100 visitors from the surrounding states.

C. E. Hubbard will give a talk on "The Cause, Effect and Cure for Price Hiking on Special Days." This subject will probably be the most far-reaching of the subjects touched upon throughout the convention, and if Mr. Hubbard can offer a cure for "price hiking," he should be heard by every florist who can possibly get to the meeting.

A liberal amount of time is also to be given to the subject of cut flower make-up work. It is realized by all of the florists that everyone cannot attend such schools as that of Max Schling's, in New York, and one of the best services that the state associations can render for their members is the dissemination of knowledge and giving of instructions in this line of work.

The Program.

The program as arranged for August 3 by the committee will begin at 9 a. m. with a directors' meeting; registration will also begin at this time. From 1 p. m. to 3:30 p. m. there will be an F. T. D. conference, conducted by J. F. Ammann, of Edwardsville, Ill. This meeting will be followed from 3:30 p. m. to 6 p. m. by a business meeting and general discussions. Greenhouse ranges will be visited at 6 p. m. and dinner will be served at 7 p. m. During the dinner the president, W. H. Culp, will deliver his address. Short talks by the directors, C. Humfeld, L. E. Flindt, W. G. Coupland, James Hayes, Harry L. Smith and Loyd C. Bunch, will be given, followed by the introduction of members and the social hour.

The second day of the convention, August 4, will begin with a directors' meeting from 8 a. m. to 9 a. m., followed by a business meeting and the election of officers from 9 a. m. to 12 m. Luncheon will be served at 12:30 p. m. At 2 p. m. papers will be read and discussions will be had on the following topics: "Advertising"; "The Cause, Effect and Cure for Price Hiking on Special Days," by C. E. Hubbard; "Instructions in Making Sprays and Designs"; "The Florist and the Entomologist—Their Common Problems," by Prof. S. J. Hunter, of the Kansas State Agricultural College; "Instructions in Making Brides' Bouquets and Corsages," by Hugo Neff, Kansas City; "Side Lines for a Florist." At 6 p. m. of this day the annual picnic and jollification will take place.

The meeting will be held in the Chamber of Commerce hall of Fredonia. The city is served by three railroads—the Frisco, the Santa Fé and the Missouri Pacific. It is also reported that the automobile roads leading to the city are in good condition. The florists' establishments located here are the Fredonia Floral Co. and Loyd C. Bunch, who is a wholesale plant grower and does a large business throughout the state. As the secretary of the organization, Mr. Bunch has been principally responsible for its splendid growth, and he is working with his customary energy for a record gathering.

Exhibitors.

The following firms have taken liberal space for exhibition purposes: H. Bayersdorfer & Co., Philadelphia; C. L. Dickman Glass Co.; Vaughan's Seed Store, Chicago; C. C. Pollworth Co., Milwaukee, Wis.; Poehlmann Bros. Co., Chicago; Raedlein Basket Co., Chicago; Kansas City Wholesale Cut Flower Co., Kansas City, Mo.; A. Henderson & Co., Chicago; M. Rice Co., Philadelphia; Pittsburgh Pottery Co.; Ove Gnatt Co., La Porte, Ind.; A. L. Randall Co., Chicago; Stuppy Supply Co., Kansas City, Mo.; W. W. Barnard Co., Chicago; C. A. Kuehn, St. Louis.

Loyd C. Bunch.

DEFORMED CYCLAMEN LEAVES.

Please examine the cyclamen plant we have mailed you. Note the peculiar deformity of the leaves in the crown of the plant. About one-third of our plants show this condition. These leaves never develop, leaving a poorly shaped plant, and they soon turn brown and must be removed. Can you tell the cause of the trouble, and a remedy?

S. C.—Ill.

We have examined the cyclamen plant, but cannot say positively what may have caused the deformity, although the bulb seems healthy. It is our belief that too strong doses of insecticides have been applied to the plant, with disease also injuring the young growth when it was starting, but not showing until the plant got under way.

J. A. Peterson.

FERN SCALE.

We are sending you a specimen of our ferns. Kindly diagnose the infestation which has affected the stock, and advise the treatment the plants should receive in order to restore them to their normal state of health. We have thrown out all of the badly infested stock and have cut the remaining plants back.

G. E. W. & S.—O.

The specimen fern received showed another example of the fern scale, and, judging from the appearance of the plants, you have a severe attack of the pest. The best treatment would be to spray the plants once a week regularly with a solution of fish oil soap and a nicotine extract, the solution to consist of one-half ounce of the soap and one teaspoonful of the nicotine extract to one gallon of water. The soap should be dissolved by boiling, and the nicotine solution should be added after the hot liquid is cooled, and just before using.

OKLAHOMA FLORISTS MEET.

Convention a Marked Success.

The second annual convention of the Oklahoma State Florists' Association, briefly reported in last week's Review, came to a successful close at Tulsa, Okla., July 14, and the visiting florists and trade exhibitors expressed themselves as having had a fine time and pronounced the convention a marked success.

The convention was held in Convention hall, the meetings being conducted on the stage of the hall, which had been previously made beautiful and attractive with a setting of palms, baskets of flowers, flags, and bunting. The trade displays occupied the main floor of the hall and made an impressive showing, with palms, ferns, baskets, wreaths and prepared foliage, art pottery and other displays. The bulb and seed men had their spaces attractively decorated with gladioli and zinnias of the exhibition varieties.

The meeting was called to order by President Gray and invocation rendered by H. O. Hannah, of Sherman, Tex. O. O. Boston, of Tulsa, Okla., in the unavoidable absence of the mayor, extended the greetings of the city of Tulsa to the visitors at the convention. Response was made by A. F. Koehle, of Mangum, Okla.

President Gray in his address reviewed his activities of the last year, Oklahoma's splendid showing in the S. A. F. and the beauties of the Indianapolis flower show. He urged that everyone attend the national and state conventions each year. The minutes were read by Lon Foster, secretary, and approved.

Resolutions Adopted.

Resolutions were adopted condemning "crepe chasing" and florists' allowing over the usual discount of twenty per cent to undertakers and agents. A motion was offered by O. O. Boston, of Tulsa, that any florist guilty of using the above methods would be reported to the president and directors, who would take the matter up with them, and if the practice was not stopped, the florist would be dropped from the association. The motion was unanimously adopted.

The following resolution, offered by the resolutions committee, Robert Bebb, A. F. Koehle and W. E. Pitt, was also adopted:

Whereas, it has pleased Almighty God to remove from our midst Mrs. Stella Johnston, of Chickasha, Okla., and Mrs. Nelson, of Sulphur, Okla., therefore, be it resolved that we send to their families expression of our deepest sympathy with them in their great bereavement.

Temporary F. T. D. Arranged.

J. F. Ammann, of Edwardsville, Ill., made the feature address of the convention and opened his remarks by complimenting President A. S. Gray and the florists of Oklahoma on the high percentage of the state's florists who were members of the S. A. F. He urged everyone to attend the national convention at Kansas City, in August. He explained in detail and demonstrated with map charts the proposed redistricting of the F. T. D., and plans for the organizing and functioning of the F. T. D. conferences and state F. T. D. organizations, and explained the benefits to be derived from establishing the proposed F. T. D. clearing house. A large majority of the Oklahoma state florists favor the plan.

Following Mr. Ammann's address a temporary Oklahoma state F. T. D. organization was formed and officers elected were: President, O. O. Boston, Tulsa; vice-president, G. W. Preston, El Reno; secretary, A. E. Koehle, Mangum.

Following the meeting a barbecue was held at Sand Springs Park, where extemporaneous talks were made by exhibitors and visitors. As usual, the discussion of the relations of wholesaler and retailer waxed hot and both sides were well represented, but at the finish both seemed to be exactly where they started.

The convention closed with a farewell address by President Gray, who thanked those who attended and at this time also arranged for a special train of Oklahoma florists to attend the S. A. F. convention at Kansas City.

BUSINESS EMBARRASSMENTS.

New York, N. Y.—Papers have been filed for receiver's compensation, lawyer's fees and appraisers' allowance in the bankruptcy case of Sam Seligman. A special meeting of creditors will be held at the office of John J. Townsend, receiver, 299 Broadway, August 1, at 12:30 p. m., when the receiver's report and the other papers mentioned will be passed upon.

Media, Pa.—The first meeting of the creditors of Benjamin S. Italia, who was adjudged bankrupt April 24, will be held at the office of Garrett E. Smedley, referee in bankruptcy, 12 South avenue, Media, August 1, at 2:30 p. m., when creditors may prove their claims, appoint a trustee, examine the bankrupt and transact any other needed business.

EARLY-BLOOMING GLADIOLI.

Will you give me the names of ten of the earliest outdoor-blooming gladioli for commercial cut flower purposes?

P. D. G.—Tenn.

For your purpose, ten of the best would be Shakespeare, Princess of Wales, Halley, Chicago White, Jessie, Fire King, Ida Van, America, Mrs. Francis King and Niagara. These cover a good range of colors and are varieties always in demand. I. S. Hendrickson.

PANSIES FOR MEMORIAL DAY.

Would it be possible to sow pansy seed in January in the greenhouse, pot the plants and put them out in coldframes, so as to have them in bloom for Memorial day? W. C. H.—Pa.

Pansy seeds may be sown as suggested and will flower for Memorial day, but the plants will not be at all comparable in size and quality with those grown from seeds started now. I should strongly advise starting the seeds at once in a coldframe, later transplanting to other coldframes or wintering the plants outdoors on land with a gentle slope, mulching when the ground has become frozen. C. W.

CARNATIONS

BENCHING THE PLANTS.

Now Is the Time.

In this department last week appeared advice regarding preliminary preparations for benching carnation plants. In this article are told the proper methods of digging and planting. Subsequently, from time to time will be presented information as to the current work of the carnation grower, so that those not thoroughly posted may give their plants the needed attention through the season. Thus will be met questions regarding the regular routine. Subscribers' inquiries as to unusual conditions that arise will be gladly answered through The Review whenever they occur.

Having got the soil in your benches into a proper state of moisture, you are ready to begin planting. You will have sprayed a shading, made of whiting and water with a little linseed oil added, on the glass to protect the plants from the hot sun for a few days after being planted. The density of this shade will depend on the extremity of the heat and the condition of the plants. If the rainfall has been scant and the plants are hard and well matured, the shade need not be heavy, but if, on the other hand, the rainfall has been abundant and the plants have grown rapidly and the growth is rather soft, a heavier shade will be needed.

Planting and Digging.

Just how you will work in digging and planting will depend on the size of your force of men and the size of the whole undertaking. Assuming that the plants are in average condition and the weather not excessively hot, we prefer to have one set of men dig the plants while another set plants them into the beds. Our theory is that the sooner the plants are put in the bed after being dug the better. If, however, the ground is dry and the temperature high, causing the plants to wilt quickly when dug, we prefer to dig all the plants needed for the day's planting early in the morning, while the plants are fresh and before the midday heat has set in. In that case, the plants should be kept in a cool shed, sprinkled with water and covered with burlap, and taken into the house only as needed by the planters. If the plants are planted as they are being dug, it will not be necessary to sprinkle them, but they should be kept covered as much as practical until planted. Use trays that are deeper than the ordinary green house tray. Trays made of glass boxes, one tray from a box, are just about right.

When digging the plants, endeavor to save a ball of earth on the roots about the size of your fist. It will be a great help to the plant in getting reëstablished. If, however, the soil is crumbly and it all drops from the roots without breaking them unduly and the roots are kept from drying out, the plants will come through in good shape. Do not allow the filled trays to set in the hot sun or the drying wind, but get them under shelter as quickly as possible. These things may seem trivial, but count for much if conditions are not altogether favorable.

Spacing and Setting.

The distance between the plants will depend somewhat on the size of the plants and the varieties being planted. Some growers set all their plants the same distance apart, doubling the smaller ones and those varieties that do not produce a bushy plant. Others will vary the distance and plant without doubling. Scientifically, the latter would seem the best, but in practice the former works out the better. We set our plants six plants across a 4-foot bench and seven plants across a 5-foot bench. We find that ten inches between the rows is about right, unless the plants are unusually large, which is seldom the case this early. We stretch a line down the middle of the bed and depend on our eye to place the plants properly between that and the edge. We use a notched pole to guide us in spacing the rows. Some growers mark off the bench with a marker before beginning to plant, but we prefer the method we now use.

When setting the plants, make a hole with the hand large enough to accommodate the roots without cramping; draw the soil around evenly and press it thoroughly about the roots. When this is done, the plant should stand upright and should set in the soil just as deep as it was in the field. If planted too deep, stem rot will be sure to appear. If set too high, the plants will topple over, which is bad, but not so bad as the stem rot. When a few hundred plants have been set, according to the weather and general conditions, they should be watered in. Instead of leaving a depression around each plant when planting and filling this with water, we leave the surface fairly level and water the entire bench. After that we need only to spray lightly overhead until the soil has dried enough for the first scratching; by this time the plants have a fairly good hold in the new soil.

How to Spray.

The overhead spraying will vary according to the weather conditions. The thing to bear in mind is, the spraying is an artificial stimulant to keep the plant in a fresh condition until the roots are again ready to supply it with the required moisture. The less spraying you can get along with, at the same time keeping the plants fresh, the better. Therefore, you should start with frequent light sprayings and reduce them just as soon as the plants will keep fresh without. After a week, it should not be necessary to spray oftener than two or three times daily and after two weeks no spraying should be needed. Give all the ventilation possible all the time. I would rather spray more frequently and keep the temperature down than to run up the temperature to keep the wind out, but do not allow the wind to strike the plants directly too much. Keep the walks dampened to help maintain a moist atmosphere. We find a good way to spray overhead is to shoot the spray into the air high over the plants and let the water drop onto the plants in a mist, rather than to shoot it right onto the plants. In this way, the whole atmosphere is charged with moisture. Do not spray heavily enough to moisten the soil much, as it should dry slowly to permit scratching after a week or ten days. A. F. J. B.

CHRYSANTHEMUMS

MITE ON MUMS.

My White Mistletoe mums are affected with a disease which causes the leaves to turn brown in spots and the trusses to separate, with the result that the plants gradually die. I have only lost two plants thus far, but have noticed spots on the leaves of some of the other plants and should like to check the disease at once. There are no insects on the plants and they appear otherwise to be in a healthy condition. I have used sulphur tobacco soap as a spray. S. B.—Ga.

Your mums are being attacked by a mite. It occurs on mums, stevias, and Begonia Gloire de Chatelaine, which shows that it will attack a large variety of plants. We are not sure as to whether it is identical with the cyclamen mite or not. Thorough spraying, especially on the under side of the leaves, with nicotine oleate and heavy dusting with tobacco powder will exterminate them. Be persistent until you have them under control. The mites will be found mostly along the ribs of the leaves and in the corners or crevices where they are sheltered somewhat, which makes them difficult to reach. A. F. J. B.

WHITE ANTS ON MUMS.

I am having considerable trouble with a batch of 1,000 White Robinson mums. The plants are being attacked by white ants. Bisulphide of carbon is effective as a remedy, but I should like to have you tell me the correct use of this remedy. If there is any other remedy which is more effective, please advise me of that also. W. H.—La.

Bisulphide of carbon is probably as good a remedy as there is. It is advised to make holes with a dibble or similar instrument about a foot apart each way and to pour a small quantity, about a teaspoonful, into each hole, covering each hole as soon as the bisulphide of carbon has been poured in. A. F. J. B.

SEASONABLE SUGGESTIONS

A PAGE OF TIMELY AID AND ADVICE TO GROWERS

RAMBLER ROSES.

If you are growing your own rambler roses to be used for forcing next season—and there is no reason why more small florists should not grow along their own stock, always provided they have a suitable piece of land for its culture—you must give them constant cultivation through the growing season and, in the case of lusty growers like Dorothy Perkins and White Dorothy, which send up long canes, somewhat prostrate in habit, it will pay to use some moderately stout stakes and support them. This will clear the space between the plants and make cultivation easier and the shoots will have a much better chance to ripen. Tausendschoen, Paul's Scarlet Climber and a few others grow rather erect, make shorter canes than Hiawatha, Dorothy Perkins or Lady Gay, and will need but little supporting. Perhaps you have some rambler roses in your own house. This will act as a reminder that after flowering is the time to remove the canes which have flowered and allow the stout young shoots from the base to take their place. Prune your ramblers now and not next spring, and you will have far better results.

GENISTAS.

These useful late winter and spring-flowering plants lack the lasting qualities of some other plants, but their shapeliness, pleasing yellow color and ease of culture strongly commend them to many. Greenhouses are unsuitable for these plants in summer. All should be outdoors and, unless the stock is small and needs repotting occasionally, all should be plunged to their brims, not in even partial shade, but in an open, sunny spot. As growth progresses, the plants will need an occasional shearing if you want symmetrical specimens. However, I think too many plants are formally clipped and they lack the beauty of more naturally grown plants. Try a few of each and you will find that some of your customers will prefer the less formal plants.

AMARYLLIS.

In the warm states, the amaryllis is one of the best bulbous plants for the garden. For a great number of us, however, living in more severe latitudes, pot culture only is possible. There is no reason why any country florist should not grow a few of these handsome bulbous plants. They come from seed readily, flower in two or three years, and occasionally even less, if kept growing without rest until they bloom, and the colors are extremely rich and varied, running from pure white to the richest crimson. Anyone having pots in the greenhouse would do well to plunge them to the brim outdoors in an old hotbed where they will get full sun. The bulbs will increase in size surprisingly before fall and if you want a fine crop of flower spikes, big bulbs are essential. Also, give the plants a little liquid stimulant occasionally. Too many people still think that as soon as amaryllis plants have flowered they should be neglected or laid below a bench until the following winter. Such treatment is utterly wrong. The amaryllis does not need a long resting period; in fact, nowadays plants rarely lose all their foliage until the spikes are pushing up for a new crop.

ADIANTUMS.

It is now that the adiantums are making a good crop of fronds, which will come in useful next fall and winter. They do not like a strong light, being of much more fragile texture than nephrolepis, and, unless given a fairly good shade, the fronds will not be of that fine dark color which is pleasing. Never allow the plants to get dry at the roots; if they become dust-dry, many of the tender young fronds will shrivel. Plants thoroughly potbound will be much benefited by occasional doses of cow or sheep manure water. The writer likes soot also as a fertilizer and always adds some to the bag containing the fresh cow manure, which is placed in a barrel of water, and after two or three days the liquid is used in the proportion of one to six parts of water. Not only is this good for ferns, but about all kinds of plants that are well rooted appreciate a little stimulant occasionally. If snails are bothersome, dust the bench with air-slaked lime and lay slices of potatoes, fresh lettuce or cabbage leaves as traps.

WALLFLOWERS.

As winter and early spring-flowering plants, wallflowers prove popular. They may be grown in either pots or benches. For cutting the latter are preferable. Sow the seeds at once of the early-flowering, single type. These come in yellow, brown and blood-red colors. Try a mixture and see what color takes best for a starter. The delicious fragrance of the plants appeals to people who are tired of carnations, mums and roses, and want a change. The plants need a cool house. Seeds may be sown in a coldframe and the seedlings transplanted when they become too crowded. They are rapid growers and must not be neglected.

BULB COMPOST.

Freesias are coming to hand. Soon we shall have Paper Whites, Soleil d'Or and other narcissi, and other bulbs will follow in quite rapid succession. "Any old soil," we are often told, is good enough for bulbs. Do not believe such nonsense. Bulbs of all kinds do much better in a carefully prepared compost, and it is a good plan to mix a good-sized pile now. If you have a compost pile composed of well rotted sod and manure, chop some of it down; it will need no addition to it. If you have not such a compost pile, perhaps you have some old rose or carnation soil, and if you add one part well rotted cow or horse manure to three of the loam and let it stand outside a while, it should answer well. If your soil is heavy, and perhaps clayey, in nature, add some leaf-mold and sand to make it more porous. If you have any fine charcoal or soot from soft coal, they are excellent to add to the pile. Soil of this character will suit tulips, narcissi, hyacinths and lilies, which are practically all the forcing bulbs allowed us by the Federal Horticultural Board.

PREPARING FLATS AND POTS.

There is usually no lack of work to do at this season either outdoors or under glass, but we are liable to get occasional spells of dark, rainy weather, when we can get a chance to do a little cleaning up indoors. This is a good time to take account of flats, pots and pans. You will probably not have a sufficient number of any one of these and it is not good policy to wait until you start potting and then have to send in hurry-up orders for more receptacles. Clean and repair any flats you may have. If you have suitable lumber, make some more; 3x12x24 is a useful size for seedlings; 4x12x24 answers well for tulips and narcissi. Use two pieces four inches wide and one three inches at the bottom, the narrow one in the center; this will give ample drainage. Sort the empty pots according to their sizes and, while you may not have time to wash them, you can at least rub out the inside of them. It is more important to have the inside than the outside clean, but, of course, if you can clean both, by all means do so. Plants thrive much better in clean than in dirty pots.

BOUVARDIAS.

The most useful of all bouvardias is the pure white Humboldtii; its natural flowering time is fall, but plants can be regulated to give a June as well as an October and November crop. This bouvardia thrives well in a shallow bench indoors all summer. It can also be planted out and lifted or grown in pots or boxes. To those who want but a few, the culture of it in boxes five or six inches deep is commended; keep the plants outdoors until the middle of September; then move them into a greenhouse kept at about 50 degrees at night. The plants will need one or two pinchings and it will pay to rub out the weakest shoots. Planted outdoors, this bouvardia will make a vigorous growth and will give a nice crop of flowers as early as August or as late as October, according to how late pinching has been done. The large, pure white and deliciously fragrant flowers of this bouvardia place it at the head of the bouvardia family. The old single pink and scarlet varieties, flowering somewhat later, have smaller flowers and lack fragrance, but are most useful in bouquet work.

THERE are many ways of selling flowers in summer, but the first step is to have flowers to sell; then try to sell them.

THERE is any amount of business ahead for those who grow the new and up-to-date gladioli. The old varieties will have to be dropped. It's what makes the world go 'round.

THE day probably will come when Gladiolus 1910 Rose will be the most largely grown variety for flower store use. It is the most useful shade of pink, from the retailers' point of view.

ALREADY this season The Review has seen handsome samples of Paper Whites from Florida, Georgia and California. Convince us they can be forced like the French and we will declare again our independence.

THE florist who is complaining about overproduction is the fellow who has failed to get in touch with his market. Scores of buyers may be looking for what he wants to sell. The Classified pages of The Review furnish cheap means of reaching them.

IN the sales end of the business most florists lack system and office equipment; in the growing end they lack quality more than quantity of output. It usually is easy to tell what is wrong with a business, although it may not be so simple to supply the deficiencies.

EVEN women hesitate to "shop" in a flower shop as they would in a department store. If the first flowers she prices are more than she wants to pay, she is apt to leave without buying at all. Price cards on the stock shown would enable her to pick out what she wished without the delay and embarrassment of asking many questions.

A GOOD many shippers still use for plant boxes labels carrying the out-of-date statement that the shipment is to be carried at the general special express rate, twenty per cent less than merchandise rates. There is no such special rate any more; it is one of the things we lost in the war. Plant shipments take the first-class rate, the same as cut flowers and most other merchandise.

IF you have not an identification certificate which entitles you to the reduced railroad rates to the Kansas City convention, you can get one, provided you are an S. A. F. member, by writing Secretary Young, 43 West Eighteenth street, New York.

THE Garden Club of America is publishing widely the announcement made last spring by Carbone, of Boston, that after July 1 the sale of arbutus and laurel would be permanently discontinued as a means of coöperating with the movement for the preservation of wild flowers.

UNQUESTIONABLY, a new business cycle has started; general business no longer is going down; it is coming up. Which is another way of saying that the florists' business has suffered less depression than almost any other line and is in strong position to profit by the period of renewed good times on which America is entering.

THE official program of the S. A. F. convention at Kansas City, August 15 to 17, has been mailed to members. It is as printed in last week's Review, with the exception that an error appears in the pamphlet which did not in The Review; namely, a statement that a meeting of the board of directors of the American Carnation Society will be held August 17. No such meeting will take place.

PRIORITY ORDERS ISSUED.

As a result of priority orders issued by the interstate commerce commission July 25, instructing carriers east of the Mississippi river to give preferential movement to food, feed, live stock, perishable products, coal, coke and fuel oil, freight shipment of other commodities will be held up. Florists' plants come under the heading "perishable products," the fourth class, but so few are shipped by freight, especially at this time of year, that the order will have negligible effect on this trade in that regard. It is likely, however, that freight shipments of lumber and other construction material may delay construction jobs, though much danger of retarding work in this way is not feared by the greenhouse building concerns.

The commission also divided coal consumers into five classes, and florists will be in the fifth. The classes given precedence in coal distribution contain railroads, public and semi-public utilities, federal, state and other institutions and similar consumers. The reason for such action, according to the commission, is that coal stocks are dwindling fast and only by exercise of care will it be possible to keep the railroads and necessary public utilities functioning. This action is not so serious at this time as it would be later in the year, since greenhouse operators believe that by the time cold weather arrives, making their need of fuel urgent, the strike will be settled and supplies will be adequate to meet current requirements without such discriminatory distribution.

COAL SHORTAGE ACUTE.

The rise in coal prices in the last week has left greenhouse owners without the slightest desire of bidding for fuel just now. They are waiting in expectation of a settlement of the miners' and railroad shop men's strike ere the weather makes the need of further coal supply urgent.

"The long-heralded coal shortage seems to have arrived," stated Coal Age last week. "An embarrassing lack of production, caused by the miners' strike, has been increased by the railroad shopmen's strike. Normal transportation of freight has been impossible, mines which have been running have been forced to curtail operations and the slow movement all around has brought car shortage to the fore.

"The coal market has reacted strongly to the combination which has limited much-needed tonnage. A general scramble for coal has resulted, in which Mr. Hoover's price list has been definitely outdistanced in the bidder's market which exists today. Large consumers are the most active purchasers, snapping up every available load on wheels. The steel industry is threatened with partial reduction of operation by the inadequate supply.

"Coal Age index of spot bituminous prices reached 321 July 17, an increase of 20 points compared with July 10. This week's index figure represents an average price at the mine of $3.89, as compared with $3.64 a week ago.

"Western Kentucky coal was the mainstay of the middle west last week and prices were not long in reflecting the stronge demand. At this writing western Kentucky is being quoted around $6.25, a full dollar over the last quotation carried on these pages, with every indication that it will go still higher.

"The market around Chicago continues to be the strongest of any section. Rail congestion has so delayed regular contract shipments that large consumers are buying car numbers on the spot market. The same market conditions appear to be moving eastward—Cleveland and Cincinnati are hungry for coal, while the dwindling tonnage at the Hampton Roads piers and the meager all-rail receipts from Pennsylvania are being felt with increasing force in New England and the north Atlantic section.

"The northwest is on the verge of a critical fuel situation. Dock stocks at the head of the lakes are now around 1,500,000 net tons, as compared with 4,342,000 tons at this time last year."

BUSINESS STILL GOOD.

Florists are fortunate folk—there is a never-ending demand at wholesale in this steadily developing trade. If any man grows more than he needs for his local trade, he has no trouble, and there is little cost, in finding some other florist who needs that very thing. Like this:

Kindly discontinue our Classified ads of roses and chrysanthemums, as our surplus is entirely sold out.—United States Cut Flower Co., Elmira, N. Y., July 15, 1922.

Please stop our ad on smilax in The Review, as our stock has been disposed of.—State Floral Co., Yakima, Wash., July 17, 1922.

Please discontinue our poinsettia ad, as we are absolutely sold out; many thanks.—Bell Floral Co., Temple, Tex., July 19, 1922.

We are entirely sold out of the Mllady rose plants advertised in The Review.—A. N. Nielsen, Inc., Pana, Ill., July 21, 1922.

If you hear a man complain of the cost of advertising, you can be pretty certain he spends a good bit of money elsewhere than in The Review.

OBITUARY

Frank L. Waidele.

Frank L. Waidele, for many years foreman for George R. Gause, died suddenly of heart trouble at his home, at Richmond, Ind., early Wednesday morning, July 19. He was born September 1, 1873, in Richmond and spent the greater part of his life in that city. When a boy he entered the employ of the E. G. Hill Co. Later he was with his friend, Mr. Gause. He went to the Kellogg greenhouses at Pleasant Hill, Mo., and later to the Hasselman greenhouses at Indianapolis. Returning to Richmond, he reëntered the employ of Mr. Gause, where he remained for twenty-two years, until his death. He was a faithful and conscientious employee. He was city councilman for twelve years. He was president of the St. Joseph Society and vice-president of the state organization at the time of his death. He leaves a wife and one daughter, and aged father and many friends to mourn his loss. The funeral was held at St. Andrew's church, Saturday morning, July 22. Interment was at the cemetery of the same church. There were many flowers from florists and other friends.

Joseph D. Fitts.

Joseph D. Fitts, for many years superintendent of parks of Providence, R. I., and a recognized horticulturist and pomologist, died Tuesday morning, July 18, at the home of his son, William H. Fitts, 166 Reynolds avenue, Providence, after an illness of several weeks. He was 73 years of age.

Born in Seekonk, Mass., in 1850, Mr. Fitts attended the public schools of the district and later became employed in the city engineer's department of Providence. In that capacity he became thoroughly familiar with the city's park system.

When the park commission was created in Providence in 1891, he was selected as the best adapted person to fill the position of superintendent of parks. He remained in that position until April, 1909.

Upon his resignation to enter business for himself, he was succeeded by Frederick C. Green, whose death occurred only a few months ago. Mr. Fitts took a large estate near Harmony, in Gloucester, R. I., growing berries and other fruits. He abandoned this work about five years ago and had since devoted his time to expert consultation on pomology and horticulture.

He is survived by his wife and two sons. For many years he was an active member of the Rhode Island Horticultural Society, the S. A. F., American Association of Park Superintendents and the Florists' and Gardeners' Club of Rhode Island. His social affiliations were in the Masonic fraternity as a member of Mount Vernon Lodge No. 4; Providence Royal Arch Chapter No. 1; Providence Council No. 1 of Royal and Select Masters and St. John's Commandery, No. 1, Knights Templar.

W. H. M.

SAGINAW, MICH.

The Saginaw-Bay City Floricultural Society will hold its annual outing at the Goetz grove, on the Tittabawassee river, August 9. Henry and Fred Goetz were named at the July meeting as a committee to make arrangements for entertainment and refreshments. It will be a basket picnic for all florists, their families and employees and families.

NEW YORK.

The Market.

Summer conditions continue in the cut flower market. The demand is light and the supply is mainly covered by outside material. Gladioli and asters seem to dominate the market, and immense quantities are disposed of daily. The aster cut is assuming heavy proportions and the quality of arrivals shows considerable improvement.

Some good dahlias are coming in, and meet a fair demand for decorative purposes; there seem to be fewer of the cheap and mediocre varieties than has been the case in previous years; this occasions the belief that growers are exercising better judgment in the selection of varieties for the market. Gladioli, too, are showing a better variety selection, growers evidently realizing that it does not pay to ship mongrel stock, especially when express charges are so much higher than they used to be. Zinnias continue to meet a good demand and rarely has better stock been seen. Large quantities of delphiniums are moved every day, as well as gypsophilas. Other items in the herbaceous class available are phlox, cornflowers, centaureas, blue lace flowers, tuberoses, feverfew, candytuft, gaillardias, coreopsis, statice, poppies, marigolds and snapdragons.

Roses are in small supply, but abundant enough to meet existing demand. Arrivals show the effect of the hot weather, and much opened stock is in evidence. American Beauty is in small supply, but the demand is equally small at unchanged prices. Hybrid teas are also on the short side, but sales are not particularly active within a price range of $1 to $6 per hundred. A small cut is coming from newly planted stock.

A few carnations are coming, but the quality is poor, as might be expected with the rearguard of the season's crop.

The supply of cattleyas is considerably less than at the opening of the month, but the demand is in pace with the supply.

White lilies are fairly plentiful at $10 to $15 per hundred, and rubrum lilies are hard to clear at $3 to $6 per hundred. Lily of the valley is druggy, meeting a small demand. Sweet peas are finished.

Various Notes.

Arthur Herrington, of Madison, N. J., lectured Sunday, July 16, in the museum at the New York Botanical Garden, Bronx park, before a good audience, on "The Newer Roses." He staged, in connection with the lecture, a rather remarkable collection of roses, embracing seventy bunches, each of a different variety. These came mostly from the rose gardens of Bobbink & Atkins, Rutherford, N. J.

Robert Craig, the veteran grower of Philadelphia, was a caller at Secretary Young's office last week, and was accompanied by his stalwart grandson, John Graff. Mr. Craig, who appeared to be in better health than for some time, was most enthusiastic as to the possibilities of growing aspidistras, dracænas and other subjects in Porto Rico, but said palm growing could be only partially successful. He enjoyed a good talk with the secretary over old times, and was more than usually reminiscent. Friday of last week he was the guest of A. L. Miller, Jamaica, and attended the ball game between the New York and Chicago firemen.

C. H. Totty, Madison, N. J., is making a short automobile trip through New Hampshire. He will attend the convention of the Canadian Horticultural Society in Montreal next month, as representing the S. A. F., in whose behalf he will speak for closer coöperation.

President Roman Irwin, of the New York Florists' Club, has appointed the following to serve as the committee on nominations of officers for 1923, to report at the November meeting: A. L. Miller, C. H. Totty, Emil Schloss, P. F. Kessler, I. S. Hendrickson, Peter Gerlaird and Charles H. Brown. The next meeting of the club will be held on Monday, September 11.

John Young, secretary of the S. A. F., has gone to Kansas City, where he may be found at the Muehlebach hotel until after the society's convention.

Charles Forman, of the Henshaw Floral Co., will have charge of his company's exhibit at the S. A. F. convention.

CHICAGO.

The Market.

It is midsummer; there is no use denying that fact. The supply of flowers exceeds all previous summer records for this market and the demand has not increased in proportion. Which is equivalent to saying prices are low and that more or less stock has to be moved through channels outside the regular florists' trade.

That the demand is greater than it ever was before in summer is beyond question, but the business is spotty. Some florists are buying much more heavily than others and the out-of-town orders are stronger than the city buying. Also, an active day will be followed by a dull one, and vice versa. A large quantity of stock is being moved, but the prospect of a clean-up is so remote that in most cases the buyer sets the price, which never is high.

Last week in this market was typical of midsummer. Weather conditions brought the height of the gladiolus season considerably earlier this summer than in any other. The market is crowded with them, but nothing like old-time glut prices are heard of. There has been, of course, a wonderful improvement in the stock since the days when America and Augusta were the leaders. Probably the market never has handled so many gladioli in any previous six days as it did last week and prices were considered low at $25 to $35 per thousand. In small lots preferred varieties were sold at $5 and $6 per hundred and on up to $12 for special stock. On the other hand, poor stock was jobbed off at any price it would bring, which was not much. It no longer pays to grow anything but the best sorts and grow them well.

Asters are in good supply, resulting in a reduced call for the few carnations still being received. The early asters never are much for quality, but they are

Choice Gladioli

You all know the difference in quality and value in other flowers—but do you appreciate that there are the same differences in Gladioli?

The new varieties are far superior to the old favorites—but there's a lot depends on growing, cutting, handling. Many people fail to accord the Gladiolus its due respect. Amling's Gladioli are handled from first to last with the same care given Roses and other fine flowers.

Myrtle, Hanly, 1910 Rose, may be obtained here in quantity.

Anna Eberius and Pendleton are beginning to arrive from the fields.

We have much the largest supply of Gladioli in the Chicago market and nowhere in America is there so large a stock of the newest varieties—our growers have invested large sums in blooming size bulbs of the fine, new kinds while others were buying only planting stock.

Quality considered, Amling's prices on Gladiolus flowers never were so low as now selling well. Other garden flowers also are plentiful, including gypsophila and helichrysums, which are being hung up to dry against a time of greater need.

The rose is the principal greenhouse flower now in market. The supply is large, but the quality has not been all one could desire. Summer sun on the greenhouse glass has made the flowers small and many of them open. Most of the roses are short-stemmed, as the bulk of the crop is from young stock. With so large a supply of specially fine gladioli and so large a supply of small, short, open roses it is inevitable that the prices should be low.

Easter lilies and speciosums are in good supply. There is a steady supply of valley. Sweet peas are few and poor.

The green goods market is quiet, as it always is when cut flowers are abundant and cheap.

wild flowers in Chicago stores has almost ceased.

Various Notes.

William Reid and Mrs. Reid, who formerly was Miss Frauenfelder, started by automobile July 23 for Oshkosh, Wis. They had with them George Way, Mrs. Way and Baby Way. The purpose of thus combining business and pleasure was to represent the A. L. Randall Co. and the Duro Paper Products Co. at the meeting of the Wisconsin State Florists' Association.

Harry Garoian is installing a flower stand in the lobby of the Western Union building, 111 West Jackson boulevard.

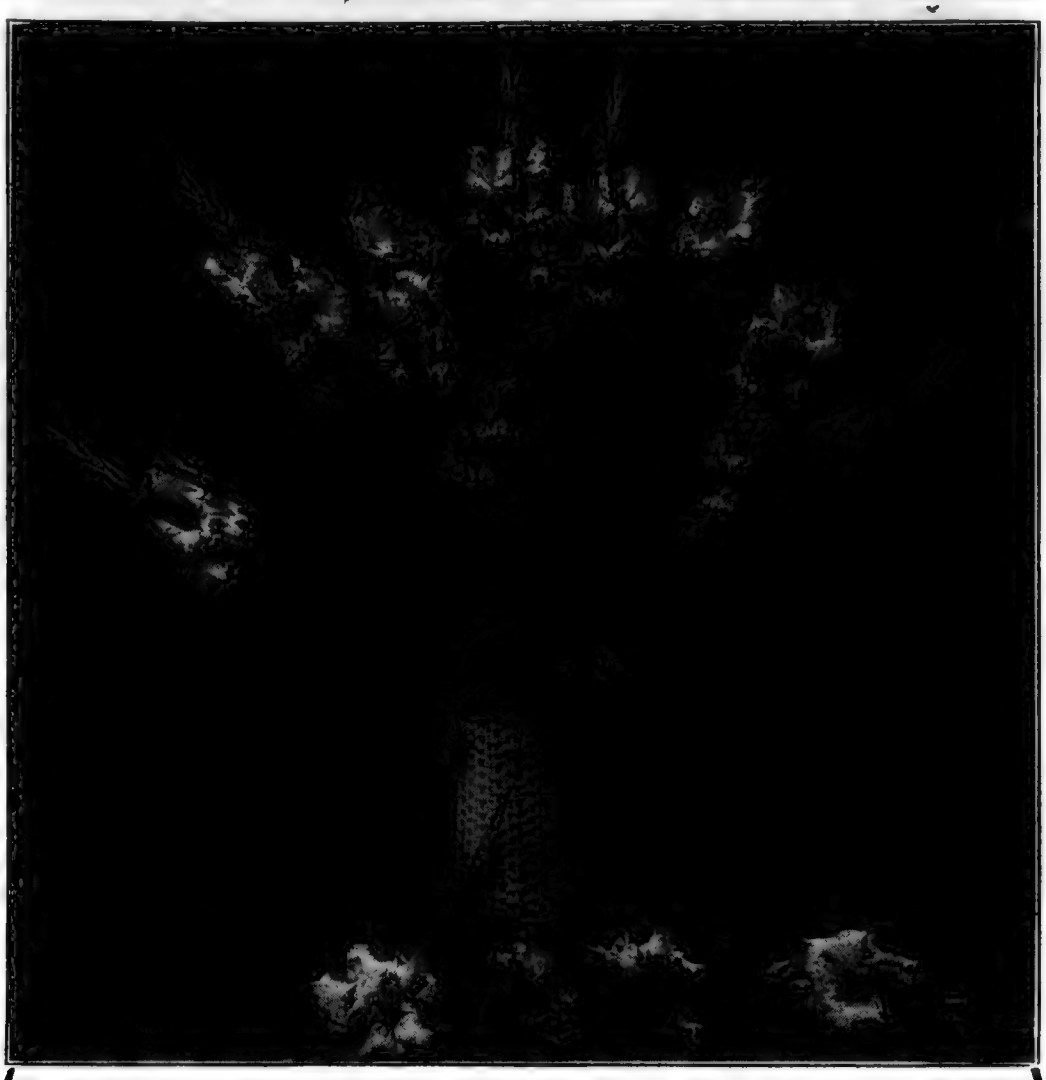
A. T. Pyfer says that Gladiolus 1910 Rose has become the most called for and quickest selling variety on the market.

Miss Emma Borcherding is opening a new retail flower store at 1130 West Thirty-first street.

Eric Johnson spent the last week end at Sister Lakes, where the family are vacationing.

Paul R. Klingsporn is spending the week with friends in northern Michigan.

An occasional quiet day at the establishment of W. J. Smyth is being made use of for repairing the conservatory. New concrete is being laid, benches rebuilt and broken glass replaced by such all-around florists as Arthur Weatherwax and B. J. Sherman, who can overhaul heating apparatus with the same facility they make shower bouquets. Mr. Smyth is spending the summer quietly at Antioch in the attempt to reduce blood pressure the doctors consider dangerously high.



It will be good news to Ernst Wienhoeber's many friends that the veteran retailer is recovering rapidly from his recent illness. He is able to be about the house and grounds and is enjoying his garden thoroughly. Many members of the trade drop in on him for a few minutes' chat when passing through Winnetka in their cars.

The parade celebrating the Uptown Chicago Pageant of Progress, which wound its way up Broadway on the evening of July 20, included a number of florists' floats. That of Clody's Flower Shop was among the most elaborately decorated in the parade, Schiller's also being noticeable for the use of fresh, instead of artificial, flowers. Other florists whose floats were conspicuous were Swanson the Florist, Stollery Bros., J. R. Paul & Son and the Birchwood Florist. Aside from some of the florists' floats, the parade was notable for the prevalence of artificial floral decorations; the uptown florists missed the chance of moving some of the abundant supply of gladioli.

C. J. Michelsen states that reports that the E. C. Amling Co., now owning and operating the Sam Pearce establishment on Higgins road, will change the crops grown there are wholly without foundation. Mr. Pearce made the place famous for its bulbous flowers of all kinds and these will continue to be the specialty there. Mr. Michelsen says the only change contemplated is to increase the output. Larger quantities of bulbs than ever have been ordered for next season.

Among the directors of the Philip State Bank of Chicago, 7001 North Clark street, said to be the oldest banking institution on the north side, appears the name of Adam Zender.

Frank M. Johnson is enthusiastic over the business outlook. He says that in all departments of the Randall business the prospect for fall is much better than it was a year ago. The salesmen so report from the road and are backing it up with orders.

I. Rosnosky has returned from a trip through the southwest for the A. B. C. and reports business conditions there much improved as compared with a year ago. Mr. Rosnosky reports that Peter Miller was the star of the Texas florists' convention, his demonstration and lecture on making up work arousing more comment than anything else on the program.

In the edition celebrating the Uptown Chicago Pageant of Progress, the Uptown Chicago Times carried a full-page advertisement "From the Reliable Florists of Uptown Chicago." Those whose names appeared on the page were Clody's Flower Shop, Stollery Bros., Schiller the Florist and James R. Paul & Son.

Joseph Schoos, the well known Evanston carnation grower, probably uses a larger number of varieties than anyone else in this neighborhood. He has eighteen sorts on his list and adds all the new ones as they come out.

Otto Kastle, 6414 South Halsted street, is fixing up his store to keep pace with the progress of the trade. His new equipment will include a Randall refrigerator twelve feet long like S. Y. Bloom's.

Poehlmann Bros. Co. expects to get possession of its new building next week, but it will be some time before alterations can be completed.

Susan Leslie and Charles A. Delamater have opened a store at 6471 Sheridan road under the name of Leslie & Delamater.

The first shipment of George J. Ball's sweet pea seed, grown for him in California, arrived this week, in time to fill many orders he had on file for early delivery.

Visitors.

We have had with us, for several days, E. H. Smith, an old-time Chicagoan who has not revisited us before for twenty-eight years. He was one of the men sent here from Madison, N. J., by L. M. Noe, when Brant & Noe bought the old Page place. Mr. Smith has for many years been in business for himself at Harrisburg, Pa.

Charles Duerr, a former Chicagoan who recently sold out his prosperous business at Newark, O., was here July 22. During a call on Kennicott Bros. Co. he stated the object of his trip to be the inspection of certain places offered for sale, with the intention of relocating himself.

E. H. Montgomery, of Fairfield, Ia., was in Chicago for five days last week, looking around. Before he left for home he gave an order to the A. L. Randall Co. for a complete outfit of fixtures for the new retail store he will open at Fairfield this autumn.

Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Cherry, of La Grande, Ore., were in Chicago this week, buying equipment for the store of Cherrys Florists. This was the ultimate destination of a journey made by short stages, combining vacation and inspection of greenhouse establishments en route. Mr. Cherry has 22,000 feet of glass, in which stock is grown for retail trade. He has cut his heating cost to a surprising degree by the installation of a Risdon stoker, using screenings.

The Market.

It is becoming more and more a gladiolus market. This ever popular outdoor flower has waxed wonderfully this season, thanks to the abundant rains and heat. The number of spikes coming in is already considerably beyond the needs of retailers. While a week ago a fair average price was $4 to $8 per hundred, with some varieties a little more, values have sunk as low as $1 per hundred, although there are still certain kinds worth that price per dozen. America continues to sell well and Schwaben renders a good account of itself. A considerable number of asters are now coming in, but the quality is not good, nor the sales brisk.

Roses have weakened and, July 22, many went as low as $1 per hundred; a few select flowers reached $8 per hundred. Columbia and Butterfly remain leaders, with Premier, Crusader, Ward, Double White Killarney and Ophelia among the "also rans." There are few carnations and they might well make a graceful adieu for a few weeks and let asters reign. Only small numbers of sweet peas are seen, but the quality, with drier weather, is a little better. There are now fair supplies of Lilium longiflorum, which make $12 to $16 per hundred. There is some L. auratum, for which the call is light, but hardly any white or colored L. speciosum.

candytuft, both white and colored, and snapdragons are also arriving. The blue lace flower, didiscus, sells only moderately well.

Valley is not in demand; neither are cattleyas, which are now becoming rather scarce. Small lots of white bouvardia and gardenias come in. The call for asparagus is quiet and pot plant trade is temporarily in the doldrums.

Club Picnic.

Perfect weather prevailed for the annual picnic of the Gardeners' and Florists' Club of Boston, held at Cunningham park, East Milton, July 20. A maximum temperature of 75 degrees and a haze which lasted all day rendered conditions ideal. There was an attendance of 500 and no accidents happened to mar the event in any way, which is eagerly anticipated each year, especially by the ladies and children. The picnic committee attended to its duties well and deserved great praise. The sports field was in perfect condition and, at the lunch hour, generous supplies of ice cream, tea, coffee, sandwiches, etc., were passed around to supplement contents of lunch baskets, making everyone happy. The first baseball game started at 10:30 a. m. and, with the exception of an hour's intermission for lunch, the sporting events proceeded uninterruptedly until 7 p. m.

The commercial baseball players once more easily trimmed the less agile private gardeners, but the latter had their revenge when the tug of war came along, as they had more avoirdupois on their end of the rope and comfortably beat their opponents. The ladies' baseball game produced the usual dramatic thrills and, between the players and the gallery, the umpires were thankful when time was called. The swimming contest came last on the program and proved popular—so much so that ladies will undoubtedly be provided for another year.

Prizes were presented to the successful contestants at the close of the sports and W. J. Kennedy drew the attention of everyone to the coming convention in Boston of the National Association of Gardeners. Peter Pederzini, of the Medfield Farms & Greenhouse Co., was worthily awarded a special prize for his handsomely decorated truck, which brought over twenty-five passengers with an expert bugler aboard.

The baseball game between the com-

PHILADELPHIA.

The Market.

A group of hot, disgusted men have been vainly trying to sell flowers. They have exhausted every resource without making any especial impression on the stock. They have sold considerable quantities, mostly at prices far below what they consider they are worth, and still there is the large supply so fearful in this hot weather.

Those are the conditions that prevailed in the Philadelphia cut flower market throughout the third week in July. Flowers were about twice as plentiful as they were one year ago and there was no more business. This is chiefly due to the favorable season for outdoor flowers. Asters are coming in freely and, with gladioli and roses, form most of the supply.

A Sporting Event.

An event of much more than usual interest is planned for Wednesday, July 26, at Belmont. It is a baseball game between the Berger family and the Independents. The Berger team will be made up of John Berger, of Berger Bros.; Harry Berger and Edward Berger, of William Berger's Sons; Frederick Berger and Norman Berger, of Arlington; William Berger, Jr., Louis Berger, Charles Berger and Elwood Berger. Think how proud William Berger would be to see a stalwart nine composed entirely of his sons and his grandsons take their positions on the diamond!

Stuart H. Miller, of Berger Bros., will lead the Independents. He will be aided by Robert B. Bragg, David Clarey, George Cook, Joseph Kennedy, Kenneth Meehan, Arthur Peil, Lloyd Reid and Edward Reilly. Samuel Parker, of the Philadelphia Cut Flower Co., an original employee of Berger Bros., will lead the Berger family's cheering squad. It promises well.

Baseball.

July 17 again proved Monday to be a difficult day. The Dreer team failed to appear at Belmont and again Niessen won the game, 9 to 0.

The Retailers trotted out a brand-new pitcher. The Independents protested him, but played and lost, 14 to 7. The unknown was ambidextrous. He warmed up pitching with his left hand, then changed over to his right in the first inning. This flabbergasted the Independents; still, it must be confessed the Retailers were able to swat the ball opportunely. Craig defeated Pennock at Norwood, 9 to 5. The feature of an interesting game was the appearance of the great Sam himself as a pinch hitter in the ninth. He hit the first ball for two bases amid enthusiastic applause. The Bickmore-Bayersdorfer game, at Lansdowne, was stopped at the end of the third inning, owing to the grounds' being requisitioned.

Tuesday, July 18, the interrupted Bayersdorfer-Bickmore was replayed at Lansdowne, the Delaware county boys winning by a score of 17 to 4.

Thursday, July 20, proved the most exciting day the league has seen. This fact is not borne out by the game Pennock vs. Bickmore, which was won by the leaders, 16 to 4, a large score made in the absence of the mighty Copestakes. Dreer brought Bayersdorfer out of the first division in an extremely exciting game by a score of 10 to 7. Just how close the score really was is shown by Kreiger's home run with the bases full, earning victory. Niessen protested the "great unknown" vigorously. No one in the business knew him, they said. So the Retailers put Esslinger in the box. He did well; so did the team. The score in seven innings stood: Retailers 13, Niessen 4. Then came a change; Esslinger weakened. Nine innings is too long until you get used to it. Niessen batted him at will; there were eight runs scored, two men on bases, no one out. Then the Retailers' captain made a master stroke. He called the "great unknown" in from the side lines to the box. The Niessen captain protested weakly this time. He saw victory in sight. Just one little hit meant a victory. The game went on. The unknown struck out five of the next six men who faced him and threw the others out at first; score: Retailers 13, Niessen 12. John Claus caught extremely well. The game broke the tie for first place in the league race.

A serious accident befell the Craig team on its way to play the Independents. The tail board of the truck flew out at Fifty-fourth street and hurled some of the players to the ground. Many were rushed to the hospital. Mathews, pitcher, Kennedy, left field, cousin of the market manager, and Albert Ersiner had their injuries treated; the last-named is quite badly hurt. The team then pluckily went to Belmont and offered to play the game. The Independents chivalrously declined, saying they would gladly play another time. Speaking for the team, Robert A. Craig said that the team would play their games even if he had to pitch himself.

The standing of the teams is as follows:

	Won	Lost
Bickmore	5	0
Niessen	4	1
Craig	2	2
Retailers	2	2
Independents	1	2
Bayersdorfer	2	3

which is susceptible to mildew. Mr. Holmes says he has an increasing call for roses from various nearby cities. About 70,000 carnations are grown. Matchless, Ward and Pink Delight are in the greatest numbers, but some Maine Sunshine, Thomas C. Joy and Laddie are also planted. One large house is devoted to Asparagus plumosus and A. Sprengeri, and another to such chrysanthemums as Chieftain, Bonnaffon, Chadwick and pompons. Still another house is devoted to cattleyas. Mr. Holmes says the demand for roses may soon compel him to plant the entire range with them.

The Winter Street Greenhouses, Arlington, acquired by Zeparo Rooky not long ago, are now well stocked. There are 18,000 chrysanthemums, now about two feet high. Yellow and white Frost are leaders and will be out in quantity early in September. Other sorts are Golden Glow, Oconto, Bonnaffon and Chadwick. There is a large batch of cyclamens in 5-inch pots and 1,000 fine Melior begonias; also, Roosevelt ferns, rubber plants, etc.

Peter Fisher is just finishing picking a large house of tomatoes. Cucumbers have done remarkably well and sold finely with him. He is now busy planting most of his large place with carnations. He and Mrs. Fisher took a vacation, so as to enjoy the club picnic July 20.

Thomas Roland, from Revere, is sending in an excellent lot of summer roses, of which Columbia and Butterfly are his leaders and will be the most largely planted this season. He also has Mrs. Ward, Ophelia, Premier, Double White Killarney and Crusader. At Nahant several large houses are filled with beautiful cyclamens; many are already in 7-inch pots and still have a large growing season ahead.

At Carbone's a large room with a beamed ceiling is being prepared for the display of an extensive assortment of Italian antiques.

The Mann Co. always has a great variety of cut flowers at its stands in the Flower Exchange, especially at this season. Among other varieties now offered are acrocliniums, rhodanthes, helichrysums and statices, for all of which everlastings there is a good demand; Didiscus cærulea, sweet sultans, cornflowers, cosmos, gaillardia, coreopsis, Achillea The Pearl and many others.

Donald Carmichael, of Wellesley, is becoming a globe trotter. Last year he went to Scotland and July 20 he returned from an extended trip with the Mystic Shrine to California, visiting the Yellowstone park and many other points of interest in the course of his absence.

Edward Bingham, of Dedham, says there is so much work picking and bunching single violets that he has decided to cut down heavily on them and his new house, 40x203, will be devoted to sweet peas and some part of the other houses to chrysanthemums.

Seymour Grose, of Carbone's staff, with Mrs. Grose and boy, are enjoying their vacation on a farm at Ipswich, Mass.

Gustave Thommen, who is making a tour of Florida, was with F. W. Fletcher at Orlando, July 19, and he has enjoyed studying the horticultural features of the state. He notes a strong feeling for the enforcement of the eighteenth amendment to the Constitution.

St. Swithin's day was fair this year and one-fifth of the course has been completed without precipitation to date; for which we are duly grateful.

Mrs. William Patterson sailed last week on a trip to Scotland. William Patterson is the ever popular Wollaston florist.

Johnston Knight, the courteous manager of the Boston Coöperative Market, returned July 22 from his annual vacation, enjoyably spent at romantic Marblehead.

John T. Slayter, of the A. Leuthy Co., Roslindale, and wife, have returned from a vacation passed pleasantly at historic Plymouth. Mr. Slayter has a splendid lot of winter stock coming along in his houses.

William Sim, of Cliftondale, our largest grower of carnations, has two or three of his big houses already planted and is pushing ahead the work of planting as rapidly as possible. Stock is of excellent size.

P. A. Gavin, local representative of the King Construction Co., states that he never before had so many commercial building contracts on hand; more are in prospect.

There will be a great gladiolus show in Horticultural hall, August 12 and 13. The New England Gladiolus Society will offer many prizes additional to those in the schedule of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society.

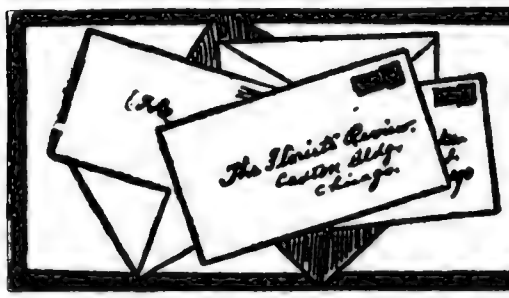
Oswald Ralph, the well known South Weymouth florist, has the sympathy of many friends in the death of his son, George, from tuberculosis at the early age of 24 years.

At the field day at the Lexington Field Station August 2 many market growers will note with interest the work being done in securing cucumbers which set their fruits without the agency of bees. It is well known that bees are considerable of a nuisance under glass and crosses made show that ere long they can be safely eliminated even in midwinter. W. N. C.

CLEVELAND, O.

The Market.

There was little activity of any kind on the market here last week. An occasional funeral or wedding was about all any retailer encountered. The wholesale market looked queer, with only one or two customers in evidence. It was extremely hard to move stock of any kind. The market is now being flooded, mostly with gladioli and Easter lilies, and both are moving slowly. Roses are extremely off crop, especially the pink varieties. Snapdragons are slowly disappearing, while delphiniums are arriving regularly. Gypsophila is rather scarce and sweet peas, for some reason or other, are not nearly so good as they have been in former years. Fancy ferns are now of excellent quality and low in price, as the new crop is now on the market.



Various Notes.

Frank Riley, of the retail store of the J. M. Gasser Co., has just returned from a week's vacation; also, Miss Poelking, of the office force.

Miss Dunn, of the Flower Shop, is touring the west with friends, taking in Yellowstone National park.

The florists' picnic was held Wednesday, July 26, and was a huge success. W. A. R.

The Cleveland office of the American Greenhouse Mfg. Co., which opened this week with F. J. Impey in charge, received the first order from the Rockport Greenhouse Co., of West Park, O. It was for three standard steel-frame houses 37x575, to be used for vegetables.

LOS ANGELES SUNKEN GARDENS.

A Great Trade Opportunity.

The success of the sunken gardens at Exposition park, Los Angeles, Cal., last year, on the occasion of the big show by the California Nurserymen's Association, was so marked and the feature proved so popular that an appropriation was made to continue it this year. O. W. Howard is again the leading spirit and all through the present spring and early summer the 7-acre garden has been a thing of beauty. While a large number of Dutch bulbs were used, 50,000 or more, yet these were not depended upon alone to make a display. Every month in the year, or one might say every week, there is something new and striking to see here and the general public shows its appreciation by visiting it freely.

This is no 1-man or 1-firm feature; everyone in the trade is invited to come and display anything he wishes, whether plants or seeds to produce plants. A neat sign is provided giving credit to whoever exhibits. One taken at random reads: "This sunken garden is permanently maintained as an exhibition feature by the California Association of Nurserymen. Chrysanthemum carinatum sown January 21, 1922, by Hallawell Seed Co., San Francisco." This individual bed, as a matter of fact, was already past, but the idea is the same in all, and anyone in the trade can have the same publicity and have his plants taken care of absolutely free. This is an exceptionally favorable opportunity that should be taken advantage of by all.

Some of the Features.

It is not intended to name anything like all the features, but a few may be noted with advantage. The Waller Seed Co., of Guadaloupe, Cal., has a collection of thirty-three varieties of eschscholtzias. Frank Warner, of Inglewood, and Howard & Smith, of Los Angeles, both have beds of gladioli in great variety, which are now attracting much attention, owing to their vigor and fine color. Howard & Smith have some half-dozen varieties of verbenas of their own raising, planted in large blocks, a fine feature. They also have a large number of their aster novelties coming on. John Bodger & Sons Co. has sown fourteen beds, each 30x60 feet, to zinnias, each bed being a distinct variety. This will make a wonderful display and give visiting seedsmen a chance to see in a short time most of the novelties that this firm is growing for its wholesale trade to seedsmen only.

An attractive feature is the bed of choice petunias from the Theodosia B. Shepherd Co., of Ventura, Cal., and it shows plainly that this firm is maintaining its lead in these favorite flowers.

Theodore Payne's big specialty is native vegetation, and his four large beds of native flowers, arranged in colors, caused a great deal of interest.

Walter Armacost & Co. planted a bed of Amaryllis Belladonna, with a ground cover of Asparagus Sprengeri, a pleasing combination.

In the formal walk running the whole length of the garden, there are flower beds, mostly arranged with carpet bedding and other low subjects. Here Roy F. Wilcox & Co. and the Jannoch Nurseries, of Pasadena, have joined forces to elevate the line and break up any flatness. The Wilcox contributions consist of eighty fine, trimmed globe boxwoods, while Messrs. Jannoch sent thirty-six beautiful standard or tree roses, showing the advantage of this style of planting.

From North and South.

With characteristic willingness to help out, the MacRorie-McLaren Co., of San Francisco, sent down fourteen beautiful varieties of heather and, while it is too soon to say just how these will do in the south, it will at least be of interest and an education to note their behavior.

W. B. Clarke, of San Jose, Cal., has a fine bed of rose novelties now in full bloom and an interesting sight.

To balance the above on the opposite side, Howard & Smith planted a similar bed with their novelties. George C. Groenewegen, of Pasadena, maintains a fine display of pentstemons, and many other local firms, including Morris & Snow Seed Co., Germain Seed & Plant Co., Aggeller & Musser Seed Co., of Los Angeles; Sanborne, of Oakland; San Joaquin Seed Co., of Modesto, and many others, are helping out. Phloxes, stocks, snapdragons and similar exhibits are shown by these firms and go a long way to keep up the display.

A fine fall feature will be the planting of dahlias under the auspices of the California Dahlia Association, which is giving a premium for the best seedling raised during the last three years. This has brought out a strong competition and the results will be looked for with interest. All around the garden is a planting of coprosma, with nasturtiums in front. The glossy green of the former shows up the flowers of the latter to perfection.

Lily Pond.

Last, but by no means least, must be mentioned the great lily pound in the center. Here is a most magnificent display of all the finest water lilies in commerce. They are simply grand, immense flowers of the most telling and attractive colors and a never-failing drawing card. When it is said that the best varieties in the late Mr. Sturtevant's collection, the cream of the Balboa park collection at San Diego, and Allen's Water Gardens, of Los Angeles, are grouped here, those who know water lilies will appreciate this feature. Mr. Howard, realizing that it is impossible to keep the greensward in good condition around such a popular exhibit, is arranging to plant a lot of named irises, tritomas, hemerocallis and similar plants to border the pond.

Besides O. W. Howard, who superintends the gardens, the committee consists of Walter Armacost, chairman; John Bodger, Jr., secretary; W. M. Hertrich and J. D. Meriweather, any or all of whom are at all times willing to give full particulars to anyone interested.

Taken by and large, this is a most unusual and excellent way for the trade to meet its customers, the general public, and those who have not already taken advantage of it should do so at once. H. R. R.

The Market.

For several days there has been a clean-up at the market and anything in the way of good stock has been scarce enough to bring the retailers in early. Besides this, there is still a considerable quantity of trashy stock that ought not to be offered at all, and this stock is naturally left on the hands of those who bring it. Dahlias are still on the scarce side, as growers in many cases had to cut their plants back, owing to red spider and thrips, but the flowers coming in now are cleaner and there is every prospect of better things from now on. Gladioli are now bringing prices that pay the grower, and, without doubt, the later flowers will show a good profit. Roses are still behind the average in quality, but they sell well at that. The average daisies, cornflowers and such stock look as though they had been in a hay press. Asters are improving, but are not yet at their best. Zinnias are fair only, and the large, double marigolds are not up to their usual form for this season. Retailers are fairly busy, but a good many of the staff are on vacations, and the principal outlet for stock is funeral work.

Various Notes.

Emil Brinkmeyer left July 15 for a short vacation trip to San Diego. He has been working double time at the Wall street and Wintersburg nurseries since Mr. Dieterich left for Europe and it looks as though he had a holiday coming.

Joseph Perotti, of the L. A. Evergreen Co., is away on a vacation and, as soon as he returns, N. Gondolfo will take a northern business trip before departing on his vacation.

Gebhardt Prechtl says that he is well sold up on all the larger sizes of freesias.

A call on Robert Mesick at his nursery on the Whittier road found him busy with his freesias. None of the bulbs in this section have been up to size this year, but Mr. Mesick has fine stock, both of Purity and the colored varieties, mostly mixed Rainbow. It looks as though a good number of the Purity will run from 5/8-inch to 3/4-inch, as they have been grown on fairly loamy soil and will not shrink.

W. Kent, of the American Florists' Exchange, says that business is better now at the market than it has been for some time, and the appearance of the stands early in the day bears out what he says.

R. Groves, of the Berkeley Florists, Berkeley, Cal., was here last week calling on old friends and incidentally being shown around by his old friend and co-worker, R. Overstreet, of S. Murata & Co.

In line with this, it may be mentioned that S. Murata keeps smiling, so business must be good at Los Angeles street. This firm is always prepared for business and stock of all kinds can always be seen in the best of condition here.

John Finken has sold practically all of his ornamental nursery stock to the Morris & Snow Seed Co. His young fruit stock looks fine, and he has a nice lot of heather coming along for next winter's sales.

On his return from Texas, Walter Armacost, of W. Armacost & Co., was loud in his praises of the hospitality and friendly feeling of the florists of the Lone Star state. He says that the trip was educational as well as enjoyable from every angle. Roy Chezum, head of the shipping department at the store here, has just returned from his vacation. He has bought a new coupe, as he along with many more has been converted to the covered car idea.

The E. C. Amling Co. is continually adding to its line of supplies and practically everything in the trade is here. Shipping stock here, as elsewhere, is on the short side, but fine asters and gladioli are going out.

N. Gondolfo, of the L. A. Evergreen Co., reports business good. H. R. R.

W. B. Clarke is here, at the Hotel Armondale, on his regular summer trip. As usual, he motored down from San Jose by way of the San Joaquin valley, through the intense heat. On the coolest day the temperature was 103 and on the hottest it was 108, but the air is so dry there that the heat is not so uncomfortable as the figures make it sound. Mr. Clarke will go as far south as San Diego before returning north. He reports business most satisfactory, but foresees a shortage of roses in the better kinds this season.

451 BUSH STREET, SAN FRANCISCO, CALIFORNIA

SAN FRANCISCO, CAL.

The Market.

Stock was plentiful last week, but business was quiet. The first asters were in and were bringing good prices. Both the quality and the quantity of the asters will have improved before the end of the month. A few chrysanthemums also found their way into the market, but it will be some time before the mums are of good shipping quality. Dahlias were plentiful and there were plenty of gladioli of excellent quality. Carnations were fairly good and were quite plentiful. Good roses were somewhat scarce, but there was a fair supply, especially of short-stemmed stock. White roses were a good deal in evidence and baby roses were plentiful. Other stock with which the market was plentifully supplied consisted of rubrum lilies, Easter lilies, poppies, gillyflowers, delphiniums, gaillardias, snapdragons, cornflowers, scabiosas, which had just come in; pansies, zinnias, mignonettes, forget-me-nots, lilies of the valley and marigolds. Gardenias were reported to be rather scarce and orchids were just about meeting the demand.

Various Notes.

Adrian J. Schoorl has been digging his anemone and ranunculus bulbs, which, he states, have been doing exceedingly well. "I have just got a special permit from Washington to import from Holland 250,000 anemone and ranunculus bulbs, in order to go into the business more extensively," said Mr. Schoorl. "I also have a permit from Washington for 100,000 Spanish irises, to be imported from Holland for purposes of propagation. The freesia business is good in California-grown bulbs, although the crop is rather short this year in the larger sizes."

J. A. Axell's brother, E. F. Axell, who has been with him in the business for some time, recently went on a vacation trip to Minnesota. News has just reached here of his marriage. He and his bride are expected back some time in August. Mrs. J. A. Axell, with her mother and sister, is spending two weeks at Glen Alpine, Lake Tahoe. There was a '49 celebration in Albert O. Stein's decorated basement last week, which was attended by a number of leading growers and retailers. Those present are still wondering whether it was skill or just luck that made Mr. Axell the winner in most of the events.

P. D. Mortensen, San Francisco manager for the E. W. McLellan Co., is away on his vacation, visiting Los Angeles, San Bernardino and other southern points. The shipping business of this firm was better than had been expected for the summer season.

Mrs. Darbee wrote to General and Mrs. Gooch from London that she had appointments with several of the leading English florists, whom she hoped to interest in the American F. T. D. Mrs. Gooch designed a much-admired funeral pall last week of sweet peas, orchids and lilies of the valley. Darbee's is shipping its first asters of the year.

L. Picetti, of the Charles C. Navlet Co., reports that orchardists around San José are complaining of the red spider in their fruit trees. As a consequence, the Charles C. Navlet Co. is selling a large number of sprayers and quantities of sulphur. This remedy is proving satisfactory.

The San Francisco Coöperative Flower Market, which handles Burlington willow ware baskets, has purchased and installed a paint-spraying machine.

Frank Rieth, Jr., New Orleans, La., and Mrs. Rieth have been spending a week here and have called on some of the trade.

Frank Thatcher, of Pelicano, Rossi & Co., has returned from the Yosemite valley, where he spent an enjoyable vacation. J. Kilroy, of Pelicano, Rossi & Co., is expected back from a vacation spent at Seattle. Frank D. Pelicano will not leave his dahlia interests at present. Mr. Pelicano is always one of the main supporters of the dahlia show at the Palace hotel.

F. W. Davis is just cutting the first of a choice pansy crop. He imported thirty different strains, some of them having won medals from the Royal Horticultural Society and the Royal Botanical Society of England. Mr. Davis intends to select the best plants among his pansies and violas and propagate from them.

Podesta & Baldocchi have been busy with floral work for the funeral of the late Mrs. Louis Bamburger, of the St. Francis hotel. Dante Bacigalupi, of this firm, designed a rose pall, with a long fringe of Columbia and baby roses. There were numerous costly floral tributes. Three members of the staff are vacationing on the Russian river, William Pagannini, the florist whistler, is at Adams' Springs.

George P. Wagner, of Joseph's, is expected back from an automobile trip to San Diego with his family. B. M. Joseph has had two of his greenhouses planted with American Beauty roses. "I believe the demand for these roses will be good, and apparently we shall be alone in having them," said Mr. Joseph, who is busy arranging to have novelties for autumn.

F. C. Jaeger & Son have been drying a large quantity of strawflowers and expect to begin filling their shipping orders before the end of the month. A good season is anticipated by this firm both in strawflowers and in general business.

The California Floral Co. expects that business in the apartment house district will improve greatly when school vacation is over, early in August, and people return to the city.

The Suzanne Floral Co. had an elaborate banquet at Tait's for a bankers' organization. There were some 300 guests, the rooms being decorated with gladioli and dahlias and the tables with roses. A star of roses marked the speakers' table.

Brown & Kennedy have been busy with funeral work. Charles Brown states that the telegraph business is keeping up in a satisfactory manner.

T. Honda, of Enomoto & Co., states that they have bought a color-spraying machine, in order to give the required colors to their Statice latifolia, of which a large stock is already dried. This feathery strawflower is better suited for artificial coloring than most immortelles. S. Enomoto, president of the corporation, is enjoying a vacation with his family on the Russian river. M. M.

PORTLAND, ORE.

John Bodger, the well known seedsman of Los Angeles, called on the trade in this city about a week ago.

H. N. Gage, of Montebello, Cal., visited last week, and called at the various greenhouse establishments.

The funeral of a well known Japanese resident provided considerable business for several downtown stores one day last week.

R. J. Anninger, representing W. B. Clarke, of San Jose, Cal., called on the trade and took in the Pacific Coast Nurserymen's Association's convention last week.

Harry Newell reports the planting of two new houses in carnations. Mr. Newell was formerly with Fred M. Young.

R. E. Gehr is spending a few days at the beach on vacation.

An account of the twentieth annual convention of the Pacific Coast Association of Nurserymen, held here July 11 to 13, appears in the Nursery Trade Department in this issue. N. V. H.

Milwaukee, Wis.—Gustave Holtz & Son are building a new place on a corner adjacent to their old stand. There will be a store building embodying all modern features, with apartments above and a conservatory at the rear. The American Greenhouse Mfg. Co. is putting up the show house and the A. L. Randall Co. will install the fixtures. It is planned to have the new place ready for an opening in the autumn.

HAVE YOU SEEN THE NEW WRIGHT FERN?

WRIGHT'S FLOWER SHOP

A PAGE OF HINTS AND HELPS FOR THE RETAIL FLORIST

FOR BASEBALL STAR.

The "Babe Ruths" of today may be able to bat the ball over the outfielder's head and lose it in the bleachers, winning an uproar of applause from the grand stand players, but when these competitors for American fame lay down their work of creating sport for others, it is the florist who makes the final tribute of appreciation.

Having been given the responsibility of making a funeral piece for a baseball star and being inspired by his great love for the game, C. C. Jennings, manager of the Kemble Greenhouse, Marshalltown, Ia., put forth his every effort and produced an appropriate funeral design worthy of note. In the accompanying illustration, Mr. Jennings is seen, with his two helpers, Delno Pickering and Floyd Peterson, to the left and right of him respectively.

As can be seen from a glance at the cut, the background of the design is square in shape. Constructing the design in the mind's eye from the outer edge toward the center, the make-up is as follows: The outer edge consists of two rows of Simons carnations. The space in each corner between the first two rows of carnations and the first outer circle of the design is filled with Ophelia roses and maidenhair. The first ring is made of Simons carnations, followed by the next inner ring of magnolia leaves. This is followed by a ring of white carnations, which make the background for the lettering on the design. The final inner ring is made of smilax and gypsophila, while the baseball itself consists of white carnations, with Columbia roses in its seams. The entire piece is, indeed, a testimony to the expertness of its designer, and it caused much comment at the time of its appearance.

ANNIVERSARIES.

Florists are paying more and more attention to birthdays, wedding anniversaries and the like. A few always have kept a card index of the vital dates in their customers' lives. Since some of those few have told others how well that card index paid, the practice has spread rapidly. If you haven't a card index, begin one this summer and get it working by cold weather.

Some florists ask patrons to fill in a card some time when they drop in the store. Others send a form letter to those on their books, asking the anniversary dates of the members of the household. Then a postcard, or letter, remindful of the occasion, is sent out a week or two before the date. Not always, of course, but frequently enough, the orders come in response.

FEATURING THE REMEMBERER.

When the big flower days of the year come around, they overshadow for a moment the everyday occasions that mean much to certain individuals at many different times—Dad's birthday, sister's birthday, mother's birthday, the wedding anniversary, and many others. These events are taking place day after day and they are being forgotten by friends and relatives day after day.

Mosmiller the Florist, of Richmond, Va., wants those concerned to remember and he is helping them to do so with a neat green folder, 3½x11 inches in size, folded in such a way that the words "Do You Remember?" alone appear. On opening the folder, the customer is reminded that birthdays, wedding anniversaries, etc., are important and that a good way to pay due regard is with flowers. Says the folder in part: "And flowers so beautifully express you. They are always in good taste, always right, always timely and always so welcome. The man who counts is the man who remembers."

That last line has a punch to it and, printed in boldface, pulls many new customers into the store. Of course, the service of the telegraph delivery is also noted in the folder.

HOW'S YOUR WINDOW?

At this time of year the retail florist is tempted to order stock sparingly, fill his windows with palms and ferns, and find the coolest spot in the store to while the time away. It is a tradition that summer is dull. But facts, established by energetic persons, upset traditions, a relic of bygone days. The florist who tries, does business in July and August as well as the rest of the year, whether funerals are numerous or not.

One way to bring in buyers is to fill your windows with bright, cheerful flowers—some that make passers' spirits perk up when they catch a glimpse of them from under the handkerchief with which they are mopping their brows. Put price cards on the vases, so that the passer whose interest is aroused can see what his silver will purchase at this season. He or she will conclude that what brightened the spirits from a florist's window will do as much on the library or sun parlor table.

Yes, some of the flowers in the window will be a total loss these hot days. But there will be a good profit on the numbers you sell, enough to make the window decorating a cheap means of advertising.

AWNING OWNER'S LIABILITY.

That the florist or other store owner who neglects to use due care to keep an awning over a public sidewalk in front of his place of business in such condition as to safeguard pedestrians against danger is running a risk of legal liability, is shown by the decision of the Massachusetts Supreme Judicial court in the recent case of Dalton vs. Great Atlantic & Pacific Tea Co., 145 Northeastern Reporter 318.

The court allowed judgment in plaintiff's favor on account of injury sustained when she collided with an iron bar supporting a movable awning maintained in front of one of defendant's stores in Boston, while she was walking along a sidewalk at night. The awning was down and the bar had dropped into such position that any pedestrian was liable to collide with it, although defendant offered testimony that the bar was in safe position when the store was closed that evening.

It is decided that no one is entitled to maintain an awning over a sidewalk, excepting as authorized by state statute or local ordinance; and that where such a structure is left down when the sun is not shining on the part of the building to which it is affixed, as required by ordinance permitting its maintenance, it becomes a nuisance, rendering the person maintaining it liable for all injuries resulting to others as a direct consequence. The Market.

The wholesale market, as usual at this time of the year, is not in good condition. Business among the retailers is down to the summer level. The demand at the various wholesale establishments is largely for funeral work.

As to cut stock, the market has been short on first-class roses; the hot weather has made a decided difference as to quality. Premier and Columbia are among the roses arriving at present.

Most of the consignments in carnations are poor. There are plenty of field-grown blooms in the market. Asters are coming in, but these are small and short-stemmed. The dry spell retarded the young plants early in the season.

Gladioli are the only flowers that exceed the demand. A large cut of these is looked for, owing to recent rains. America, King and Schwaben lead in demand. Mixed varieties are selling cheaply.

There is plenty of outdoor stock on the

Its Danger

Last night I slept in a portable auto camp tent with a neighbor of mine.
The wind slapped and flapped its sides.
The rain pattered and pelted on every inch of the canvas.
I couldn't sleep a wink thinking of what would happen if the blooming thing started to leak; or the strain of a stronger gust than usual should pull up a tent stake, and over the whole thing would go.

My friend slept on, oblivious.
He wasn't bothering.
He was asleep in smug contentment.

Of a sudden it happened, and the tent went flat and before we could get it up again, and extra guy ropes in place, we were soaked.
I sure was sore.
"Confound it," said I, "why didn't you put those extra guy ropes on in the first place? Why such contentments?"

All of which makes me wonder if sometimes some of us florists are not too smug in our contentment?
It may be some of us are trying to do business without guy ropes.
When some of the live wires tell me the surprising amount of F. T. D. business they are doing, I say to myself, "Here's a fellow who has at least one extra guy rope out."
Which may or may not be a hint.

market. The quality is much improved over that of a few weeks ago. Among the best sellers are gypsophila, candytuft, feverfew, daisies, cornflowers and gaillardias.

Easter lilies are exceedingly good and are much in demand. Valley and orchids of first quality are scarce.

Smilax was short of the demand last week. Asparagus plumosus and A. Sprengeri had a big week, as did flatferns, which are none too plentiful in this market.

Various Notes.

The board of directors of the St. Louis Flower Growers' Association will meet at publicity headquarters August 1, at 2:30 p. m. Matters will be discussed on plans for advertising for the fall and winter months. A meeting date will be set for the association, at which time nine directors will be elected. Chairman L. Jules Bourdet of the board says he expects all to be present, since the matters above referred to are of much interest to the board members.

Joseph Mathis, the Odell avenue grower, is building a new greenhouse, 25x100, using material furnished by the J. C. Moninger Co., Chicago. When completed, this house will have increased Mr. Mathis' range to 10,000 feet of glass. He grows plants for the local trade.

The St. Louis County Growers' Association will hold its monthly meeting August 2, at the Eleven Mile House. At this time the installation of officers will take place. W. A. Rowe will give a talk on the St. Louis district meeting, held at Rock Island, Ill. The annual picnic will also be discussed.

Officers of the St. Louis Florists' Club will meet in conference August 3, at the new home of Vice-president Schaeffer, 7031 Pershing avenue. At this time an attractive program will be arranged for the club's meeting at Kirkwood, August 10. The annual election will take place at this meeting.

Philip Goebel, Jr., at Kirkwood, with his addition of last year, has nearly 100,000 feet of glass. Mr. Goebel grows mums, carnations, sweet peas and bulbous stock.

Albert W. Gumz, head of the A. W. Gumz Wholesale Floral Co., received many congratulations on his seventh wedding anniversary last week.

Vincent J. Gorly and Mrs. Gorly are away on a short vacation trip among the northern lakes.

Frank X. Gorly and Mrs. Gorly will be away the greater part of August. Mr. Gorly is rounding up the members of the trade for the S. A. F. convention, at Kansas City. The St. Louis party, he says, will be larger than that traveling to any previous convention.

Paul T. Heil has made many improvements, including additions. More room is needed by this fast growing florists' shop. Mr. Heil says that the last season was excellent in all lines.

Oliver K. Sanders, head of the wholesale department of the Sanders Nursery, with his family, has returned from a few weeks' stay among the northern lakes. While Mr. Sanders was absent, his brother Frank was in charge.

F. H. Weber, with Mrs. Weber and their two charming daughters, will depart for a summer trip, to be spent in eastern resorts. Mr. Weber says he will visit New York city, Philadelphia, Boston and Atlantic City. He will miss this year's S. A. F. convention.

W. H. Kruse, with his family, will start August 5 on a motor trip to the far east. He will visit New York, Boston, Philadelphia and Atlantic City. Fred Decker manages Mr. Kruse's Kirkwood greenhouses and has everything in first-class shape for the coming season.

The opening of the new wholesale house of the George Pieser Wholesale Floral Co. took place July 19. William Smith got the bill to the one having made the first purchase. The Windler Wholesale Floral Co., the A. W. Gumz Wholesale Floral Co., F. C. Weber, Julius Schaeffer and Thomas Carr sent the new firm presents. All the men visitors received cigars and the ladies got boxes of candy. The officers of the company are: President, George H. Pieser; secretary, George I. Berger; treasurer, Arthur F. Beyer.

Tuberculosis day, July 19, at the American League baseball park drew a crowd of 20,000 and among them was a good sprinkling of retailers and wholesalers. The score books and bags of peanuts contained prizes. Thomas Carr won a player piano; Oscar Ruff won a fern; Charles Kuehn got a bottle of Coca Cola; Frank Windler won a box of safety pins; H. Berning won some chewing gum, and George Kuehner got a can of talcum powder.

While at Rock Island, Ill., the writer had the pleasure of visiting the greenhouse establishment of the L. Stapp Co. This firm has more than 200,000 feet of glass planted in roses and carnations. The large crowd of visiting florists there July 18 was amazed at the fine condition of the young plants. The writer also visited the establishments of the Davis Floral Co., William Goos, Julius Staack & Sons and Henry Gaethje. All the visitors were much taken with several large beds of large-flowering verbenas, which proved to be Lady Temple and and Beauty of Oxford. It is claimed that no seeds of these are obtainable, but that cuttings are easily rooted. The writer also visited G. F. Forber, the Bills Floral Co. and J. R. Tuckis. All had plenty of work and reported splendid summer business.

Oscar C. May, state vice-president of the S. A. F. for eastern Missouri, reports that he will arrange with the Missouri Pacific road for two special cars to carry the St. Louis delegation to the Kansas City convention, as one and one-half fare has been authorized. The total round trip will be $15.06; lower berth, $3.75; upper berth, $3; drawing room, $13.50. The time of leaving will be August 14 at 10.10 p. m., arriving at Kansas City at 7:30 a. m., August 15.

GROWERS AT ROCK ISLAND.

In Midsummer Meeting.

The midsummer meeting of the St. Louis district of the National Flower Growers' Association, held July 17 and 18, at Rock Island, Ill., in the New Harper House, was one of the best and most largely attended meetings the district has ever held. The attendance numbered over 100, which included florists in all branches from Davenport, Ia., Rock Island, Ill., and Moline, Ill.

The executive committee meeting opened the first day at 10 a. m. Chairman Walter Amling presided. The following answered the roll call: W. J. Pilcher and W. A. Rowe, Kirkwood, Mo.; J. F. Ammann and Henry Blixen, Edwardsville, Ill.; L. Stapp, Rock Island, Ill.; Iles Cole, Springfield, Ill.; James N. Cole, Peoria, Ill.; F. Washburn, Bloomington, Ill.; C. E. DeWever, Olivette, Mo., and J. J. Beneke, St. Louis, Mo. Thos absent were Philip Daut, Decatur, Ill., and W. J. Hembreiker, Springfield, Ill.

In regard to the place and date of the next meeting of the district, it was decided to recommend that the annual meeting take place at St. Louis, Mo., and that the date be changed from January to November, the week of the fall flower show, November 7 to 12, the newly elected officers to take hold January 1, 1923.

Much Business Transacted.

The next executive committee meeting was discussed. A motion prevailed that the next meeting of this committee be held September 19, at 8 p. m., this being the opening date of the Illinois state fair. The invitation to meet at Springfield was extended by Iles Cole, of Springfield.

The resignations of J. M. Walther, of St. Louis, Mo., and Mrs. M. L. Copeland, of Marion, Ill., were accepted.

All visitors were royally entertained by the members of the Tri-City Florists' Club and the committee, Ludwig Stapp, T. R. Tuckis, William Goos and Henry Gaethje.

A letter from Secretary L. C. Vinson, of the Ohio district, was read in regard to valuable papers by R. Hadlow on "Greenhouse Heating," and one by Herman P. Knoble, of Cleveland, on "Costs in the Greenhouse." The matter was placed in the hands of a committee consisting of F. Washburn, C. E. DeWever and Iles Cole, these to report at the afternoon meeting.

The executive committee decided to recommend at the general session that the dues of those members who are in arrears for last quarter be canceled and payment be accepted of $10, 1922 dues, this being the new flat rate.

A letter from Jackson & Perkins Co., Newark, N. Y., on quarantine 37 was read and fully discussed and referred to J. F. Ammann for final action.

At 11 a. m. the following committees held meetings and prepared reports for the afternoon's meeting: The pot plant growers', the cut flower growers', the purchasing, the auditing and the two membership committees.

At noon luncheon was served in the hotel, all tables being artistically decorated with flowers.

Afternoon Session.

The regular meeting of the district opened promptly at 2 p. m., with a large attendance. President Amling opened the meeting and introduced Martin Rudgren, representing Mayor Schriver, who was absent from the city. Mr. Rudgren welcomed the members to Rock Island and assured them of the freedom of the city, expressing the hope that they all return in the near future for another meeting. President Walter Amling responded in his usual splendid style.

The secretary's report showed a balance on hand of $777.79. Treasurer Rowe's report corresponded with this report, both being approved by the auditing committee.

The chair introduced Dr. P. A. Lehenbauer, of the University of Illinois. Dr. Lehenbauer's subject was "More about Fertilizers for Greenhouse Soils," which was of great interest to all present. At its conclusion, Dr. Lehenbauer was asked many questions regarding various soils. This was followed by a lengthy discussion on the paper. A rising vote of thanks was extended Dr. Lehenbauer for his interesting paper. It was printed in full in last week's Review.

The recommendations of the executive committee were read by Chairman Amling. First, that of cancellations of members' back dues, provided they come in on the flat rate of $10 per year, beginning January 1, 1922; second, the change of the annual meeting from January to November and appointment of next meeting place as St. Louis; third, that the next executive committee meeting be held in September, at Springfield, Ill. All three recommendations were accepted.

New Members.

The membership committees, one from Missouri and one from Illinois, reported eighteen applications. The Missouri committee won the contest with eleven new members, as the Illinois committee had only seven. The new members obtained by the Missouri committee were: William Winter, Kirkwood, Mo.; L. Baumann, St. Louis, Mo.; Joseph Hauser, Adolph Fuchs, E. Mackley, Herman Erselius, of Webster Groves, Mo.; Werner Bros., Clayton, Mo.; W. H. Kruse, Mrs. Ida Bruenig, St. Louis, Mo.; Charles Hecht, Anglum, Mo.; George B. Windler, St. Louis. Those obtained by the Illinois committee were: H. L. Hill, Geneseo, Ill.; Henry Gaethje, Rock Island, Ill.; F. A. Werback, Cambridge, Ill.; E. R. Patton, Davenport, Ia.; Julius Staack & Sons, Moline, Ill.; R. E. De Ryeke, Moline, Ill., and L. R. Larson, Middletown, Ill. A motion prevailed that they be enrolled as members; this gives the district a total membership of eighty-two.

The auditing committee reported that it had found the books of the secretary and treasurer correct and that it had allowed payments of bills to the amount of $133.12. The report was accepted.

The entertainment committee reported, through Chairman Stapp, as to the entertaining features provided by this committee during the stay of the visitors.

Committee Reports.

Chairman DeWever's pot plant committee reported and recommended the establishing of a pot plant exchange. This was fully discussed; a motion was carried that this association favor an exchange along these lines and that the report be filed and accepted. Then came up a discussion on condemning the practice of gladiolus bulb growers' shipping their flowers into markets in competition with the men to whom they sell their bulbs. This question brought out a lengthy discussion, which ended in a motion that this organization go on record as condemning the above practice and also condemning commission men consigning cut flowers of any kind to a retailer to be paid for at his convenience and at a price to suit himself. The resolution was fully discussed and carried by a full vote. A copy of these resolutions was ordered sent to all secretaries of districts of the national association.

W. A. Rowe, chairman of the purchasing committee, reported that many members did not take advantage of saving money by buying through this committee and that in future a monthly circular would be mailed to all members. Anyone purchasing through this committee must accompany his order with a check; no further charge will be made. The report was discussed, approved and accepted.

The meeting then adjourned. Members met again at 8 p. m. President Amling introduced, with a few humorous remarks, Oliver F. Davenport, of the Chamber of Commerce, Springfield, Ill. Mr. Davenport responded with a talk on "The Value of Pulling Together," and held the members for about an hour. There is no doubt that his remarks brought many things home to the members present. A rising vote of thanks was given the speaker for his most interesting address.

J. F. Ammann Speaks.

J. F. Ammann then brought up for discussion the St. Louis fall flower show. The discussion ended in a motion by James N. Cole that this district contribute $100 to be used as special prizes at the discretion of the committee in charge of the show, in the name of the St. Louis district. The motion prevailed. This was followed by a ringing talk by J. F. Ammann for the good of our association and his talk voiced the sentiment of all present. A rising vote of thanks was extended the speaker.

There being no further business to transact, the meeting adjourned.

Field Manager J. F. Ammann, of the F. T. D., called a conference for the morning of July 18, at 8 a. m., at which seventy-five were in attendance. Mr. Ammann showed by maps and statistics the growth of the association and the service it gives and how the members are to be divided into districts in the various sections throughout the country. The conference ended satisfactorily to the field manager. After this the visitors were taken in automobiles for a trip to the parks and growing establishments in Rock Island, Davenport, Bettendorf and Moline. A stop was made at Ludwig Stapp's establishment, where all were invited to a fine spread of refreshments and cigars. The return trip was made by way of the arsenal. J. J. B.

The Market.

There is more than an ample supply of flowers for all occasions and especially the gladioli. While the gladioli are popular and most useful flowers, there are some of the buyers that will not take them. With the weekly showers they have attained wonderful size, and many of them have as many as twenty buds on a stalk. Prince of Wales and Francis King are selling at 3 and 4 cents each. However, some of the growers are trying to hold the market to 5 and 6 cents.

Roses as a whole are being cleaned up daily at 5 cents for the shorter and as high as 15 cents for the longer, with Premier and Columbia and Russell leading the cutting. For summer roses they are mighty nice stock.

There are a few carnations coming in, mostly white, and these are worth 3 cents. Easter lilies and valley are still on the market at 6 cents for the valley and 15 cents for the lilies. The quality of the latter is good. Annual larkspur is coming to an end, while the snapdragons are holding their own. Coreopsis, zinnias and cornflowers are a glut on the market. Some fancy Shasta daisies are coming in at 2 cents. Buddleias and asters are making their first appearance. Japanese lilies are plentiful and are being used in funeral work. As a whole, last week was a quiet one, but Saturday, July 22, brought in more business than all the rest of the week put together.

Various Notes.

Merle Sage and wife are spending their two weeks' vacation at Lake Okoboji, Ia.

Minnesota. Mr. Hess has some fine fish stories to tell and reports some fine catches, among which was one 10-pound pickerel.

Miss Clara Shymanski is on the vacation list at the J. Bath store and is spending most of her time at David City, Neb.

C. E. Landon is making preparation for the erection of a new range of glass at his place located at 46 Charles street, Council Bluffs. Mr. Landon now has a small range in operation. In addition he is growing considerable hardy stock.

The following note appeared in the local paper this week: "Friends of Miss Emily Petersen waited in vain for her to appear in the Walther League parade, that they might present her with a beautiful corsage of pink roses as a token of their esteem. The corsage was made up by the employees of Hess & Swoboda, where Miss Petersen was formerly employed. The corsage was later presented to her at the picnic of the Walther League at Council Bluffs."

John H. Bath left with a party of friends for the second annual mountain hike. At Estes park they will join another party, and go on one of the famous Louis Byerly tours. The party returns July 30.

Among the out-of-town visitors with us last week were: Mr. Firshaw, of Pendleton, Ore.; George Dennis, of Detroit, Mich.; A. B. Cherry, of La Grande, Ore.; E. S. Gomes, of St. Louis; Mr. Steele, of Portland, Ore.

Harold Henderson returned last week after a most extensive trip through several states and reports conditions much more favorable in Omaha than in many other places. Miss Emma Swedland tenders her resignation, to take effect August 5, and Miss Mildred Shoberg, August 12. Miss Shoberg and Miss Swedland are planning to go to Denver, Colo., but as yet have not decided on what line of work they are going to follow.

President Hargadine, of the Omaha Florists' Club, reports that he is getting matters in shape for the annual florists' picnic, which in all probability will be held the early part of August.

George Swoboda and family are still traveling around the lakes of Minnesota. T. E. E.

TORONTO, ONT.

The Market.

Following a busy June, with an abundance of weddings and other events requiring flowers, July is extremely quiet. Large quantities of stock of all kinds are being sold at exceptionally low prices. There is a considerable amount of funeral work; otherwise, considerable quantities of flowers would find their way to the "can." A good supply of roses is on hand and some fine gladioli are being received.

Good news is being brought in by the sweet pea growers. For the last two or three years it has been practically impossible to get about Toronto a good quality sweet pea. This year, however, the growers tell us that they are going to surprise us with sweet peas of the finest quality. The climate this year has been conducive to good sweet pea growing. Some beautiful stock is the result.

Various Notes.

Gladiolus growers, including both professional and amateur, are exhibiting at the various flower shows and, as usual, there are some beautiful collections. The American Gladiolus Society last year had an exhibition at St. Thomas, which was one of the finest ever held. This year there will be another gladiolus exhibition at the same place, August 23 and 24. The American Society gave a great impetus to the Ontario enthusiasts, who formed an Ontario society. The results of the work being done by these two societies working together is reflected in the beautiful gladioli being shown in the shop windows.

We hope to meet many American florists at the annual convention of the Canadian Florists' and Gardeners' Association, at Montreal, August 8 to 11, inclusive. With W. Hall in charge of entertainment, visitors are assured of a good time, with something doing all the time. A big crowd is going from Toronto to enjoy the hospitality of the Montrealers, for which they are far famed. President W. E. Groves, of the John Connon Co., Hamilton, has had a busy year and will have a good report to make regarding activities, including the formation of the Council of Horticulture, a unification of effort of horticultural bodies to secure standardization in many lines, registration, etc. Vice-President Hay, of Brockville, is enthusiastic over the convention and the Jubilee convention will be one to be long remembered.

Some of the florists are taking advantage of the slack season to have their stores redecorated, ready for the anticipated big fall trade. J. J. H.

KANSAS CITY, MO.

The Market.

The market is oversupplied with gladioli. Growers are bringing in quantities every day. Demands for stock are light. Easter lilies are plentiful. Good Ophelia, Premier and Columbia roses are being shipped in.

Various Notes.

Walter Oberg's 5-year-old daughter, Augusta Oberg, is traveling through Missouri with a theatrical troupe. The little girl sings and dances unusually well for her age. She has appeared as a special feature at nearly all of the local picture theaters.

John Stevens has returned from a week's visit in Chicago.

John Klaus and Alpha Elberfield are in Chicago on business.

The Alpha Floral Co. had orders for three blankets last week. One was made of Halley gladioli, delphiniums, and Golden Rule roses; the second was

O. O. Rindom, of the Riverside Gardens Co., Emporia, Kan., is organizing an orchestra for the Kansas state convention. Mr. Rindom has been manager of the municipal band in Emporia for several years.

Samuel Murray sent a telegraph order to Edinburgh, Scotland, recently. The order was satisfactorily filled by Tait & Francis, new members of the F. T. D. in the Scotch capital. An acknowledgment of the order was received by Mr. Murray from the firm.

Chairmen of committees in charge of S. A. F. convention arrangements met July 19 at luncheon at the Midday Club. The results of their activities are told on a forward page.

The Kansas City Florists' Club held a business meeting Wednesday night, July 19. A report of the committee meeting held that day was given by W. L. Rock, general chairman of S. A. F. arrangements. The discussion of plans for the convention occupied most of the evening. J. C. Steinhauser, of Pittsburg, Kan., attended the meeting and subscribed $25 to the fund for paying expenses of the convention. J. E. K.

Edward A. Humfeld, who is chairman of the entertainment committee for the S. A. F. convention, has gone with his family to Yellowstone park.

$2 to $6 per hundred. The leading varieties are Russell, Mock and Columbia. A few good Ophelia and Butterfly are also to be had. Some short-stemmed Beauties are making their appearance in the market and are being used in the red-rose class and sell at from $6 to $8 per hundred.

Gladioli are plentiful now and there are quantities of local and shipped-in stock of excellent quality to be had. The price last week ranged from $4 to $8 per hundred. Asters are beginning to find some demand, although the quality is not good. They are bringing from $2 to $4 per hundred. Buddleia is finding a pretty good demand, selling from $2 to $4 per hundred sprays. The stock is good.

Carnations are small, but white and pink are always used up and bring $2 per hundred. A considerable number of outdoor rubrum lilies are coming in. These work up well in baskets and in funeral work and sell readily.

Zinnias, marigolds, summer cosmos and other outdoor flowers are being offered at $3 per dozen bunches.

Easter lilies are good, but are moving somewhat more slowly, with a slackened demand. They are being quoted at $15 per hundred. They are being displaced in funeral work by gladioli, the latter obtainable at $4 per hundred; the retailers find them cheaper to use than lilies.

Orchids are plentiful and can be had at 50 cents and $1 each. Lily of the valley is selling at $6 per hundred. There seems to be a slight oversupply of this flower, as there are few wedding jobs now being booked.

Washington growers report good crops in the field, especially carnations. They have had a favorable season and stock is coming along in excellent shape. Practically all of the growers have their chrysanthemums and roses in now. The heavy rains have been a big help to the stock.

Various Notes.

Richard Bauer, at the George C. Shaffer store, has gone to Philadelphia on a two weeks' vacation trip. He will later visit Atlantic City, returning from that place to Washington.

Miss Louise Daugherty, of the Louise Flower Shop, motored in her new Kissel car to Montreal, Canada, going through the New England states.

Shaw Blackistone, 13-year-old son of J. Dan Blackistone, proved himself a hero last week when he rescued his younger brother, Frank, 12 years old, and a playmate, Kenneth Valentine, 10 years of age. The boys were in swimming in Rock Creek park, following one of the heavy rain storms, and Kenneth Valentine either fell or was pushed into the rushing water. He was soon in distress and Frank Blackistone went to his rescue. The drowning boy gripped the Blackistone lad and the two of them

J. Dan Blackistone, who was formerly located on Fourteenth street and moved to the Arcade market upon the expiration of his lease, will soon open a new store on Park road, near the corner of Fourteenth street. He is now putting in new fixtures. This store is near the proposed new Riggs National bank branch. The Riggs bank is one of the largest institutions in Washington and it is quite probable that it will bring a lot of trade to the locality into which Mr. Blackistone is moving. He also will open in the fall. T. N. S.

ROCHESTER, N. Y.

The Market.

The outdoor stock is plentiful and the quality keeps up well. Business last week was slack, although there was a steady demand for funeral work. Weddings have kept up well and there have been some medium-sized decorations, which helped materially. Garden flowers are selling well. Their sales are small, but many are used for small basket work. Carnations are slowing up considerably, but there is a fair demand for them. Gladioli, both greenhouse and outdoor stock, are reaching us in good supply. Excellent stock reaches us and fair prices are obtained. They are in good demand. The supply of roses is about as usual, but the heat is quite hard on them, especially those which are shipped from a distance. Sweet peas are in light supply, but their quality is good. Outdoor stock includes marigolds, candytuft, feverfew, larkspur, daisies and cornflowers. Early asters of good quality have made their appearance and sell well. A good quantity of gypsophila and physostegia reaches us daily and sells well.

Various Notes.

The family reunion of the Wilsons was held at the Durand-Eastman park Thursday, July 20. The usual good crowd participated in swimming and games and did justice to all of the eats provided. Both H. E. and Mrs. Wilson were in attendance, and apparently in good health. They are well over the 80-year mark and are both active.

Miss Jane Morris has been spending a week by the lakeside.

George Case, of the Exchange street store of James Vick's Sons, has recently returned from a trip to New York.

Some new city officials who went into office Monday, July 17, were the recipients of some fine baskets of flowers. Most of the uptown florists were busy for this occasion.

Charles W. Curtis is cutting some wonderful gladioli, among which are several new varieties. They sell rapidly.

Work already has been started for the Rochester exposition and horse show, which takes place during the first week in September. Charles H. Vick is most enthusiastic about the flower show which is held in connection with the exposition and which has been successful for the last few years. More

PITTSBURGH, PA.

The Market.

The market was good until Monday, July 17, when it suddenly dropped out of sight. There are great quantities of fine gladioli coming in, but prices are such that there will not be much encouragement to the growers.

There are still good roses to be had, such as Columbia, Premier, White Ophelia and Crusader. The supply has more than equaled the demand in everything.

Various Notes.

Miss Emma Maxwell is already arranging for her vacation at her summer cottage, at Van Buren Point, where she will retire shortly for a much needed rest.

Mr. Miller, of Towne & Miller, the retail florists of Sheridan, Pa., left for Philadelphia in his Studebaker, Wednesday, July 19.

Notice has been sent out announcing the Pittsburgh Florists' and Gardeners' Club's annual basket picnic for Wednesday, August 9, 1922, at Turner's park, near Perrysville. The invitation is extended to everybody to come and enjoy a day's outing. The committee announces dancing and other amusements.

Frank J. Zak, proprietor of the Greater Pittsburgh Floral Co., of East Ohio street, is spending his vacation at Cambridge Springs, Pa. He says that he is having a good time, that he is drinking lots of water and that he has gained

G. P. Weaklen & Co., in their new location, will have a modern store room with a store about thirty feet wide, which runs clear through to another street, on which the firm has a 2-story building erected. The second floor of this is used for storage room and the first floor as a garage. Between the garage and store proper, the company has erected a conservatory, which gives a beautiful display in the back of the store and makes it convenient for handling plants in severe weather.

The Zieger Co. in connection with its flower business has developed a wonderful business in birds. This firm has attracted the attention of all the bird fanciers and has become almost nationally known as a dealer in tropical birds of all kinds. The firm has probably some 1,500 to 3,000 on hand at any time. The store is visited by high school classes, kindergartens and people from a distance, who come into the city to visit them and see their wonderful collection. Mr. Gibson, of this firm, who has been ill, is not yet able to resume his duties in the store. H. J. H.

WORCESTER, MASS.

Retail conditions are all that could be desired during the heated period. Growers dispose of all stock readily. In some cases there is not enough to go around. The weather remains showery. Outdoor stock looks good, but considerable weeding faces the trade. Gladioli are appearing in large quantity.

Lange's store window is attracting scores of persons with a bit of rock work, ferns and a miniature waterfall.

Seed Trade News

AMERICAN SEED TRADE ASSOCIATION.
President, Alexander Forbes, Newark, N. J.; secretary, C. E. Kendel, Cleveland, O.

CURRENT quotations on Paper Whites are "by the each," not by the case as in other years—3½ cents to 5 cents, according to size of bulb.

CONSIDERABLE damage is reported to have been done in California sweet pea fields by the aphis, whose depredations the hot, dry weather has favored.

IN the production of green peas for canning in 1921, the farm value of which was $4,891,000, nearly 10,000,000 pounds of seed, valued at $1,900,000 at wholesale, was planted.

W. B. DAVIS Co., of Aurora, Ill., is about to offer, at $1 per bulb, it is said, a new Luther Burbank gladiolus named Elora. It is reported to be an unusually early-blooming seedling of America.

CONSIGNMENTS of Paper Whites are on the high seas on their way to the W. W. Barnard Co., Chicago, says President R. B. Howe. Some of them are on the Canada; most of them are on the Britannia.

THE policies that built a $2,000,000 seed business are told on page 15 of this issue by Henry Field, president of the Henry Field Seed Co., Shenandoah, Ia., in the article headed, "Built on Neighborly Spirit."

CABLES received by a Chicago house are to the effect that Holland firms are well equipped to take care of American needs on Dutch bulbs the coming season, despite unfavorable weather at earlier stages of growth.

C. O. WILCOX, formerly with the M. G. Madson Seed Co., Manitowoc, Wis.; the W. W. Barnard Co., Chicago; Wood, Stubbs & Co., Louisville, Ky., is now with S. M. Isbell & Co., Jackson, Mich., covering southern territory.

A DUST mixture of nicotine sulphate, for which the United States Department of Agriculture will supply a formula upon application, will keep the striped cucumber beetle from cucumbers, melons, squash and pumpkin vines.

C. D. COVENTRY, manager of the wholesale department of the W. W. Barnard Co., Chicago, says that his wife is slowly but gradually recovering from the results of the accident of last week, when she fell from an automobile. Concussion of the brain was caused, and the doctor's report was that only the thickness of her hair saved her.

SEED SALES LARGER.

The aggregate retail sales of seeds were greater during the 1922 selling season than they were in 1921, although still slightly below normal. The larger sales may be attributed to the general improvement in business conditions and to the more promising outlook for agricultural products this year.

The seeds for which the greatest general increase in sales is noted, according to data obtained by the United States Department of Agriculture, are sweet clover, Sudan grass and soy beans. Sales of other seeds are affected somewhat by the more extensive use of these crops in new as well as old areas where they are being substituted for red and alsike clover, millets and oats, and possibly other crops, in the crop rotation in many sections.

Sales of red clover, alfalfa and timothy seed were larger than last year in practically all sections, while alsike and crimson clover on the whole were smaller. Kentucky blue grass was greatly affected by the abnormally high price and short supply. Millet seed sales were erratic, some varieties being more in demand in a specific section than others. Cowpea sales increased appreciably in most sections, although sales in the southeastern states are reported to be ten per cent less than last year and eight per cent below normal.

Increases of three to fifteen per cent in the sales of vegetable seed are noted in all sections except the southeastern states. Dealers report that this is due largely to an increased truck crop acreage in many sections, but also to the planting of more home gardens.

SEED CROPS IN MIDDLE WEST.

Report as to the condition of the seed crops in Nebraska and Colorado is given by the J. C. Robinson Seed Co., Waterloo, Neb., and Rocky Ford, Colo., as follows:

Field and sweet corn—Conditions excellent in every respect. Nebraska has had plenty of rainfall this summer; the crop was late for a considerable time, but we think this has been overcome. The acreage is about normal, with little replanting.

Cucumber and muskmelon—These are both grown in the Rocky Ford district in Colorado; so conditions affecting one will affect the other equally. We believe the acreage about normal and the condition is good. Considerable replanting was necessary, on account of the insects and hail, but the extremely hot weather has brought on the crop, until it is as far along as usual. Numerous hails have about ruined the acreage north of the river and toward the Kansas line; one grower reports a loss of over 300 acres. In the Arkansas valley proper the condition is good and there were no late hails.

Watermelon—Our acreage being strictly in the north, the crop is hardly far enough along to predict yields. Last season we received from 400 to 800 pounds to the acre. However, as these crops are grown on land worth $400 to $500 an acre, we can usually look for high yields. Our acreage was increased over last year and the condition is excellent.

Squash and pumpkin—Eastern Nebraska summer squash and pumpkin are late, but are looking good. The majority of seed fields were planted twice and many four times; naturally, an early frost would be a calamity. Central Nebraska winter squash and pumpkin are poor. Many hails and insects have destroyed fifty per cent of the crops and the balance are poor. The acreage was larger than last year at planting time, but at present is much smaller.

Seed beans—Condition is excellent and the acreage is large, we believe. The hails in northern Colorado were numerous, but came mostly before the beans were planted.

The acreage of all seed crops in the middle west is no larger than is sufficient to take care of orders already on hand; we think, with an unfavorable fall, many shortages will be apparent.

REVISE BRITISH RULES.

The British ministry of agriculture has recently been in consultation with the representatives of the various interests concerned with a view to ascertaining whether, in the light of the experience gained since they came into operation August 1, 1921, any alterations are desirable in the terms of the seeds regulations which were made by the ministry in pursuance of the provisions of the seeds act of 1920.

As a result of these consultations, it has been decided to make certain minor amendments, which have now been incorporated in a new set of regulations. These new regulations will remain in draft form for a period of forty days, after which they will be made and presented to both houses of parliament in accordance with the requirements of clause 7 of the seeds act.

Apart from amendments of a purely drafting nature, the alterations will have the effect of:

(1) Specifically excluding lawn grass seed from the requirements of the regulations;

(2) Withdrawing the necessity for stating the percentage of pure germinating seed or "real value" in the case of a sale of grass or clover seed;

(3) Allowing alsike clover and white clover, when grown together, to be treated, for the purposes of the regulations, as one seed, provided they are declared as having been grown together;

(4) Requiring, for the purposes of testing, sprouted cereal seeds to be treated as an impurity;

(5) Reducing the authorized minimum percentage of germination in the case of broccoli and cauliflower from sixty-five to sixty; and

(6) Authorizing the sale of seed potatoes, the variety of which is less than the standard purity of ninety-seven per cent, provided they are specifically described as being of mixed varieties.

Copies of the draft regulations may be obtained on application to the secretary of the ministry of agriculture and fisheries, 10 Whitehall place, London, S.W. 1., England.

SEED-BORNE DISEASES.

Subject of Study.

The subject of seed-borne diseases came up for discussion at a meeting of the Crop Protection Institute in 1921. At that time Professor C. R. Orton, of Pennsylvania State College, was selected to investigate the subject. Since that time it has been brought before the American Phytopathological Society, with the result that Dr. M. F. Barrus, of Cornell University, and Dr. M. T. Munn, of the New York Agricultural Experiment Station, became associated with Professor Orton in the study of seed-borne diseases. The paper of Professor Orton presented at the joint meeting of the Association of Seed Analysts and the American Seed Trade Association, at Chicago, June 23, was highly interesting to the members of both those organizations.

He showed that the losses from diseases in our staple crops reach tremendous figures each year. He pointed out how such losses have been cut down by potato growers by a campaign in which they obtained disease-free seed potatoes. He declared that one of the most important and effective means of dissemination of disease is upon or within seeds, although, of course, there are other important ways of transmitting disease as well which need to be combated. He listed a number of common and troublesome diseases which are spread wholly or in part by means of the seed or fruit of their host plants. Common examples mentioned were the bacterial blight, mosaic and anthracnose of beans, most smut diseases of cereal crops, and black-rot and black-leg of cabbage.

Although in Europe the intensive cultivation of the soil makes it well-nigh impossible to find an area not infected with bacteria, he declared that in this country there are still extensive areas, not yet developed agriculturally, which might be protected from plant disease invasion. While admitting that soil infestation is an important problem, he asserted that soil parasites were of more importance in the warmer latitudes where weather conditions favor their perpetuation in the soil through the cold season.

"Looking at the whole field from an unbiased standpoint," he said, "we must admit that soil-infesting parasites are of great importance in crop production, but we cannot overlook the fact that seed-borne diseases are more numerous than soil-infesting ones and, from the standpoint of disease dissemination, greatly overshadow the latter as potential agents of destruction, particularly in new regions. Further than this, recent researches have shown that even these soil-infesting parasites may live from fall to spring on the seed and carry over the disease to the next crop. We appear to have no alternative hypothesis to account for the wide geographical distribution of the diseases of those plants which are propagated by seed or fruit.

Factors Important in Seed Production.

"There is no need to discuss particularly the details of seed production, but I do wish to mention the important and fundamental principles which should be recognized in all plant and seed production work. In my enumeration of these factors there is nothing significant in the order as presented. These factors as I see them are: 1. Inherent resistance or immunity to disease. 2. Freedom from disease-producing organisms which are carried by the seed. 3. Vitality. 4. Quality. 5. Productiveness. 6. Adaptability to environment. The last four of these factors have been the primary aim of practically all of the crop and seed improvement work of the past. It is only since 1900 that any attention has been given to resistance and freedom from disease, and even today these two factors are given minor consideration in plant improvement work. This is attributable to several reasons, perhaps the most important being the relatively recent development and recognition of plant pathology as compared with the older sciences, such as botany and plant breeding, which have molded the development of crop improvement up to the present time. It must now be recognized in the breeding of plants that the factors of resistance and immunity to disease are of equal importance, for many crops, with such factors as quality, productiveness, etc.

Methods of Attacking Problem.

"The logical place to make a start on the problems of seed-borne diseases is upon the seed-producing plots, whether these are on special experimental grounds or on farms under contract. It is essential that the person in charge of the work be thoroughly familiar with the diseases to which the crop is subject, or else a pathologist should be employed to look after this phase of the work. All seed planted should be disinfected, even when it is not known with certainty that seed-borne diseases attack the crop in question. Such disinfection insures greater probability of producing healthy plants.

The seed should be planted in clean, healthy soil so far as possible, unless it is the aim of the experimenter to discover disease-resistant plants, in which case the most severely infested soils should be utilized.

"It is important that the conditions for growing the crop throughout the season be as normal as possible, since the condition of the plants is frequently an important factor in predisposing to or preventing attacks by parasites.

"Field sanitation, selection of seed plants, harvesting seed, inspection, seed analysis, including the detection of infected seed, and germination are other important features, but it is not my purpose to treat these subjects in detail at this time. The relation of diseases to these various factors must be worked out by laboratory and field experiments, and the practice which should be followed will probably vary considerably according to the kind of seed being produced.

"While methods of detecting plant parasites upon or within seed have been developed by Bolley, Munn and others, undoubtedly new and more efficient methods will be found when this problem is adequately attacked and financed. While to some people it may appear to be a difficult task, we must remember that it will never be accomplished unless we join forces in coöperative effort.

SWEET PEA SEED

During the past season we have made a special study of Sweet Peas and have selected varieties best for the commercial grower that the market affords, and we have every reason to believe that our seed is as true to name, color and type as any offered.

Organization Required.

"A problem of this sort, which is of world-wide importance in that it affects crop production directly, should be supported by a carefully planned organization. A number of successful attempts have been made by individuals and companies organized for this purpose. We point with pride to the foresight of one of the members of the A. S. T. A. in such an effort. The corn work of E. D. Funk has already received national recognition and is highly praiseworthy. The Pedigreed Seed Co., of Hartsville, S. C., was organized for the production of disease-free seed. The Hickox-Rumsey Co., of Batavia, N. Y., is attempting just this sort of thing. Other concerns are probably planning work along this line. These efforts indicate a gradual awakening to the importance of recognizing the disease factor in seed and crop production, but unless the problem is organized on a larger scale, more provision made for research work, and a greater interest of the public aroused to an appreciation of what good seed means in production by means of systematic publicity and instruction, it will be years before conditions are appreciably remedied, and by that time irreparable damage is sure to result.

"Seed growers, seed dealers and distributors individually and in association should be vitally interested. The scientific men are already intensively interested. The botanists, plant breeders, pathologists and entomologists now stand ready to assist in every possible way, but these men are unable to accomplish much alone, since the entire business end is handled through commercial organizations.

"To accomplish our purpose, fundamental researches must be undertaken. We need to know much regarding the seed-borne diseases of many vegetable, forage and ornamental crops. They have been investigated only here and there. Better methods of seed disinfection are needed in some cases, particularly along the line of treating large quantities of seed. Almost nothing is known regarding the treatment of internally-borne parasites, except in the case of cereals, and even here new methods would likely result from further researches.

"Plant breeding work should be attacked anew with the modern viewpoint of combining disease-resistance with the other desirable factors, as has been done at Cornell University by Barrus in the case of Will's red kidney bean, resistant to anthracnose, and in the United States Department of Agriculture by J. B. Norton in the case of Washington asparagus, immune to rust. Search must be made for resistant or immune individuals for the purpose. Practically no systematic search for such plants has been made except in a few cases of field crops and certain cereals, and even here many fundamental principles involved have been overlooked."

CATALOGUES RECEIVED.

C. Keur & Sons, Hillegom, Holland, with an American branch at 5625 Mosholu avenue, New York, N. Y.—"Wholesale Catalogue of Bulbs and Plants," a well printed book of forty-three pages. The cover is embellished with a geographical picture which is emblematic of Holland's world-wide commerce in horticultural goods. The list of tulips occupies fourteen pages.

Henry A. Dreer, Inc., Philadelphia, Pa.—"Dreer's Midsummer List," illustrated; forty-eight good-sized pages, compiled and printed in the usual first-class Dreer fashion and bound in a handsome grayish green cover. Among the items listed are seeds for late sowing, bulbs, pot-grown strawberry plants, vegetable plants, tools and sundries. The strawberry plants are treated as a specialty and are offered in great variety, for immediate shipment.

SNAPDRAGON

Snapdragons have moved into first place with all wide-awake florists and are earning growers more money than any flower in cultivation. This is especially true among growers with a retail outlet. Splendid blooms may be had any month in the year, with a bumper crop over the three great flower days, Easter, Mothers' Day, and Memorial, extending throughout June graduations.

Snapdragons are easy to grow and good seed may be had at such small cost that there is no excuse for having inferior stock. Producing snapdragon seed is our one business and the ever increasing orders show how well we attend to it. Years of experience and our reputation are back of every packet of seed. See complete list below. First comes

A NEW ONE: We are happy to announce a new addition to our snapdragon family and introduce "HELEN," a gorgeous, delicate salmon, named for a daughter who graciously assisted in bringing our business through the critical world war period. Helen is a stately variety, medium tall, early and very prolific. We have never had so many pleasing comments by visitors and many advance orders have been placed. This variety will please the most exacting and should be in every collection. Prices as follows; no half packets sold:

Helen—Exquisite delicate salmon, a winner
Silver Pink—Soft silvery pink, marvelous producer
Golden Pink Queen—(1920) Immensely popular, very free
Hybrid—(1920) Delicate orchid shade of pink
$1.00 per pkt.

The KENILWORTH Giant Pansy Seed

No.
28. GIANT MASTERPIECE. A remarkable type, the curled wavy petals giving the flower a double appearance; large flowers of great substance, on long, strong stems. Trade pkt., 45c; ⅛ oz., $1.10; ¼ oz., $2.00; ½ oz., $3.80; 1 oz., $7.50; 4 oz., $27.00.

30. GIANT THREE AND FIVE BLOTCHED PANSIES. A superb mixture. Flowers large and of circular form and of great substance. The display of coloring is unsurpassed. A combination of almost every shade of rich, velvety colors; reds are particularly conspicuous, the petals being distinctly marked with three or five large, dark blotches. Trade pkt., 40c; ⅛ oz., 90c; ¼ oz., $1.65; ½ oz., $3.10; 1 oz., $6.00; 4 oz., $21.50.

32. GIANT PARISIAN. The flowers are of enormous size and beautifully marked, mostly five dark blotches on white and yellow ground; an unusually showy mixture. Trade pkt., 40c; ⅛ oz., 90c; ¼ oz., $1.65; ½ oz., $3.10; 1 oz., $6.00; 4 oz., $21.50.

34. GIANT BRONZE. A fine mixture of all shades of velvety brown bronze, Havana brown, mahogany and copper shades. Trade pkt., 40c; ⅛ oz., 90c; ¼ oz., $1.65; ½ oz., $3.10; 1 oz., $6.00; 4 oz., $21.50.

36. TRIUMPH OF GIANT. Remarkably beautiful. The imposing five-spotted flowers on long, vigorous stalks surmount the foliage in the most graceful manner, are of enormous size, perfectly round and of unusual substance. The individual petals are very broad and cover each other in such a manner as to make the flowers appear almost double, the border of every petal being conspicuously curled. The plants are of a robust growth and form compact bushes of a round shape. Trade pkt., 40c; ⅛ oz., 90c; ¼ oz., $1.65; ½ oz., $3.10; 1 oz., $6.00; 4 oz., $21.50.

40. GIANT BATH'S EMPRESS. The finest of fancy English Pansies. Flowers are very large, mostly frilled and blotched and of great substance and the colors are brilliant and varied. Trade pkt., 45c; ⅛ oz., $1.10; ¼ oz., $2.00; ½ oz., $3.80; 1 oz., $7.50.

70. ORCHID-FLOWERED, Mixed. A dwarf, free bloomer, with a range of delicate colors that do not exist in any other Pansies; a remarkable combination of light rose, shell pink, blush mauve, fawn, light brown, orange and chamois. Trade pkt., 35c; ⅛ oz., 75c; ¼ oz., $1.35; ½ oz., $2.60; 1 oz., $5.00; 4 ozs., $18.00.

No.
12. KENILWORTH GIANT PRIZE. I have improved this strain by selecting and saving seed from the best shaped flowers of the most gorgeous color for many years. It is of the blocked Masterpiece type. The plants distinguish themselves by their robust growth and healthy-looking foliage; they are deep rooted and stand the hot, dry weather better than most other varieties. The large flowers on long, thick stems are carried well above the foliage in the most graceful manner, are of enormous size and of good substance. The petals are exceedingly broad and cover each other in such a manner as to make the flowers appear almost double. The border of each petal being conspicuously undulated and curled, the gorgeous and varied colored blossoms of velvety texture, perfect form and giant size, frequently measuring 3½ inches in diameter; the ground color such as yellow, white, deep orange, mahogany brown, bronze blue, and endless variations. Most petals are beautifully marked with a large blotch, a few are self-colored. They are specially fine for planting under glass or outside for cut flowers at all seasons. Trade pkt., 60c; ⅛ oz., $1.35; ¼ oz., $2.60; ½ oz., $5.00; 1 oz., $10.00; 4 oz., $35.00.

10 KENILWORTH GIANT EXHIBITION is the very finest complete mixture ever sent out. Seed carefully saved only from marked plants of the best varieties, with the largest and best shaped flowers and richest coloring. It is impossible to convey an adequate idea of the delightful variations in color and markings of this unrivaled mixture. Trade pkt., 60c; ⅛ oz., $1.35; ¼ oz., $2.60; ½ oz., $5.00; 1 oz., $10.00; 4 oz., $35.00.

19. TRIMARDEAU GIANT PANSY, improved; it is far superior to the ordinary run of Trimardeau that is sold. It is a very showy class of vigorous, compact growth. Flowers of enormous size in all the self colors, blocked, striped, margined, etc. It is very doubtful if any other pansy will give as good satisfaction as the improved Trimardeau for all general purposes. Trade pkt., 35c; ⅛ oz., 75c; ¼ oz., $1.35; ½ oz., $2.60; 1 oz., $5.00; 4 oz., $18.00.

20. PRINCESS, the New Upright Pansy. This strain is entirely distinct from all others. It is absolutely compact, upright growing. The flowers are mostly blotched and frilled like the Masterpiece, of good form and heavy velvety texture, on heavy stems, carried well above the foliage. Attractive by the brilliancy of its colors. Trade pkt., 40c; ⅛ oz., 90c; ¼ oz., $1.65; ½ oz., $3.10; 1 oz., $6.00.

22. GIANT KENILWORTH STRAIN. The flowers are of perfect form and substance; many of the immense flowers are 3-inch. It is a striking collection of beautiful colors and markings, rich with shades of red, brown, bronze, mahogany and many others too numerous to mention. Light, medium or dark mixtures. Trade pkt., 40c; ⅛ oz., 90c; ¼ oz., $1.65; ½ oz., $3.10; 1 oz., $6.00; 4 oz., $21.50.

24 GIANT KENILWORTH SHOW is undoubtedly the largest flowered Pansy in the world; the immense flowers are of circular form. A beautiful collection of colors and markings. Trade pkt., 45c; ⅛ oz., $1.10; ¼ oz., $2.00; ½ oz., $3.80; 1 oz., $7.50; 4 oz., $27.00.

26. GIANT KENILWORTH CUT FLOWER MIXTURE. Is a distinct class by itself, surpassing all other strains as a cut flower for inside or outside growing; the large flowers are carried erect above the foliage on heavy stems, 6 or 7 inches long, in the most graceful manner, and stand the hot, dry weather well. Trade pkt., 45c; ⅛ oz., $1.10; ¼ oz., $2.00; ½ oz., $3.80; 1 oz., $7.50; 4 oz., $27.00.

Barteldes Seed Co., Lawrence, Kan., and Denver, Colo.—"Come to Barteldes for Bulbs." This bulb catalogue is not remarkably large—it contains sixteen pages—but it is notable for its accuracy, its attractiveness and its high grade in all respects. Among its illustrations are a baker's dozen of finely colored pictures. Besides bulbs and roots, it offers perennial and vegetable seeds for fall planting.

BUILT ON NEIGHBORLY SPIRIT.

you how I carry out policy number 4. I have a man in my organization by the name of Eldridge; he is the trouble man. A couple of paragraphs from an article in Seed Sense, entitled "Eldridge and His Troubles," will show you how I make folks feel that they are going to get a square deal every time they send their order to me. At the same time that I give them this feeling, I also put in a few ideas that show them some of the things they can do to avoid trouble. Here is what the article said:

"The railroad people got a little worse than common a while back, and Eldridge didn't do a thing but write to the state railway commission and the interstate commerce commission and tell his troubles, and first thing you know the general manager and the division superintendent of one of the express companies made a special trip clear here to Shenandoah to explain just how it all happened and promised that it never would happen again.

"So, if things don't go right or come right at your end of the line, remember that your country railroad agent isn't the whole works, as he generally imagines he is. Just pay his bill, make him give you a full receipt in writing, and then tell your troubles to us and send us the papers in the case and watch Eldridge start something.

"P. S. Eldridge came in just now, tearing his hair over a bunch of trouble letters. One man ordered some alfalfa seed, and when it was shipped the railroad people marked it on the freight bill as 'one bag clover seed.' The man went straight up in the air when he saw the bill, didn't even look at the seed, but ordered the freight agent to ship it back, said that he didn't order any clover seed and wasn't going to accept it, and he wrote us a mean letter about it and merely shipped the seed back without opening it and looking at it. It was nice alfalfa seed, too. And two or three people had sent in orders without a sign of a name or address on them. And one man had been charged freight on a prepaid shipment, and one woman couldn't understand why her plants were not in the bundle with her seeds. A man in Oklahoma ordered some corn and said if it wasn't there by Saturday he wouldn't accept it, and it was Wednesday when he ordered it. And another man ordered some seed at January prices and he didn't say whether to fill the exact amount ordered or fill according to money sent. And so on. He's getting gray-headed, Eldridge is."

You see how personal that makes the whole thing. It's a bit weak in grammar, I expect you will say, and is true that it is. But it is the kind of grammar that the people I deal with understand and appreciate.

Understatement.

Well, let's go on to policy number 5. It has never been written down in a book any more than my other policies have. But it might be expressed like this: "I avoid misunderstandings by avoiding sensational offers and by making every description absolutely clear.''

To show you what I mean, let me quote just a little bit from a description of some evergreen trees that I offered to sell by mail for $1 a hundred. After I had written the title, it looked a little bit sensational to me and I was afraid that some people might misunderstand. So I wrote this underneath:

''Now, don't get unduly excited; these are not big trees, big enough to hang a hammock on. They are little seedlings 2 years old and from four to six inches high, or about eight to twelve inches long, roots and all. They are good stuff, though, nice and thrifty and healthy and guaranteed to reach you in perfect condition by mail.''

Don't you see how I avoided anyone's getting the wrong impression? This same idea is a regular policy of mine and is carried all through my literature. I would rather underestimate and be overcautious than mislead any of my customers, which would only make a lot more trouble for me later on.

Service Policy.

Policy number 6 is this: ''I publish examples of what other folks have done to show my customers what they may expect to do.''

Don't misunderstand me. This isn't simply a matter of publishing testimonials. It is really what some folks call a ''service policy.'' I give my big family information as to how to raise the various kinds of seeds I have to sell, and I give them that information in the terms of experience of others who have raised these very seeds. In case it is a grand new variety that no one has yet bought from me, I give them my own experience.

I am sure that if you have read what I have written so far, you will readily see that policy number 7 just about sums up the whole matter when it says: "I try to get my customers so interested in my seed house that they won't think of buying elsewhere."

You know very well that I couldn't get them interested in my business if I didn't talk about anything but the business. If every issue of Seed Sense was filled up with descriptions of new varieties, descriptions that were so technical that nobody could understand them, not even myself, these folks that are buying from me now never would have sent their first order.

Beginnings.

This whole thing started a good many years ago when I was just a kid wearing knickerbockers. A catalogue of seeds published by a man by the name of James Vick was my dearest possession, and I can remember having my mother read it out loud to me.

Up to that time my ambition had been somewhat divided and I did not really know whether I wanted to be a policeman or a railroad engineer. After studying the catalogue, however, I wanted to be a seedsman, and I insisted that my mother write to Mr. Vick to that effect. The dear old man wrote me a personal letter in reply, which I carried around until I wore it out. He also sent me a colored picture of gladioli, the first I had ever seen.

All the next summer I was saving seed every chance I got, but when fall came, to my sore disappointment, I could not find any one who would buy them. Finally, Aunt Martha Long, a kindhearted old lady, out of the goodness of her heart gave me an order for 50 cents' worth of flower seeds, and I think I must have worked several days making up by hand the little envelopes to put the seeds in and getting them filled to my satisfaction.

At 8 years of age I embarked in the market garden business for myself, walking two miles to town, with a basket on each arm. My father and I were in partnership on this deal and I got half the proceeds. The little old account book shows I cashed $3.65 for my share. I was not in the seed business as yet, but I was getting as near to it as I could.

About this time I got a prize of a silver dollar from my Sunday-school teacher for perfect attendance. I invested the whole thing in pansy seed and was going to get rich raising pansy plants to sell. After they were grown I was unable to sell any, as ours was a little country town with no market for flowers.

Every year I got deeper and deeper into the market garden business. My father was a livestock farmer, but my tastes run entirely to the garden truck and flowers and fruit. He humored me in this and allowed me to have practically a free hand at my kind of farming, and I worked up quite a trade in strawberry plants and seed potatoes of improved varieties.

Experience.

At 15 I got my first experience in real seed business. At that time the Livingston Seed Co., then a prominent concern in Ohio, had a branch house in Des Moines, Ia., in charge of one of the sons, Josiah. I went to Des Moines and worked for him. I worked for $3.50 a week and paid $3 of it for board, but what I learned and the inspiration I gained made it richly worth while.

I could not get into the seed business on my own account yet, however, as it kept me busy making a living. But all of the time I was dreaming about how I could run a seed business if I got the chance. And it may interest you to know that the plans formulated at that time, now over thirty years ago, are the identical plans that have made the Henry Field Seed Co. a $2,000,000 a year concern.

By the time I was 21 I was doing a big trucking and market garden business on my own account. I was married and settled down on a little truck farm of my own. I had a big local trade in strawberry plants and about this time I began to broaden out into the seed business in a small way.

I raised seeds myself from choice strains developed in my market garden business, and the neighbors kept coming to me for those seeds. They noticed that I had pretty fair luck with gardening and they wanted the same seeds that I I used, so I took to soliciting among my neighbors every winter and I would work nights and stormy days putting up the seeds and getting them ready for delivery. I was the whole thing, from catalogue to delivery wagon. I sold good, dependable seeds at a reasonable price and helped my customers in every way to make a success with them. Of course, the business spread.

It wasn't long before I was supplying half of the country round about and getting mail orders from outside. I had to change the front room of our little 4-room house into an office and the barn into a seed house. Pretty soon I had to get out a catalogue or price list.

This was in 1899. It was a little 4-page folder that I printed myself at nights on a hand-power printing press. I worked nights for two weeks or more getting out a few thousand of them.

Rapid Growth.

The next year I had a 12-page catalogue with pictures in it, but of course it was as yet very small. About 1902 I built my first seed house, a story-and-a-half structure costing about $500, with my name in big letters across the front of it. Maybe you think I wasn't proud of it. It was to me a great venture to put that much money into a business, and the building was really bigger than it seemed I would ever need. But I had the nerve to go ahead with it.

Well, we had to build an addition to that building every year. By 1907 we had built on every side of it and there was no room to build any farther. In 1903 we had put out our first real catalogue. It was thirty-two pages, nicely printed, with a colored cover.

About that time, possibly the next year, I started a crusade for selling seed corn in the ear instead of shelled. The seed trade laughed at me, then growled at me. They said I was unsettling the whole seed business. But my customers liked it and they simply swamped me with seed corn business. Practically every seedsman in the United States now offers ear seed corn.

Then along about 1906 I commenced grading my shelled seed corn so it would run in an edge drop planter. This was the first attempt any seedsman ever made to do such a thing; they all do it now—they have to. All this time the business has been growing and expanding, and we are still growing.

Our increase this year over last year is above eighty per cent. I feel certain that the credit for the rapid growth of this business should be placed on the careful following out of the seven policies I have outlined.

NEWS OF THE NURSERY TRADE

SPRAYING walnut trees with lead arsenate of a strength of six pounds to fifty gallons of water is an effective method of controlling the butternut curculio, says the bureau of entomology of the United States Department of Agriculture.

JOHN C. CHASE, treasurer of the Benjamin Chase Co., Derry Village, N. H., who started west after his annual chat with buyers of his labels at the A. A. N. convention, is on his way home from the Pacific coast, after having attended the meeting of the Pacific Coast Nurserymen's Association at Portland.

EXISTING tree nurseries at Fort DuPont having been found inadequate to fill the rapidly growing needs of the District of Columbia in regard to trees, the district commissioners have approved a resolution to increase the facilities for production. This resolution sets aside thirty acres of land in the Anacostia river park, located directly across the river from the navy yard, as a tree nursery.

THE heads of the Nelson Nursery School, at Oakland, Cal., Mr. and Mrs. Charles Nelson, are now in Naples, Italy. Mrs. Nelson is gathering data for a book on gardens in Europe, while Mr. Nelson is doing research work. Mrs. Nelson is well known as a landscape engineer on the Pacific coast, conducting the landscape department of the Nelson Nursery, at Foothill boulevard and Twenty-fifth avenue, Oakland.

PAINESVILLE'S PRIDE.

A visit to the nurseries of the Storrs & Harrison Co., at Painesville, O., finds the company's stock in excellent growing condition; in fact, the nurseries never looked better. This year the Skinner irrigation system has been installed in various sections of the nurseries, especially where perennials, shrub seedlings and transplanting stock are grown, and has proved to be a great advantage in growing young stock.

The propagating department, under the supervision of Robert H. Botley, has been most successful in every way. Mr. Botley is close to a 100 per cent propagator and it is not at all unusual to have perfect stands of shrubs, roses, etc. Hydrangea paniculata grandiflora, to the number of 85,000, are already potted and will soon be ready to be placed in coldframes for the winter. In like proportions are Hydrangea arborescens, Sambucus aurea, Deutzia gracilis and D. Lemoinei, Philadelphus aurea, weigelas in variety, spiræas in variety, etc.

S. R. Welch, general foreman, took pride in showing several new varieties of dracænas, all of which are marked improvements on Dracæna terminalis, which has long been popular for Christmas basket work. Many houses are benched to ferns, all of which are in healthy condition. Pandanus Veitchii is of exceptionally fine quality and palms of every variety are indeed in excellent condition.

C. H. Schumaker, the genial treasurer, was optimistic in regard to the coming fall season. "We are receiving and booking many orders," said Mr. Schumaker. "These orders are much appreciated, as booking orders early not only benefits our customers, but it also gives us the opportunity to know what to prepare for."

H. L. McClellan, in charge of the seed department, said, "Our seed business has been excellent this year, and we have been kept extremely busy until about two weeks ago. Even now we are busy." T. J. M.

PROPAGATING RASPBERRIES.

Kindly advise me of the proper method of propagating an expensive raspberry bush from the roots. Can the main root be divided into 2-inch or 1½-inch rootlets, allowed to remain dormant in the cellar and then started in a cold greenhouse and later outdoors?

R. M. W.—Mass.

Raspberries from which it is desired to increase stock may be propagated by letting the strong, new canes lie over. The tips are covered with earth, at least all but a short length of growth. Kept covered, these will make good plants by fall. Some varieties produce numerous suckers and, if strong, they will make fine stock for spring sales. Some varieties, like Columbian, will produce no suckers and must be propagated from the tips of the new canes. The free-suckering varieties should give a fair number of plants. If you intend to plant sucker roots as suggested, you should, however, leave them longer than one and one-half to two inches. Keep them in a cold cellar and packed over winter in damp sand or earth. Start them in flats of sandy loam or coldframes which have a little warm manure below the suckers. Later transfer them to the field. C. W.

PACIFIC COAST NURSERYMEN.

Meet at Portland, Ore.

The twentieth annual convention of the Pacific Coast Association of Nurserymen was held at Portland, Ore., July 11 to 13. The Seward hotel was the official headquarters, while the meetings were held in hall A of the Portland public library building, located near the hotel.

The first session of the morning of July 11 was opened by President H. E. Weed, of Beaverton, Ore., who in a happy strain of thought introduced the mayor of Portland, George L. Baker, who welcomed the delegates to the city. A. Wiggins, of Toppenish, Wash., responded and assured the mayor that the nurserymen were always pleased to visit Portland. Reports from the vice-presidents from Washington, Oregon, California, Idaho, Utah and British Columbia were then heard, after which President Weed addressed the convention, referring to the commanding position which the Pacific coast nurserymen held in the production of fruit stocks and trees, admitting, however, that the eastern nurserymen held the foremost position in the production of ornamental stock.

At the afternoon session of that day, E. L. French, commissioner of agriculture of the state of Washington, was the principal speaker. In his speech he pointed out the necessity of a more strict inspection of small fruit stock produced by small growers not identified with the nursery trade. J. E. Stansbury, chief horticultural inspector of Oregon, also addressed the convention concerning inspection laws. Other speakers at this session were: S. A. Miller, of Milton, Ore., who discussed the question of grading nursery stock, and W. B. Shively, who talked on the legal matters connected with the nursery trade.

In the evening of the first day a get-together dinner was given at the Chamber of Commerce, followed by a musical program and several talks.

Second Day's Doings.

The morning session of July 12 was devoted to ornamentals and landscape gardening. E. J. Steele, of Steele's Pansy Gardens, gave an interesting talk on the production of pansy seed. Frank Presel spoke at length on landscape work and materials. Prof. A. L. Peck, of the Oregon Agricultural College, spoke on the college training of landscape architects. B. J. Anninger, of San Jose, Cal., gave an account of what was being done at Eureka, Cal., in the production of azaleas and rhododendrons. He reported that there was a good supply of small-sized azaleas for delivery this fall, but he stated that it would be another year before home-grown rhododendrons will be available. At adjournment of the morning session, the visitors were taken by automobiles to the nursery of President Weed, at Beaverton, Ore., where Mr. Weed and his delighted wife served a sumptuous chicken dinner on tables cut from logs six feet in diameter and located under a grove of broad-spreading native evergreen trees. Later the party visited the large establishment of the Oregon Nursery Co., at Orenco. In the evening Professor Peck gave a lecture illustrated with stereopticon views, which proved to be interesting and entertaining.

Third Day's Happenings.

Thursday morning, July 13, a resolution requesting stricter federal and state control over the growing, selling and shipping of nursery stock was unanimously adopted. This action was taken as a means of preventing further spread of destructive insects and fungous diseases. The nurserymen appealed to the legislatures and governors of the Pacific coast states to give this question attention commensurate with its importance to the public interest and to allow appropriations of sufficient amounts to retain the number of men required to make intelligent inspections and also to educate the public into the ways and means of exterminating destructive pests. The appeal also included uniform horticultural laws for all of the states, based upon the only practical method; namely, the inspection of nursery stock at the point of shipment, so that infested stock could not be moved from one state into another. Extravagant and misleading advertising by nurserymen was condemned by the organization. The phrase, "Wholesale prices to planters," often used in advertising matter, was declared as being far from the truth and should, therefore, never be used by nurserymen.

Officers Elected.

The officers were elected as follows: President, Charles T. Hawkes, Caldwell, Idaho; vice-presidents, C. E. Wright, Kimberly, Idaho; C. B. Miller, Milton, Ore.; D. W. May, Yakima, Wash.; M. R. Jackson, Fresno, Cal.; C. H. Smith, Centerville, Utah; R. Layritz, Victoria, B. C.; secretary-treasurer, C. A. Tonneson. M. McDonald was elected trustee for three years. Mr. Hawkes invited the 100 nurserymen at the session to hold their next convention at Boise, Idaho. The invitation was unanimously accepted.

All through the 3-day session it was apparent that a majority of the delegates were in favor of quarantine 37. It was thought also that a step further should be taken by including fruit and rose stocks in the quarantine regulations. Several of the delegates spoke in favor of such a course.

An inspection trip by automobile was made to the various nurseries east of the city. The first stop was made at Steele's Pansy Gardens, followed by a visit to the city range of Clarke Bros., thence to the Weddel nursery, on the Section Line road. The party then motored some twenty miles to the large new nursery grounds of the Mountain View Floral Co., where many hundred thousands of budded field-grown roses were to be seen in an admirable state of cultivation.

The last place visited was the nursery of Nikelsen Bros., on Sandy road, where upwards of 100 acres of fruit stocks of a fine grade was viewed. It was well towards evening when this place was 3-inch pots, $35 per 100.

4-inch pots, $50 per 100.

Every retail store and grower should feature Crotons. We know our stock will please you and your customers.

CROTON LEAVES AND SPRAYS

Cut Croton Leaves and Sprays have been supplied by us in the past few years to some of the leading florists, who have featured them in mantel, table and funeral work. Cut Crotons will last in a cool place from three to four weeks. We can supply them every day in the year.

Very highly colored sprays at 50c each; cut leaves, $5 per 100.

When you have orders for funeral or table work "out of the ordinary," order Craig's Cut Crotons.

DRACAENAS

There is no other variety of foliage plant so attractive as the highly colored Dracaena. The small and medium sizes can be used to great advantage in making up the popular spring baskets, while the large specimens have always been in great demand for decorative purposes. We are now growing more Dracaenas, in greater variety, than any firm in the country.

FANCY DRACAENAS

We are offering a collection of the new and rare Dracaenas. Very handsome for home decoration or for fancy combination baskets.

DAY FOR STATE TREASURER.

In the primaries August 8, Harry S. Day, proprietor of the Fremont Nursery and for two terms mayor of Fremont, O., is running for state treasurer on the Republican ticket. The Day-for-Treasurer Club, of Fremont, is distributing cards describing Mr. Day's career thus:

Harry S. Day has just completed his second term as mayor of the city of Fremont, Sandusky, county, Ohio, being the first Republican elected to that office in over twenty years.

His administration has been characterized, by all fair-minded citizens of all parties and creeds, as one of progress in which safe and sane principles prevail, with favoritism to no one, and in which the taxpayers of the city received 100 cents of value for every dollar expended.

Mr. Day has had an exceedingly varied experience in many lines of endeavor, which makes him especially fitted for a position where good, sound business judgment is needed.

As proprietor of the Fremont Nursery, he has brought it from small beginnings to the enviable position which it enjoys today, with a trade covering the entire state and extending into every state of the Union and into Canada. Mr. Day personally superintends over 150 acres of nursery and farm crops and is a real "dirt" farmer. He has served as president of the Ohio Nurserymen's Association.

He is president of the People's Elevator Co., whose business totals over $1,000,000 per year. He is a director of the Catawba Orchard Co., a 600-acre orcharding proposition on Catawba island; director of the Rundle Manufacturing Co., makers of children's vehicles, and an officer or director of numerous other business enterprises, as the Pythian Castle Co., White City Beach Association, Fremont Rifle Club, Forest City Hunting Club, etc.

The Market.

Flowers are plentiful and gladioli are a glut on the market. These last-mentioned flowers may be had in almost any color at the dealer's own price, as nearly everyone has some out and the weather has been good for gladioli. Asters are being shipped in, but so far none of local origin have put in an appearance here. Carnations are small and inferior, while roses are fair.

ROWE'S RAMBLES.

Gladioli at Goshen.

A journey across the state of Indiana via the Lincoln highway takes the tourist through many towns closely related to the florists' and nursery trades, but it is quite probable that the city of Goshen is better known than any other two towns on the route.

Various factories flourish in the city. Furniture, kitchen cabinets, paper and cloth bags are made in quantities. But the most interesting "factory" of all lies some two or three miles north, on the way to Elkhart. Its walls are the green-foliaged oaks and maples; its roof the deep blue sky, and its floors the rich brown loam in which you sink ankle deep.

The Rambler still insists that the place is a "factory," for here that wizard of gladiolus making, Amos B. Kunderd, has conceived and produced in his open-air workshop some of the most marvelous types of gladioli ever seen. It is this "factory" that has made Goshen known in America, in Europe and in the islands of the sea.

The master mind of the enterprise is, of course, Mr. Kunderd, but his two sons, Anthony B. and Robert, carry much of the details of office and field, and are enthusiastic gladiolus men every day in the year.

It was a little over fifteen years ago that Mr. Kunderd produced Kunderdii Glory, the first ruffled variety ever sent out. It is now the great-grandparent of a multitude of varieties introduced by various breeders, but somehow Mr. Kunderd keeps a little ahead in the production of distinctly worth-while ruffled gladioli.

To mention the varieties originated at the bulb farm would require a pamphlet of half a hundred pages. Among the latest introductions are Autumn Splendor (1922), Indian Summer, Lillian, Yellow Glory, Crinkles, Peep o'Day and Ruffled America. But over two score new varieties were introduced in 1921 and 1922, with a probability of almost as many for next year.

But now let's see what is in this open-air factory. The fields are a delight—well cultivated, not a weed in sight. A caterpillar tractor pulls the gang plow and harrow that cut the ground in early spring, while the later tillage is by horsepower.

Here are two long rows of little green blades pushing through the ground. Anthony B. Kunderd told me they were from gladiolus seeds sown a couple of weeks before my visit. Over a million of them—think of it—a million seeds that had been saved from selected flowers in 1921, many of them hand-fertilized and sown in the hope that a half-dozen or so varieties worthy of introducing to the trade would be produced.

An adjoining block was green with plants a foot or so high. These, I was told, were the seedlings of 1921; a few might bloom this year, most of them would bloom in 1923. If the block produces a variety that satisfies Mr. Kunderd and his coworkers, it will be saved for further tests. If nothing worth-while develops, the junkman gets the lot. To the Rambler it looked like a gamble with a million chances to lose against one to win.

In another place millions—yes, that's right—of bulblets had been planted. These were chiefly named varieties of the now famous Kunderdii ruffled type and improved primulinus. From these will come next year's marketable bulbs.

In addition to developing the ruffled type, Mr. Kunderd has produced a wonderful improvement in the old primulinus group. The ruffled feature has been bred into these new varieties, making the flowers as graceful as orchids. The late Maurice Fuld said a few years ago that "Mr. Kunderd's introductions rank as the greatest achievements in gladiolus culture."

A well arranged concrete house, about 35x80 feet, provides storage for the bulbs required day by day during the shipping season, and also gives room for packing, checking and other details.

Day after day during the blooming season thousands of travelers see the fields in their glory, for the bulb farm fronts the Lincoln highway, the tracks of the New York Central lines from Chicago to Cleveland, the Big Four, and the Elkhart-Goshen-South Bend electric line—a wise selection of location from a publicity point of view alone.

If the story of the struggle to produce the ruffled gladiolus is ever written, it will be a thrilling tale of dogged determination and a will to succeed; of high hopes and deep disappointment; of days when success was almost in handgrasp, only to slip away for another year; and then the sense that the problems were solved, the type fixed, and that new varieties could be produced by following certain well defined lines.

Greenhouse Heating

SUBSCRIBERS are invited to write the editor of this department with regard to any details of greenhouse heating that are not understood. When information is desired regarding the capacity of boilers, or the amount of radiation required for a greenhouse, the needed temperatures should be stated in the inquiry, as well as the amount of glass in the side walls, and the dimensions and general arrangement of the greenhouses. It is often helpful, also, to have a sketch showing the location of the houses.

INSTALLING NEW SYSTEM.

My range consists of one house, 9x100 feet, and eight feet to the ridge; one house, 17x100 feet, and eleven feet six inches to the ridge. There is no glass in the side walls of the first house, but in the second house there are three feet of glass in the west wall, while the east wall adjoins the wall of the smaller house. The temperature to be maintained is 50 degrees in zero weather. All of the returns are to hang on the side walls. I should like to run a 2-inch top pipe to two 2-inch returns, one on each side, to be run independently of the rest of the pipe, to be used in moderate weather. J. P. G.—Mo.

For the narrow house the use of a 2-inch flow pipe on each side wall plate is suggested, with two 1½-inch returns on each of the side walls. Another method would be to run a 2½-inch flow pipe under the ridge, with two 2-inch returns on each side wall. If the height of the ridge makes it possible, the latter method of arranging the piping for this house is preferable.

The temperature desired in the house 17x100 feet is not stated, but for 50 degrees it would be well to run a 2½-inch flow pipe on each side wall plate and connect each flow pipe at the farther end of the house with a coil of 2-inch return pipes, placing three pipes on the east side and four in the west coil. For 60 degrees an additional return will be required in each coil. If it were possible to locate one coil under the middle bench, the plan suggested of using one 2-inch flow pipe for two 2-inch returns could be used, locating one flow on each plate and the other under the ridge.

Whatever method of arranging the piping is used, the radiation in mild weather may be reduced by using 2-inch gate valves on one or two returns in each coil.

A boiler that will heat the two houses should have a rating of 1,800 square feet of radiation and a grate about twenty-eight inches in diameter.

HEATING FOUR HOUSES.

I am mailing you a sketch of my greenhouses. Kindly examine this sketch and advise the best method of arranging the heating system for hot water heating. I shall use soft coal. The boiler will be located in the basement of the dwelling house. House No. 1 will have a fern temperature. Houses No. 2 and 4 will have a carnation temperature, while house No. 3 will have a temperature of 65 degrees. H. L. H.—Ill.

House No. 1 is 19x37 feet, with five feet of concrete in the wall on the north Heating and Cooling Equipment for Florists.

IT LETS THE FLORIST SLEEP

Actual use proves Merits and Defects. Twenty-two years' actual use has proved that our Boilers are the ones to buy. If every Florist in the Country knew as much about our Boilers as Mr. Snell, EVERY FLORIST WOULD BUY our Boilers, as he has done for the past twenty-two years.

HERE IS HIS LETTER:

Giblin & Company
Utica, N. Y.

Herkimer, N. Y.
June 8, 1922.

Gentlemen:

Within twenty-two (22) years past I have bought eight boilers from you and have bought boilers from no one else.

My purchases were as follows:

Newville, N. Y., December, 1900, 1 No. 70 Steam Boiler for greenhouses.
Mohawk, N. Y., December, 1906, 1 No. 407 Boiler for greenhouses.
Herkimer, N. Y., December 11, 1911, 1 No. 407 Steam Boiler for greenhouses.
Herkimer, N. Y., January, 1916, 1 No. 70 Steam Boiler for residence.
Ilion, N. Y., September, 1916, 1 No. 406 Steam Boiler for greenhouses.
Little Falls, N. Y., January, 1921, 1 No. 407 Steam Boiler for greenhouses.
Little Falls, N. Y., August 26, 1921, 1 No. 407 Steam Boiler for greenhouses.
Mohawk, N. Y., June 1, 1922, 1 No. 409 Steam Boiler for greenhouses.

At Mohawk I have planned my boiler room so as to use two additional boilers, when further enlargements of greenhouses are made.

I bought the first boiler because I was anxious to see if it was all you claimed for it. I found it was and I have bought the other boilers because I felt I could buy no others that would give as much for the money invested.

I have found your boilers economical in fuel, in some instances doing the work for one-half it cost with other boilers.

I have maintained an even temperature for ten hours without attention.

If florists would disregard the first cost, which is ONCE ONLY, and pay more attention to the maintenance cost, they would get more profit out of their business.

I have been offered other boilers at lower prices than yours, but I thought the prices I paid you none too high for what I got in return.

Yours truly, W. D. SNELL.

side. Its roof is in the form of a lean-to against the wall of the dwelling. A temperature that will adapt the house for growing ferns is desired.

The other houses are built together on the east end of house No. 1 and the dwelling. House No. 2 is 14x50 feet, with five feet of concrete blocks in its north wall. It is to be used for carnations. House No. 3 is 11x50 feet, with one bench seven and one-half feet wide in the center. A temperature of 65 degrees is desired for this house.

Houses No. 1 and 2 have five feet of concrete blocks below the plate in their exposed ends, while in houses 3 and 4 there are four feet of concrete blocks and three of glass.

House No. 4 is 19x50 feet, with four feet of concrete blocks and three feet of glass in the south wall. The house has two 5-foot benches and one bench three feet wide, to be used for growing carnations.

It is suggested that you use a hot water boiler rated at 1,800 to 2,000 square feet, for use with soft coal. House No. 1 will require main flow and return pipes three inches in diameter. The flow pipe should be carried on the south wall about two feet below the ridge to the east end of the house and along the east wall, and should be used for supplying eight 2-inch returns. Two of these should be under each of the 5-foot benches and the other four pipes should be carried on the north and west walls of this house, where the returns from all of the coils should be collected and lead to the boiler.

The main supply of the other three houses should be a 4-inch pipe. It should be on the side wall of the dwelling just below the 3-inch main which supplies house No. 1.

In house No. 2 two 2½-inch flow pipes should be taken off to supply the returns. Run one on each side wall plate, with five 2-inch returns, placing three returns on the outside wall and two returns in the other coil. One 3-inch overhead flow pipe will be required for House No. 3, and this should be connected with six returns. All of the returns may be under the middle bench, or two returns may be on each wall and the others under the bench.

For house No. 4, use three 2½-inch flows and six 2-inch returns, with one flow on each plate and the other under the ridge. Place two of the returns on each wall and the others under the middle bench.

It will be well to see that the flow pipes, as well as the returns, run downhill and that the highest point of each flow pipe is connected with the pipe leading to the expansion tank.

BOILER TOO LARGE.

We are building a new greenhouse and wish a little information in regard to the heating arrangement and the laying of glass. The house is 21x41 feet, and there are three feet of concrete and three feet of glass in the side walls. The south end is also exposed. The boiler room and workroom are located at the north end. We have about 1,500 feet of 1-inch pipe. The bench arrangement is as follows: A 3-foot bench on either side, running the entire length of the house, then two 5-foot benches in the center of the house, also running the entire length of the house. We desire to maintain 55 degrees or 60 degrees when the outside temperature is 10 degrees below zero. What size of pipe should we use for the flows and returns? How should the coils be arranged? Our boiler is rated at 3,500 square feet of radiation. G. F. C.—Idaho.

If the furnace cellar has sufficient depth to bring the top of the boiler several feet below the end of the returns, it will be allowable to use 1-inch pipe for the return coils, but otherwise it would be preferable to use 1½-inch pipe for the returns and 2½-inch for the flows.

Only about 500 square feet of radiation will be required for heating the house to 60 degrees, and a heater rated at 1,000 square feet would be amply large, if a fair grade of soft coal is used, when the outside temperature is 10 degrees below zero.

The sketch shows the house to have four benches, the two middle ones being five feet wide, while those on the sides have a width of three feet. This being the case, it is suggested that four overhead lines of 2½-inch pipe be used, locating one on each plate and the others on the purlins. In addition to the flows, twenty-two 1-inch, fifteen 1½-inch, or twelve 2-inch returns will be required. Divide the pipes for the coils so that those on the walls will have one more return than those in the middle of the house.

ENLARGING SYSTEM.

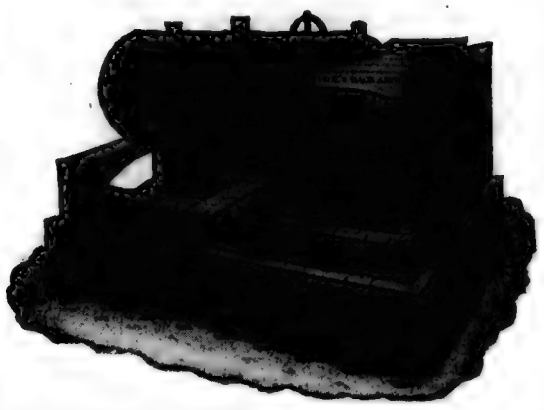
Kindly advise me how much piping will be required to heat a greenhouse, 21x100 feet, which I am now building. I have mailed you a sketch of the range as it will appear. The exposed side walls, as they appear on the sketch, have three feet six inches of glass, and the height of the house is twelve feet. I should like to maintain 48 to 50 degrees in the 60-foot end of the new house and 40 degrees to 45 degrees in the 40-foot end of the new house when the outside temperature is 25 degrees below zero. I have a Lord & Burnham boiler, W-226, for heating the two old houses. How large a boiler will be required? Which is the cheaper kind of fuel to burn, hard coal at $20

"STEEL MIXTURE"

—A Boiler Furnace Lining characterized by high heat resistance, large blocks, few joints and hard, smooth surface. Each setting is built to fit exactly the dimensions of your furnace.

Boiler Door Arches last from two to ten years.

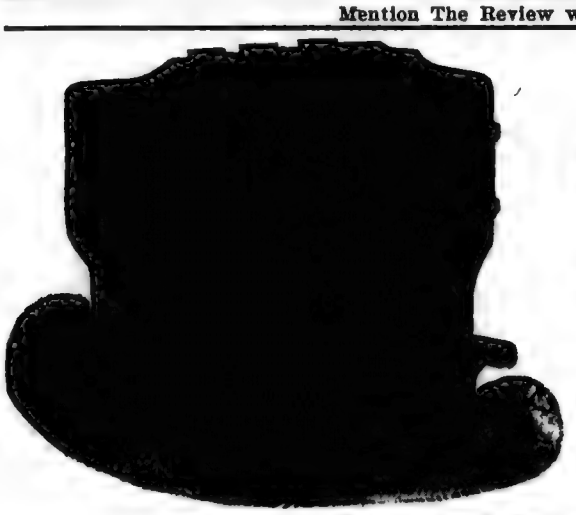
Fire Box Blocks more than double the life of ordinary fire bricks.



Back Combustion Arches last as long as the boiler.

Blow-Off Pipe Protectors are good for years (set up in a few minutes).

"Steel Mixture" boiler settings now in use in more than 9000 plants and we guarantee satisfaction if installed in yours.



We also make Standard Fire Bricks, Boiler Baffle Tiles of all kinds and the "Steel Mixture" High Temperature Fire Cement. We ship on receipt of order.

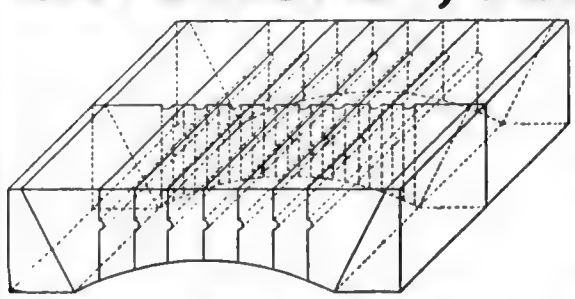
per ton or soft coal at $12 to $13 per ton? A. P.—Can.

From the sketch it is evident that the new house is divided by a cross partition into two rooms, of which the one next to the boiler room is 21x60 feet, with three and one-half feet of glass in one side wall. The other side of this house is against one of the present houses. The other room is 21x40 feet, with three and one-half feet of glass in the two side walls and one end wall.



To heat the north room to 48 to 50 degrees and the other to 40 to 45 degrees when it is 25 degrees below zero outside, about the same amount of radiation will be required, and unless it is desired to have the heat shut off from one room when the other is heated, it will merely be necessary to run three 2½-inch flow pipes through the two rooms and at the farther end of the 21x40-foot house join them with twelve 2-inch returns. Run a coil of four 2-inch returns on each side wall and arrange the others either in one or two coils, according to the arrangement of the benches.

To heat the entire range will require a boiler rated at 2,500 to 3,000 square feet of hot water radiation. The new house will need a boiler rated at 1,500 to 1,800 square feet.

For the average grades of hard and soft coal there would be little choice between them at the prices mentioned, but so much depends upon the quality of the coal that we cannot express an opinion, beyond stating that, if the soft coal is free from slack, it would probably prove the cheaper.

PLIBRICO JOINTLESS
FURNACE LINING
A furnace lining full of joints means loss of money through loss of heat and rapid deterioration. There are NO joints in a PLIBRICO lining, therefore no loss of heat—no coal waste—and deterioration cannot start. A PLIBRICO lining is quickly and easily installed, a saving in time. Therefore PLIBRICO is a big-paying investment.

The Market.

Roses are more plentiful and the quality has improved. The demand for these has been unusually heavy for summer time. The price has ranged from $4 to $12 per hundred, with Columbia predominating.

Carnations have exhausted themselves, and will be out of the market for a few weeks until the appearance of the new ones.

Lilies are prominent. Lilium rubrum and L. album are overplentiful and are being sacrificed. These, however, are short-stemmed. Lilium auratum is fairly plentiful at $25 per hundred. Easter lilies are scarce at $20 per hundred.

Gladioli are numerous, at from $2 to $6 per hundred. Asters are beginning to appear at $2 to $4 per hundred. No fancy ones are to be had. A few lilies of the valley at $6 per hundred are to be had. Orchids are scarce.

Outdoor stock is in only fair supply. Buddleia, delphinium and statice are popular. Other offerings are gaillardias, daisies, snapdragons and blue lace flowers.

Green goods are especially good. Fancy ferns are priced at $2.50 per thousand and Asparagus plumosus at 30 cents per bunch.

Various Notes.

Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Carlstedt and Albert Fox have just returned from a 3,000-mile motor trip through the east. They visited Cleveland, Buffalo and Utica, N. Y.; Springfield, Mass.; Boston, Mass.; New London, Conn.; New York city and various other places of interest.

The Market.

Last week was just a good, ordinary week. There was a little business. The variety of flowers is limited; the quality is mediocre and the quantity sufficient for all demands. Carnations are small in quantity and poor in quality; the first asters have arrived to take their places. This market always is favored with a supply of roses that size up to all requirements and this holds good at present. Gladioli are increasing in number, and in favor. Each season witnesses a greater demand than the preceding one.

Various Notes.

Joseph E. Koppelman is spending his leisure time this summer at his country place near Riverside.

Howard H. Hawes, of the Providence County Farm Bureau, is on a week's vacation at East Orleans, Cape Cod.

Timothy O'Connor has been unusually busy lately on funeral work. General business has been good with him this summer.

Nicholas Zenga, of Forge road, East Greenwich, reports the biggest season he has ever had in bedding plants.

O'Connor the Florist is making general alterations at his greenhouses.

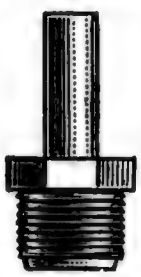
W. J. Sword, Valley Falls, has been having a big run of funeral work the last few weeks.

The Eastern Wreath Mfg. Co., of this city, has taken space for a trade exhibit at the S. A. F. convention in Kansas City. Charles Smith, the proprietor of the concern, will be in attendance.

John F. Gavin, greenhouse glazier, painter and renovator, 865 Chalkstone avenue, reports an unusual activity among the greenhouse men in renovations and he has a large force of men employed.

Frank H. Tate, 117 Canal street, Westerly, is looking for a position as grower of carnations and mums. W. H. M.

Scranton, Pa.—Reuben Waterman has just started in the florists' business here.



Belding, Mich.—The greenhouses of the firm organized by D. C. Huggett, of Grand Ledge, and Thomas Webster, of Toledo, O., are in this town and not at Grand Ledge.

Barbecue.

The annual barbecue of the Atlanta Florists' and Horticultural Club took place July 19, at the farms of the H. G. Hastings Co. All of the stores, greenhouses and nurseries closed at 9:30 a. m. and for the first time in the memory of even the old-timers the public could not buy a single flower in Atlanta or surrounding territory. The seventy-five automobiles started from the Auditorium promptly at 10 a. m. and arrived about 11 a. m. After singing and other music, a group photograph was taken by Francis Price and then all hands adjourned to the long tables under the trees for the real event of the day. H. G. Hastings made a short address of welcome and the "cue" was on.

The number present far exceeded expectations, totaling nearly 300, many coming from as far away as Macon, Newman and Marietta. Unfortunately, rain spoiled many of the events in the afternoon, but in spite of this added feature the "cue" was a great success and the only regret was that it is held only once a year. Great credit is due to Ralph Deans, the genial secretary of the club, and the other members of the committee in charge for the time and trouble to make the outing a success. Mr. Deans, with Mrs. Deans, brought along the recent "addition" to the "sales forces." This was one outing that had no old people. All those of mature years became young and the younger members were kids for the day.

Various Notes.

Mrs. M. W. Stallings had recovered from her recent severe illness sufficiently to be at the barbecue. Mrs. Stallings served notice on her doctor that it would be necessary for him either to get her well or supply an ambulance for the trip.

One of the largest real estate companies in the south recently has reproduced the lakes and surroundings of one of its suburban developments in a large show window. The West View Florists did the work, which is attracting much attention and boosting sales of the lots tremendously.

S. S. and Mrs. Gibbs, of the Lakewood Nurseries, spent last week at Wrightsville beach. Both were glad, however, to get back for the "cue" and to see "Slats."

The Idle Hour Nurseries, of Macon, closed Wednesday, July 19, and sent the entire force to the barbecue of their Atlanta friends. D. C. and Mrs. Horgan were unable to be there, due to their having just returned from a trip of two weeks in the mountains of North Carolina. Mr. Horgan is one of the most popular florists in the south and much regret was expressed that he was unable to be on hand.

One of the show sights that has interested tourists and vacationists and hundreds of people from this vicinity is the large acreage of gladioli at the farm of the H. G. Hastings Co. Hundreds of automobile parties have made this exhibition one of their objectives and have been well repaid for their visit. Mr. Hastings promises an even larger acre-

McCallum's COLUMN

McCALLUM

You don't have to take our word—

FRANKLY, there are two other ways to convince yourself about the remarkable new glazing cement McCallum's are now introducing to American greenhouse owners and managers—PUTTIUM. First, ask any one who has tried it; second, try it yourself and you'll be its most loyal supporter. Remember this, we couldn't afford to market it if we weren't certain it would make good.

Puttium

IN BLACK OR GRAY

is free from tar. The base of Black Puttium is pure Mexican Asphalt combined with just the proper proportion of Gilsonite and high-quality Canadian Asbestos Fibre, while the popular Gray Puttium contains the correct amount of Asbestos Fibre and specially treated oils and gums. High-grade materials, scientific mixing and an organization that "knows how" and has served the trade for years—that's the combination behind Puttium. YOU CAN'T GO WRONG!

"MALCO" Greenhouse White Paint

Yep—it's making almost as great a hit as PUTTIUM. It's on the market a little longer, of course. But it has a host of friends. Interior and Exterior—a paint you can pin your faith to. Stands up under the test of the elements—contains 80% pure Linseed Oil and white lead and zinc in proper proportions. No secret to its success—it's guaranteed by the house of McCallum.

age next year and, although it seems impossible to imagine anything that could be better, he plans on having a display that will be well worth coming long distances to see.

J. B. and Mrs. Keheley, of Newman, motored to the "cue" and Mr. Keheley states that he was fully repaid for the trip. "Sonny" was with them.

Clifford and Mrs. Harrison have returned from their vacation much rested and ready for the rush business of the fall and winter.

Henry and Mrs. Meniert, of Marietta, reported present at the barbecue. They are enthusiastic members of the Atlanta Club and are boosters for quality production.

Mrs. John N. Harper was a delegate to the Southern Memorial convention held recently at Richmond, Va. Mrs. Harper is one of the recent recruits to the florists' business. It is her hobby.

The Dahl Co. reports splendid business during the usual dull season of this time of year. All of the florists feel that they have had an unusual summer season, and if this is any indication of the fall and winter, they expect to reap a rich harvest this coming year. Collections have been unusually good, which is another indication of the recovery of business that has taken place in Atlanta. Price cutting has practically disappeared among the florists and all hands are looking forward to prosperous times.

Newark, O.—George Hughes, who has been growing lettuce in his greenhouse for the last three years, is now going into the growing of cut flowers.

Defiance, O.—Winfield S. Kircher has been in the lake region near Coldwater, Mich., for the last ten days. Mr. Kircher is having a good time and will remain there until July 28.

Harvard, Ill.—E. A. Moore, who has retailed from his greenhouses only, is preparing to open a downtown store and has placed an order with the A. L. Randall Co., Chicago, for the necessary equipment.

Chattanooga, Tenn.—The Joy Floral Co. is taking advantage of the quiet season to remodel its store in this city. One of the additions to the equipment will be a combination storage and display refrigerator, which is being built by the A. L. Randall Co., Chicago. This is the fifth large refrigerator Randall has built for Joy.

GARLANITE

A PUTTY COLOR GLAZING COMPOUND

EASILY APPLIED

GARLANITE, the New Putty-Colored Glazing Compound, is the result of years of experience and untiring effort to produce a PERFECT Glazing Cement.

GARLANITE, made in putty consistency for bedding and semi-liquid consistency for bulbing over the top, assures you of the utmost in Glazing Service. The beautiful Putty color, its elasticity and the ease with which it can be applied or removed when necessary to replace broken glass makes GARLANITE the most desirable of all glazing materials for both new and old work.

PERMANITE, of course, still leads the field of black materials.

Cypress a Strong Wood

Do you know that when it comes to strength — carrying strength, bearing-a-weight strength — Cypress is not a weak wood?

CYPRESS IS STRONGER THAN ANY SUBSTITUTE LUMBER

There's no wood now used in greenhouse construction, none that is claimed to be suitable for the work that will carry the weight imposed on sashbars and ridge-pole, with half the stiffness and certainty that Cypress can. Look at the old Cypress greenhouses and note that sashbars are not sagging — they are not like an old "sway-backed" horse.

CYPRESS is not spongy—like other woods we might name.

CYPRESS is not filled with little pin holes, like other woods we might name (though the immortal "pecky" is, of course, strictly a "holey" wood).

CYPRESS is not "dozy," like other woods that are being urged as a substitute for it in greenhouse construction.

AJAX BLACK ASBESTOS

Saves Fuel by Preventing Loss of Heated Air

A PRACTICAL glazing material for waterproofing and airproofing greenhouses—made on an improved formula for application in a practical manner. No clumsy, slow-working tools necessary—simply a putty bulber or two and a filling gun to load same.

Ajax Glazing Cement is a mastic composition of Asbestos Fibres, Asphaltum and heavy, semi- and non-drying hydro-carbon oils. Its exceptional life is due to the fact that it never thoroughly hardens nor becomes brittle like an old-fashioned white putty. The outside surface (which is, of course, exposed to the air) forms a tough, rubber-like skin below which the material remains soft and elastic for years. Because of this feature, Ajax Glazing Cement will not check or crack, and freely contracts and expands with changing weather conditions.

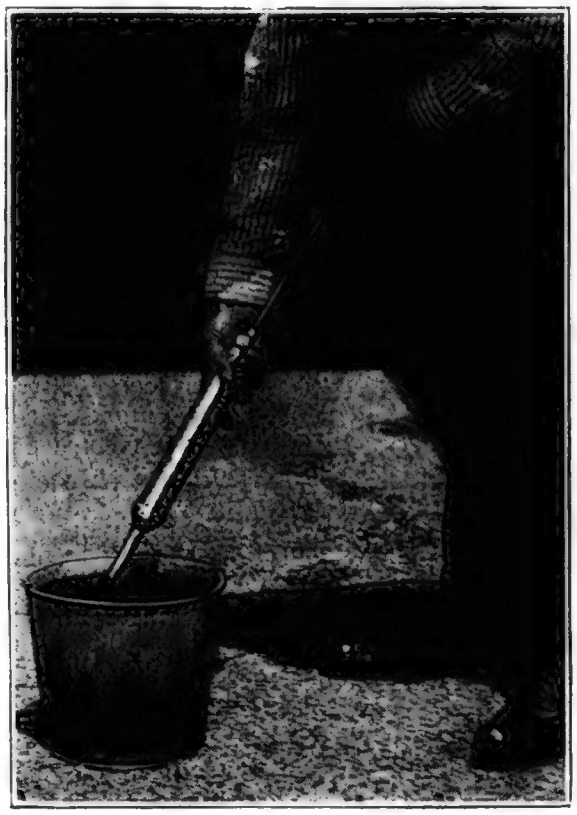
Not Affected by Heat or Cold

Ajax Glazing Cement is sold with the guarantee that the coldest weather will not cause it to become brittle or pull away.

On the other hand it is warranted not to sag or run in extremely hot weather (even when applied to vertical surfaces), due to its being interlaced with Asbestos Fibres.

As Ajax Glazing Cement never thoroughly hardens, glass glazed with it can be shifted when desired without the loss of breakage that so often results when hard drying, white putties are used.

Pays for Itself in Fuel Saving



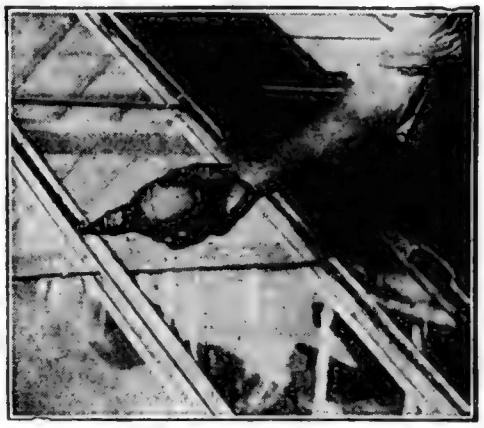
While primarily made to stop water leaks, so thoroughly does Ajax Glazing Cement hermetically seal up the sash, that it will soon pay for itself in the saving of heat that is otherwise lost through air voids. This fact has been demonstrated time and time again, and we can prove it.

Costs Less Than Lead

Compared with the old-fashioned White Lead putties, Ajax Glazing Cement not only lasts longer, but is a great deal lower in initial cost. One gallon is sufficient to glaze 500 linear feet of sash.

Ajax Glazing Cement Contains No Coal Tar--Has No Objectionable Odor--Harmless To Skin

Illustrating Method of Loading Bulber With Gun and Applying Cement



1st Operation—Loading filling gun by drawing back handle and thus suctioning cement into barrel of gun.

2nd Operation—Loading bulber with injection of contents of filling gun.

Sealing Broken Glass.

Easily applied with a bulber. No clumsy tools necessary.

GLAZING CEMENT

and Keeping Out Cold Air--Stops Water Leaks

Ajax Glazing Cement is one of the most favorably regarded asbestos glazing materials on the market, as well as one of the oldest. There is no better at any price, and if you permit yourself to be talked into paying more for some other brand of cement, you are simply throwing away just so much extra money.

You take no risk when you order Ajax Glazing Cement—if it is not all we claim it to be, you are reserved the right to return it.

The cement is shipped in steel drums, so you have no annoyance of leaky packages. If not all used up at once, you can keep the material on hand indefinitely without loss from evaporation or leakage.

Recommended by Well-known Greenhouse People

WEILAND-RISCH CO.
Chicago

In response to your Mr. D. S. Chapin's request for an opinion of Ajax Greenhouse Glazing Cement, will state that we applied several barrels of this product on our houses last spring, also a trial lot the year before, and find same giving excellent satisfaction. Also quite a number of other growers in our vicinity have your glazing cement in use and are highly pleased with the service it renders and recommend it highly. Anyone in need of a good glazing putty will make no mistake in giving your product a trial.

THE GEORGE WITTBOLD CO.
Chicago

We have now used 4 or 5 barrels of your Black Plastic Bulbing Material and have glazed three of our houses without putty and simply bulbed the glass. It makes a better job than when the putty alone is used and a great deal of money is saved.

We find these houses do not leak and are in much better shape than the other houses, which are bulbed with the liquid putty. We went over most of our houses with this material last fall, with the best results, and we believe this material to pay for itself over and over by a saving of fuel.

McDONALD & CO.
Crawfordsville, Indiana

We do not want to be too complimentary, but we are pleased to say that after using three or four of the other widely advertised so-called glazing cements, we have found your material the most satisfactory. It is easier to apply, covers far more surface and, best of all, costs less than any of the others.

We do not want to be without it and we wish you would start a 10-gallon keg, as we still have a small house to cover.

CHRYSANTHEMUMS.
LARGE SUPPLY. QUALITY GUARANTEED.

OUR GUARANTEE.
We deliver Mum rooted cuttings parcel post free of charge up to the 6th zone, or 1400 miles from Geneva, and guarantee safe delivery. Stock not satisfactory when received may be returned at once and money refunded, or slight difficulties will be adjusted and you keep the stock. Outside this territory stock travels at buyer's risk and expense.

If we are short any varieties ordered will use our best judgment in supplying kinds just as good unless you state, "Do not substitute" or give second choice.

The quality of our stock is best shown by the fact that all our this season's business has gone out under the above guarantee and we have had to replace less than 100 plants.

CYCLAMEN PLANTS
READY NOW.

We can emphatically recommend them as a superior grade of plants, inasmuch as we have specialized On CYCLAMEN for years and have constantly improved our strain and methods of growing.

Through the use of a specially prepared compost, we have produced wonderful root action and a fine foliage, in fact we have never produced a finer lot of plants of the very best known varieties.

We have broken all records this year in the sale of plants and seedlings and have even shipped in full carload lots to eastern points.

Our plants positively have no trace or sign of the mite or any other diseases CYCLAMEN are subject to.

IRISES

FRYER'S NEW IRIS.

Mr. P. L. Battey of Glencoe, Ill., who visited me in Iris time wrote me as follows:

"My dear Mr. Fryer:—I was greatly surprised and pleased with your new Iris. From what I had heard and read I imagined they were all, or most all, in the class of yellows and maroons, and all short stemmed varieties, but when I saw the great diversity of colors as well as form, many with fine long stems and conspicuously good foliage, I was greatly impressed with what you have accomplished with your crosses. Your magnificent Mrs. Fryer and Kathryn Fryer are outstanding varieties. C. P. Connell and Lowell are excellent and for flowers and lots of them I have never seen anything equal to your Dr. Andrist, Aunt Rachel, Barton Harrington, W. F. Christman and many others. Some of the new seedlings which we so thoroughly enjoyed that day are very fine, particularly the beautiful pink one, 'a real honest to goodness pink one too.'"

My summer list is now ready and prices on my new Iris have been greatly reduced. Also Delphinium, Peonies, Phlox and other hardy plants.

WE ALL AGREE, THEY ARE.

All those who have tried the Classified ads in The Review come to the same conclusion. Like this:

Please discontinue our Classified ad of freesia bulbs in The Review. These ads certainly are good business getters.—Enid Floral Co., Enid, Okla., July 22, 1922.

If you hear a man complain of the cost of advertising, you can be pretty certain he spends a good bit of money elsewhere than in The Review.

GERMINATION OF ASPARAGUS.

I bought some asparagus seeds from a California grower, and only about eight per cent of them would germinate under the most favorable conditions. The seller's reply to my complaint was: "I sent a sample of the seed from which the order was filled to the United States government office, and have just received a reply from them stating that they got results from over fifty per cent of the sample; so it appears probable the seeds received by you were not given their proper care." I should like to know the experience of other growers. C. J. A.—Fla.

I usually get from seventy to seventy-five per cent germination on California plumosus seeds and at times better than that, but ordinarily one should get not less than seventy per cent. This year, however, they had extremely cold weather out there and most of the seeds were reported as injured by it, so that the germination would be doubtful.

It is best to sow the seeds in flats under glass, in drills about an inch apart, the seeds being close together in the drills. Sow in sand and cover a quarter of an inch. Keep well watered at all times, and they should germinate in from two to six weeks. After the seedlings have hardened the first shoot they should be transplanted, either into pots or beds, placing them about 2x3 inches apart. C. J. Ohmer.

OIL IN DUST RUINS PLANTS.

We are sending you under separate cover specimens of dahlias, coleus, asters and wandering Jew. Kindly tell us what is the matter with them. The street running past our place was given a light coat of crude oil, which was not heavy enough to keep the dust from blowing. We think it is the oil in the dust that has injured these plants. You may not find any oil on them now, as we have had three heavy rains during the last twenty-four hours.

G. H.—Ia.

There is no doubt that the damage to your foliage has been the result of dust impregnated with oil. Similar cases are not rare. C. W.

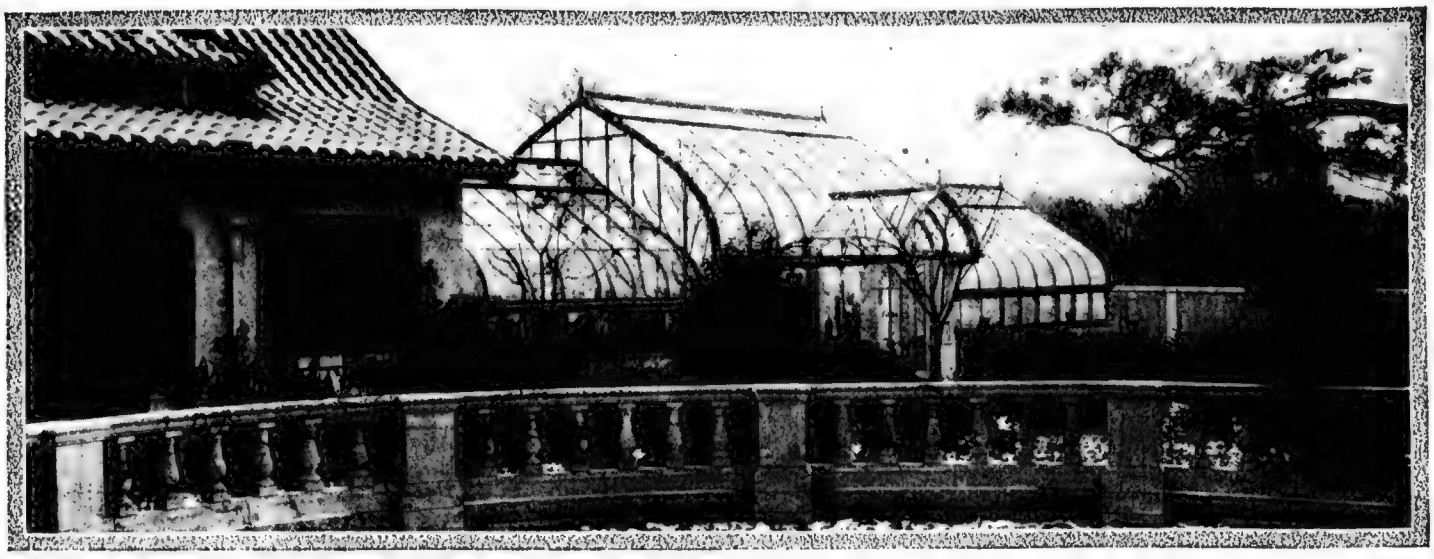
King GREENHOUSES

—and greenhouse boilers

The narrow waterways, rapid water circulation and more than 60% of the heating surface directly exposed to the live coals and glare of the fire, enable a King greenhouse boiler to turn every pound of fuel into the largest possible amount of heat.

There are many other reasons why you should have a King. With coal at war-time prices, it will pay you to write for bulletin 41, telling why a King is a better boiler.



And—

When you think of good greenhouses, think of KING.

Superintendents and Gardeners Take Notice

If your employer happens to be one of the ones who wants a greenhouse but doesn't think he has room for it, here is something that will interest him.

William Ellery of "up Boston way" has two extensive Estates where space is ample to do whatever he wants done.
But when he bought about half an acre at Brookline and wanted it to have most of the things he mostly liked, among which was a greenhouse, the problem certainly was not an easy one.
So Architect Edward Nichols and Landscape Architect Harold Hill Blossom got their heads together and worked out a happy solution.
The ground plan below shows how they did it.

Not only has Mr. Ellery a goodly sized residence with a conservatory, but the above jolly little range of greenhouses.
It is attached directly to the garage, which, as you know, makes not only a compact fix, but an economical one.
You know we go anywhere for business.
Or to talk business.

DELAY

"It is unfortunate but true, that only an owner who has had the experience, can adequately appreciate the tragedy of a building operation groaning under the accumulated financial loss of delay."

Thompson-Starret Company Building Construction

IN THE big New York Dailies, the above advertisement recently appeared.
Thompson-Starret Company are one of the largest general building concerns in the country.
Regardless of whether it is some mammoth bridge contract, or a huge skyscraper, it is all the same to them.
They do what they say they will do, when they say they will do it.

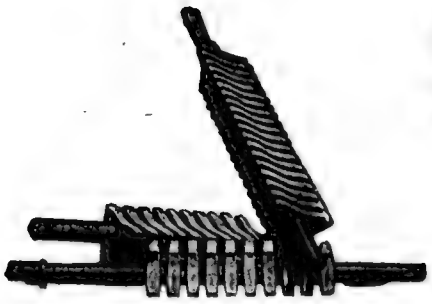
To those of you who have had the costly experience of losing a crop, because of your heating being completed too late, that word D E L A Y is a nightmare.

Some of you have thought you were saving money by buying from the low man; only to find that all of what you saved, was lost, along with hundreds, if not thousands, of dollars besides, BECAUSE OF DELAY. So see to your heating at once.

We don't make the extravagant claim that we are always on time.
But it is safe to say, we come as near to it as possible in a field, where delays entirely beyond anyone's control, do arise at times.



Week after next will be the Kansas City Convention.
Our Exhibit there is going to be exceptionally interesting.
Call around and look it over.
A hearty welcome awaits you.

What a prominent western grower thinks of A. B. C. Cyclamen seed:

American Bulb Co. Lincoln, Neb., June 28, 1922

Dear Sirs:

Book my order for 11,000 Fischer's Cyclamen seed as per list herewith. Send all by Aug. 15th to Sept. 1st. Don't fail me. I had this seed last fall and have the strongest and cleanest lot of plants I ever grew. Several thousand in 4-inch are throwing flowers and colors are rich and large and all perfect—not a trace of disease thus far.

Yours truly,

(Signed) C. H. FREY.

Don't Be Caught Short

Without our patented cardboard Wreath Forms

Experience has shown us that most of our trade has paid too much for their Wreath Forms because they held back their orders until shipment had to be made by express. This increased the cost of the merchandise from 25 to 35 per cent. Besides, our customers lost business because they did not have the goods on hand—their customers would not wait when delivery could not be made at once. The profit on such specialties comes through having the goods on hand when wanted. It does not pay to approach the Christmas holidays with little goods on hand.

Therefore we suggest to you that you place your orders now for fall requirements in Christmas Wreath Forms.

Send for our line of samples of cardboard Wreath Forms as illustrated in this advertisement. Do it now. Prices and samples will be sent gratis on request. We make the following sizes:

Wreath Forms—4, 6, 8, 10, 12 and 16-inch.
Star Forms—4, 6, 7, 9 and 12-inch.
Heart Forms—5, 6 and 7-inch.
Cross Forms—14x21-inch and 18x30-inch.

Write us today about your requirements.

WELCOME

We hope to see our many friends and customers at Kansas City, Mo. Our exhibit will be of the usual CRAIG QUALITY. After inspecting same, you will realize that CRAIG QUALITY is UNSURPASSED.

We take this opportunity to advise our many friends and customers that we have prepared a much larger and finer stock of Craig Specialties for immediate or future delivery. Any grower having room would do well at this time to stock up on Craig Quality Crotons, Dracaenas, Arecas, Cyclamen, Ferns, Pandanus

FALL PRICE

CROTONS

The Croton, with its highly colored foliage, is indispensable during fall and winter. We have the largest and most complete collection of Crotons in the world, carrying at the present time for fall sales over 50,000 in 100 varieties, all of the very highest quality and brilliantly colored.

Immediate Delivery

3-inch pots, $35 per 100.
4-inch pots, $50 per 100.

Every retail store and grower should feature Crotons this fall and winter. We know our stock will please you and your customer.

CROTON LEAVES AND SPRAYS

Cut Croton Leaves and Sprays have been supplied by us in the past years to some of the leading retail florists, who have featured them in mantel, table, and funeral work. Cut Crotons will last in a cool place from three to four weeks. We can supply them every day in the year.

Very highly colored sprays at 50c each; cut leaves, $5 per 100.

When you have orders for funeral or table work, "out of the ordinary," order Craig's Cut Crotons.

DRACAENAS

There is no variety of foliage plant so attractive as the highly colored Dracaena. The small and medium sizes can be used to great advantage in making up the popular Christmas baskets, while the large specimens have always been in great demand for decorative purposes. We are now growing more Dracaenas, in greater variety, than any firm in the country.

DRACAENA GODSEFFIANA

Green and white leaf, very hardy, fine for baskets.

2½-inch pots, $20 per 100; 3-inch pots, $35 per 100; 4-inch pots, $60 per 100.

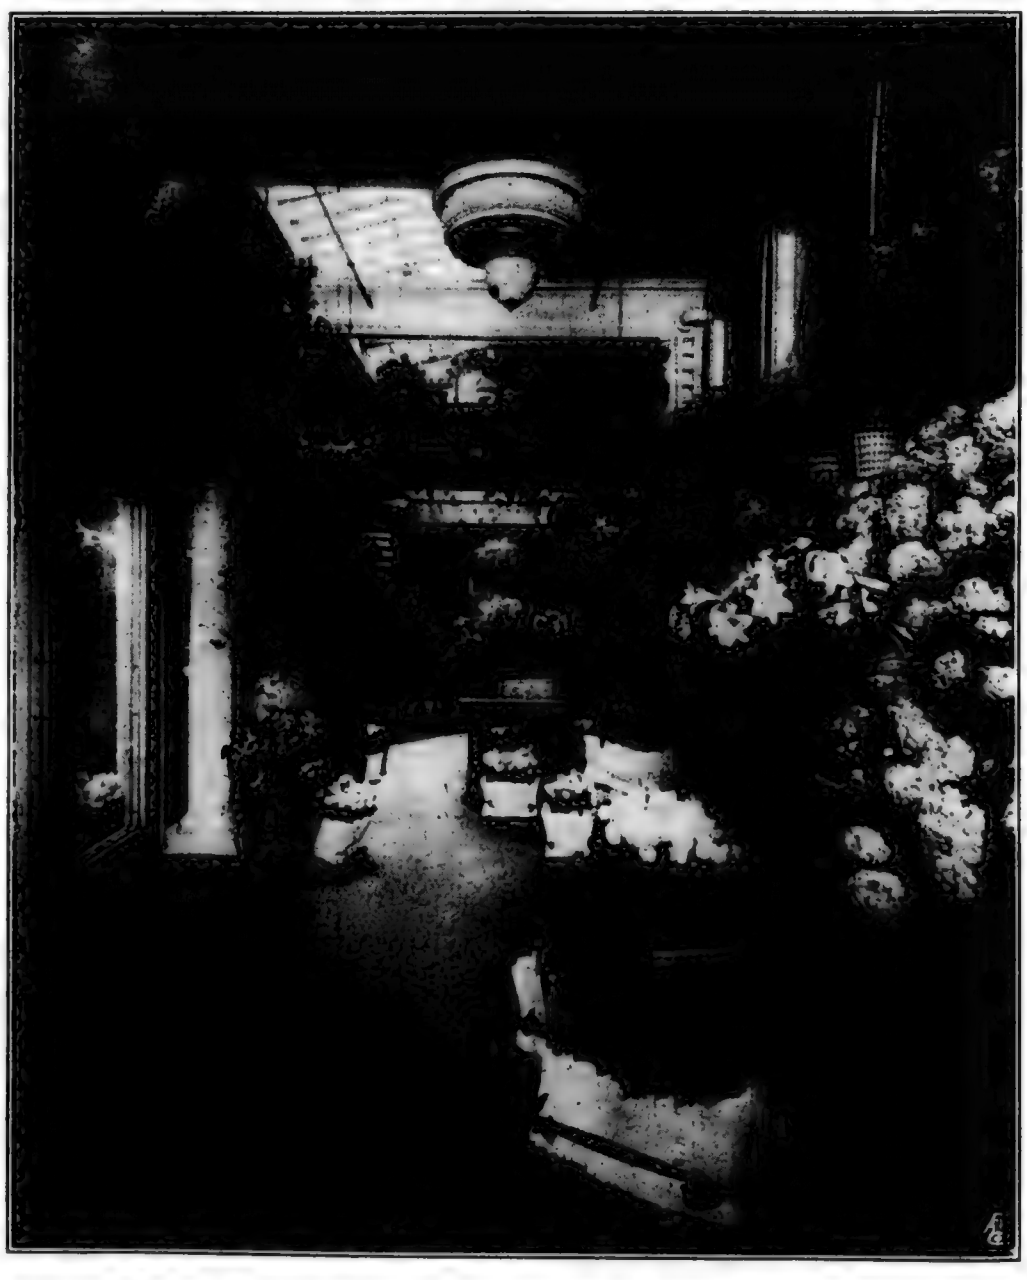
THE FLORISTS' REVIEW

SEEING THE SIGHTS IN KANSAS CITY



Besides attending the convention sessions and viewing the trade exhibition, florists who go to Kansas City for the S. A. F. meeting, August 15 to 17, will wish to visit the places of trade interest there. For their guidance, the most noteworthy are included in this necessarily brief sketch.

THOSE members of the trade who will visit Kansas City week after next, when the annual convention of the Society of American Florists is held there for the first time in the organization's history, will undoubtedly wish to visit the principal flower stores and growing establishments in the city and vicinity. Many firms are widely known, the florists of Kansas City being among the most progressive in the trade. Their stores and greenhouses will compare favorably with those in other parts of the country, and the men and women who own and manage them will be found typical business persons of this great and prosperous section. They have been preparing for the convention for a year and are now ready to greet their guests with the cordiality for which the west is well known. Description of the principal places of trade interest and their proprietors is given here, so that visitors will feel acquainted when they arrive in the convention city.

Downtown Florists.

In mentioning the downtown florists, Samuel Murray, vice-president of the S. A. F., comes to mind as one of the substantial merchants who has built up a business on lines of real merit. He is as much at home in his greenhouses, at Thirty-third street and Prospect avenue, as he is at his retail store, 1117 Grand avenue. He knows all parts of the business, having learned it in Scotland from his father, who was an exacting teacher.

Success has come to him in more than thirty years that he has been in business here, but the accumulation of money has not been his sole object. Its possession gives him opportunities to make others happy and to enjoy the beautiful in life himself. The development of a rare plant is to him what the painting of a picture is to an artist. Samuel Murray's force has been built up as carefully as his business. There is Miss Hayden, decorator, than whom there is no more capable woman in her line. Her sister, Miss Elizabeth Hayden, is an able assistant. William Murray, a brother, has charge of the office. W. B. Reid, decorator, also learned the florists' business in Scotland. All have been in the store for a number of years. At holiday times the force is augmented by others as carefully selected as the regular members for their ability to serve the public on lines required in this store.

Progressive.

William L. Rock, president of the William L. Rock Flower Co., is known to florists of the United States and Canada as one of the most progressive men in his line. In Kansas City he is known as one of the most successful and progressive men in all lines. He is one of the first men considered when any movement is on foot for the betterment of Kansas City, especially when the movement is for beautification. Mr. Rock is general chairman of the arrangements committee at Kansas City.

Like every florist who has made good here, Mr. Rock started in a modest way. He had part of a small store on Main street and a limited stock of cut flowers. As his stock was sold the vases were refilled and no surplus was allowed to remain to eat up profits. Growth of the business was slow, but each step was forward. Possessed of a true sense of the artistic, Mr. Rock made his store a place that delighted the eye. The window display might be extremely simple, but it attracted attention. There was something to invite the public into the store. It might be an unusual flower with the name quite prominent; someone was sure to be interested, and if that person stepped inside, information was as cheerfully given as if a purchase was made. Courtesy, true and genuine, is always reflected in the store of the W. L. Rock Flower Co. The small purchaser is given as much consideration as the one who buys in large amounts. The retail store at 1106 Grand avenue is in the Rock building. Less than two years ago Mr. Rock took a lease on the property at a high rental and added two stories, making five floors in all. This is one of the best pieces of property in the retail district. The company has its own greenhouses, on Troost avenue and Meyer boulevard, another valuable location. These houses are on extensive lines and contain highest grade stock of various kinds.

Rock's Gardens.

Another enterprise which Mr. Rock started within the last few years is Rock's Flower Gardens. These are on a beautiful tract of ground outside Independence, Mo. The gardens is one of the youngest and most progressive institutions of its kind in the west. The officers are: President, W. L. Rock; vice-president, H. P. Hemphill; secretary, Wiley Pendleton; treasurer, W. Lawrence Rock. Decorative nursery stock, hardy perennials and seeds are produced in large quantities, it being the intention of the company to cater largely to the wholesale trade. The heating and packing shed, shown on page 21, indicate the artistic type as well as the permanency of the construction. The buildings will all conform to the mission type of architecture. The entire 130 acres is being carefully laid out with a view of making it a show place. Cut flowers are produced in large quantity through the summer months.

School Chums.

The business association of W. Lawrence Rock and Wiley Pendleton, treasurer and secretary, respectively, of Rock's Flower Gardens, is a continuation of a close friendship formed when both were students at the University of Missouri. After completing his course, Lawrence Rock went to New York city and worked six months in the seed and nursery departments of Max Schling's establishment. He then returned to Kansas City and worked in his father's flower store until he enlisted in the navy while the war was in progress. Wiley Pendleton, an Independence, Mo., boy, had taken a special course in agriculture at the state university. He enlisted in the navy at the same time that Lawrence Rock did. When they were discharged from the service they went into Rock's Flower Gardens. Both have worked hard, and their efforts show in the well kept flower farm that is a delight to the eye at this time of year.

John Valkenberg, manager of the gardens, is known as one of the best propagators in the country. In Holland he was a bulb grower, and a good one. He came to America seventeen years ago. For fifteen years he was manager of the nursery department of Vaughan's. Two years ago he came to Rock's Flower Gardens to assume the management.

Old-Timer.

William J. Barnes was born in Woolwich, May 12, 1861. In 1869 his parents moved to Toronto, Canada. Even from boyhood he had a desire to grow and sell plants. With this idea strong in his mind, he read books and magazines on floriculture and experimented in small ways himself. Keeping in close touch with the business, he concluded to embark for himself. In 1890 he built about 8,000 feet of glass at Euclid avenue and Thirty-eighth street. He has remained in this location continuously and now has about 18,000 feet of glass and an up-to-date store. His residence is on part of the tract, which is a little more than half of a city block, which he owns. He grows blooming plants, ferns and palms only and draws on surrounding local growers for cut flowers. Mr. Barnes does an annual business of more than $50,000 and pays cash for everything he buys. He is a member of the Kansas City Chamber of Commerce, Cosmopolitan Club, Ivanhoe Country Club, Lake of the Forest Country Club, Ivanhoe Lodge, K. C. chapter R. A. M., Skekinah council R. & S. M., Kansas City commandery Knights Templar and the Shrine. He is chairman of the advisory committee for the S. A. F. convention and enthusiastic about the gathering.

Athletic Florist.

Arthur Newell has been in the retail business thirty years. He started in a small way with about as much capital as it now takes to pay his salesmen for one week's work. He was persistent and earnest in his undertaking and success came slowly at first but surely, as it always does to one who tries and is willing to make the necessary sacrifices. His first store was quite small, but he remained there until business fully justified his seeking a larger place and he had the money on hand to pay for it. As the business section of the city grew Mr. Newell kept pace with it. His present location, at Eleventh and McGee streets, was at the outskirts of the retail district when he moved there, about four years ago; now it is in the heart of a busy thoroughfare and the foresight that caused this site to be chosen proved as wise as the usual judgments of this successful man. Mr. Newell is a member of the Kansas City Athletic Club. He finds great enjoyment in the early morning classes of the organization and can be found about 6 o'clock almost every day on the athletic field. He takes his breakfast at the club house before many business men are awake, drives back to his home for an hour's rest and then goes to his store for the day. Mr. Newell is also a member of the Country Golf Club, a thirty-second degree Mason and a Shriner. His son, Walter Newell, is a champion tennis player and his daughter, Miss Marion Newell, is an expert swimmer. Mr. Newell is chairman of the hotel reservations committee for the S. A. F. convention.

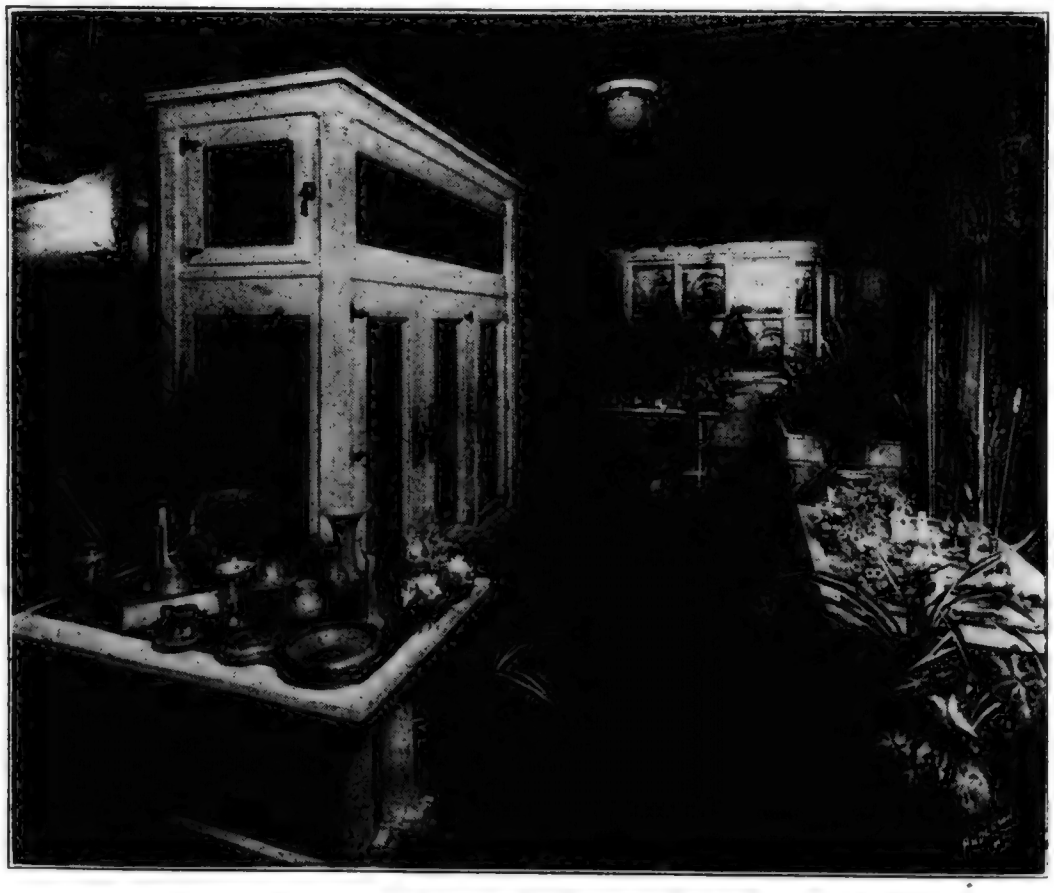
Selling Service.

The study of human nature and the ability to handle a multiplicity of details are absorbing interests in the life of Alpha Elberfield, head of the Alpha Floral Co., 1105 Walnut street. Both are used to great advantage in his business. As a boy of 15, Alpha Elberfield began to earn his living by selling flowers from a basket. He kept at it until he had enough money saved to rent a little space in a store. The idea of giving a little more than he was expected to give in the way of courtesy and service took form in the mind of the young merchant. This brought such good returns that the present $14,000 location probably commands the highest rental paid by a florist in his part of the country, considering the amount of floor space. The force consists of more than twenty persons. "We strive to please" has always been the slogan of the Alpha Floral Co. Mr. Elberfield is a persistent advertiser and uses various methods, most of them original. He is chairman of the publicity committee for the S. A. F. convention. His store and his four greenhouses at Overland Park, Kan., where he has a country home, are run on a systematic basis. A place for everything and everything in its place, is a reality.

Unique Architecturally.



The Chandler Landscape & Floral Co. has one of the most desirable locations in the city, and the store and greenhouses are among the most attractive. Spanish architecture was followed in the building, which is semicircular and faces two boulevards, while a third boulevard traces the property on the west side. M. E. Chandler and C. A. Chandler have been in the nursery business at Kansas City twenty years. Six years ago they moved to Forty-seventh street and Ward parkway and enlarged their landscape department and the growing of outside stock for florists. Two years ago this summer a flower department was added to the business and the Chandler Landscape & Floral Co. was incorporated. Four growing houses and a conservatory compose the present range. The store adjoins the conservatory. M. E. Chandler supervises the nursery business, near Argentine, Kan., where thirty-eight acres of ornamentals are now growing. C. A. Chandler attends to the retail store. His two sons, George and Edward, have completed special courses in floral and landscape work at the University of Illinois and assist in the business.

Next to Convention Headquarters.

The Muehlebach Flower Shop is one of the newer shops of the city and one of the most artistic. Its location, adjoining the Muehlebach hotel, is favorable for hotel patronage. It is also in the same block as the Orpheum theater and the beautiful new home of the Kansas City Club, both of which bring a good transient trade. Hugo Neff, manager of the Muehlebach Flower Shop, was formerly a decorator for the William L. Rock Flower Co. He has made good in his present capacity, as he did in his former one. In the few years that his shop has been open it has been most successful. Besides cut flowers and choice plants, a full line of art ware is carried at all times. Hugo Neff is chairman of the decorating committee for the S. A. F. convention.

Boulevard Stores.

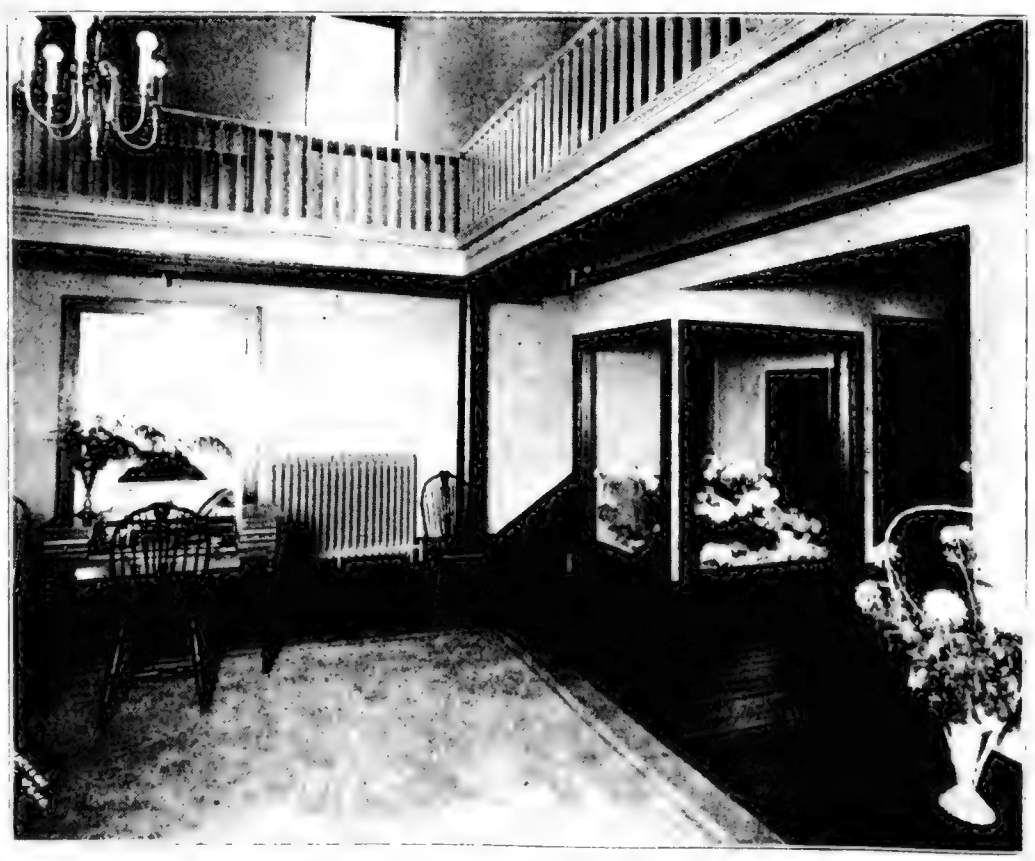
store of the W. L. Rock Flower Co. The small purchaser is given as much consideration as the one who buys in large amounts. The retail store at 1106 Grand avenue is in the Rock building. Less than two years ago Mr. Rock took a lease on the property at a high rental and added two stories, making five floors in all. This is one of the best pieces of property in the retail district. The company has its own greenhouses, on Troost avenue and Meyer boulevard, another valuable location. These houses are on extensive lines and contain highest grade stock of various kinds.

Rock's Gardens.

Another enterprise which Mr. Rock started within the last few years is Rock's Flower Gardens. These are on a beautiful tract of ground outside Independence, Mo. The gardens is one of the youngest and most progressive institutions of its kind in the west. The officers are: President, W. L. Rock; vice-president, H. P. Hemphill; secretary, Wiley Pendleton; treasurer, W. Lawrence Rock. Decorative nursery stock, hardy perennials and seeds are produced in large quantities, it being the intention of the company to cater largely to the wholesale trade. The heating and packing shed, shown on page 21, indicate the artistic type as well as the permanency of the construction. The buildings will all conform to the mission type of architecture. The entire 130 acres is being carefully laid out with a view of making it a show place. Cut flowers are produced in large quantity through the summer months.

School Chums.

The business association of W. Lawrence Rock and Wiley Pendleton, treasurer and secretary, respectively, of Rock's Flower Gardens, is a continuation of a close friendship formed when both were students at the University of Missouri. After completing his course, Lawrence Rock went to New York city and worked six months in the seed and nursery departments of Max Schling's establishment. He then returned to Kansas City and worked in his father's flower store until he enlisted in the navy while the war was in progress. Wiley Pendleton, an Independence, Mo., boy, had taken a special course in agriculture at the state university. He enlisted in the navy at the same time that Lawrence Rock did. When they were discharged from the service they went into Rock's Flower Gardens. Both have worked hard, and their efforts show in the well kept flower farm that is a delight to the eye at this time of year.



John Valkenberg, manager of the gardens, is known as one of the best propagators in the country. In Holland he was a bulb grower, and a good one. He came to America seventeen years ago. For fifteen years he was manager of the nursery department of Vaughan's. Two years ago he came to Rock's Flower Gardens to assume the management.

Old-Timer.

William J. Barnes was born in Woolwich, May 12, 1861. In 1869 his parents moved to Toronto, Canada. Even from boyhood he had a desire to grow and sell plants. With this idea strong in his mind, he read books and magazines on floriculture and experimented in small ways himself. Keeping in close touch with the business, he concluded to embark for himself. In 1890 he built about 8,000 feet of glass at Euclid avenue and Thirty-eighth street. He has remained in this location continuously and now has about 18,000 feet of glass and an up-to-date store. His residence is on part of the tract, which is a little more than half of a city block, which he owns. He grows blooming plants, ferns and palms only and draws on surrounding local growers for cut flowers. Mr. Barnes does an annual business of more than $50,000 and pays cash for everything he buys. He is a member of the Kansas City Chamber of Commerce, Cosmopolitan Club, Ivanhoe Country Club, Lake of the Forest Country Club, Ivanhoe Lodge, K. C. chapter R. A. M., Skekinah council R. & S. M., Kansas City commandery Knights Templar and the Shrine. He is chairman of the advisory committee for the S. A. F. convention and enthusiastic about the gathering.

Athletic Florist.

Arthur Newell has been in the retail business thirty years. He started in a small way with about as much capital as it now takes to pay his salesmen for one week's work. He was persistent and earnest in his undertaking and success came slowly at first but surely, as it always does to one who tries and is willing to make the necessary sacrifices. His first store was quite small, but he remained there until business fully justified his seeking a larger place and he had the money on hand to pay for it. As the business section of the city grew Mr. Newell kept pace with it. His present location, at Eleventh and McGee streets, was at the outskirts of the retail district when he moved there, about four years ago; now it is in the heart of a busy thoroughfare and the foresight that caused this site to be chosen proved as wise as the usual judgments of this successful man. Mr. Newell is a member of the Kansas City Athletic Club. He finds great enjoyment in the early morning classes of the organization and can be found about 6 o'clock almost every day on the athletic field. He takes his breakfast at the club house before many business men are awake, drives back to his home for an hour's rest and then goes to his store for the day. of the attractive stores of the city. Just a few short years ago this was well out of the business part of the city, but now it is not considered a strictly residence store. Located at the intersection of two boulevards, it is most favorably situated. Mr. Humfeld has been in the flower business all his life and in Kansas City thirty years, being a member of a family well known in this line. He has a farm of twenty acres, where hardy stock is grown, particularly delphiniums and gladioli, and several greenhouses near Independence, Mo. Mr. Humfeld is chairman of the entertainment committee for the S. A. F. convention.

Another boulevard store is that of the Peterson Floral Co., at Linwood and Gillham road. Mr. and Mrs. T. J. Cane are the proprietors. Mr. Cane was in business downtown for a number of years and moved south twelve years ago. He visioned the growth of the city in that direction and there has been a wonderful improvement in that part of the city. This corner is well adapted for a flower store.

Robert Fields, or "Bob" Fields, as he is popularly known, is one of the most cheerful and friendly members of the florists' business in this part of the country. His flower store is in Kansas City, Kan. It is the outgrowth of a flower garden started by his mother many years ago because she loved flowers and could not have too many of them around her place. Mrs. Fields built a small greenhouse, and she and her husband then went into the business of growing flowers for commercial purposes. The son grew up in the business and became its manager when his mother's health failed and his father retired from the active management. Mrs. Fields died several months ago. Robert Fields is chairman of the automobile tours committee of the S. A. F. convention.

Women Leaders.

In an account of the successful florists of the city, the women have an important place. Those who have built substantially and well have had the same difficulties to contend with that the men have had and, like the men, started with small funds but high courage and perseverance. Miss Lou Boggess was employed by her grandfather, D. Freudenthal, for a number of years. Mr. Freudenthal was one of the pioneer florists here and a sturdy character. His store was near the city market. From him the young granddaughter learned the business well. After his death the business was disposed of and Miss Boggess went to work in the flower department of Eyssell's drug store, at Eleventh street and Grand avenue. When he decided to sell the flower department Miss Boggess borrowed $400 to pay for the fixtures and the first month's rent. That was fifteen years ago. Now she owns a comfortable home in a pretty residence section of the city, has a motor car, owes no one a dollar, discounts her bills and is well satisfied with life. Miss Boggess belongs to several societies and receives much patronage from the members. She carries between thirty and thirty-five lodges on her books and through these gets a great deal of business. Miss Boggess ably assists Mrs. T. A. Moseley on the ladies' reception committee for the S. A. F convention.

Mrs. T. A. Moseley's store, at 724 Minnesota avenue, is one of the established florists' places in Kansas City, Kan. Mrs. Moseley has been in business eighteen years. She learned the business in Chicago, but had little experience when she opened her first shop. The taste of the public in floral designs and the improvement in the cultivation of flowers have changed much in the time she has been selling. Mrs. Moseley believes that if a woman has determination and ability, there is no less reason why she should succeed than a man with like attributes. Mrs. Moseley heads the ladies' reception committee for the S. A. F. convention.

J. E. Murray & Co. have an extremely attractive shop at 217 East Tenth street. Just across the street, on the corner, is the Federal Reserve bank for the tenth district, recently completed at a cost of several millions of dollars. The bank occupies a large part of the space, but some of the floors are rented for offices and this brings a great many persons to and from the building daily. For this reason a flower store in such close proximity gets good transient trade. However, transient trade is not what J. E. Murray & Co. depend upon. Miss Jean E. Murray and Miss Grace Murray compose the firm. Miss Murray has been in the florists' business in Kansas City for twenty-five years, and her sister has been associated with her a large part of that time. They have made a real success of their business because they are conscientious in their efforts to please the public and give first-class service in every way. Miss Murray belongs to the Woman's City Club, the Woman's Commercial Club and the Auxiliary of St. Andrew's Society. She is a sturdy member of the ladies' reception committee for the coming convention.

Wholesale Houses.

There are four wholesale houses in Kansas City, the Kansas City Wholesale Cut Flower Co., the T. J. Noll Floral Co., the Stuppy Supply Co. and H. Kusik & Co.

At the head of the Kansas City Wholesale Cut Flower Co. is a wholesaler who has been in the retail game, L. R. Bohannon. He started to work thirty-five years ago, for Wittbold, in Chicago. Later he worked in C. A. Samuelson's establishment. By that time he decided to go into business and opened a retail store, which he continued for three years and then sold. After working for the Fleischman Floral Co. for a time, he opened the Bohannon Floral Co., which is still in operation, at 75 East Monroe street, Chicago. Part of the time that Mr. Bohannon was in Chicago he was a partner in the wholesale business of T. J. Noll & Co. When that partnership was dissolved Mr. Bohannon went to Kansas City and opened the Kansas City Wholesale Cut Flower Co., now at 1121 Grand avenue. Mr. Bohannon has been an F. T. D. member for ten years. He belongs to the Kiwanis Club in Chicago, the Chamber of Commerce in Kansas City and is treasurer of the Kansas City Florists' Club. Mrs. and Mrs. Bohannon celebrated their twenty-fifth wedding anniversary June 3. Music is Mr. Bohannon's hobby outside of business hours and he finds great pleasure in training his son, Robert, who has an unusually good voice. Mr. Bohannon is chairman of the local program committee for the S. A. F. convention.

Also Heads Club.

The head of the T. J. Noll Floral Co. started to work in a greenhouse when he was a boy. After thoroughly learning that branch of the business, he entered the retail field and was quite successful there for ten years. Not content, however, until he had tried the third branch of the business, he organized a wholesale business eight years ago under the name of T. J. Noll & Co. Two years ago last May he opened the T. J. Noll Floral Co., at 1117 McGee street, a wholesale cut flower and supply house. Mr. Noll is president of the Kansas City Florists' Club and has held that office since the club's organization, two years ago. He is chairman of the reception committee for the S. A. F. convention.

Youngest House.

The manager of the Stuppy Supply Co., Glenn K. Parker, has been connected with the flower business since his early life, starting in with his grandfather, George M. Kellogg, at Pleasant Hill, Mo., in 1903, working there in charge of the retail and wholesale department for ten years. In 1903 Mr. Parker moved his family to Kansas City and took charge of the Geo. M. Kellogg Flower & Plant Co. wholesale and retail store, at 1122 Grand avenue, working there for five years.

He then drifted from the florists' trade for a few years, opening a large garage and running a successful business. Disposing of this, he formed, with Frank Stuppy, the Stuppy Supply Co., which opened October 1, 1921, at 1020 Oak street.

The firm is composed of Frank X. Stuppy, president; Glenn K. Parker, vice-president and general manager; Dr. B. W. Murphy, secretary and treasurer. Mrs. Anna Stuppy, of St. Joseph, Mo., is also a member of the company.

Mr. Parker has been secretary of the Kansas City Florists' Club since January, 1922, completing the unexpired term of William Wade when Mr. Wade went on the road for the W. L. Rock Flower Co.

Mr. Parker is chairman of the invitation committee for the S. A. F. convention. Mr. Parker was the designer and decorator of the automobile that took first prize in the floral parade at Kansas City, under the name of the Kansas City Florists' Club, a few weeks ago.

Seed Farm.

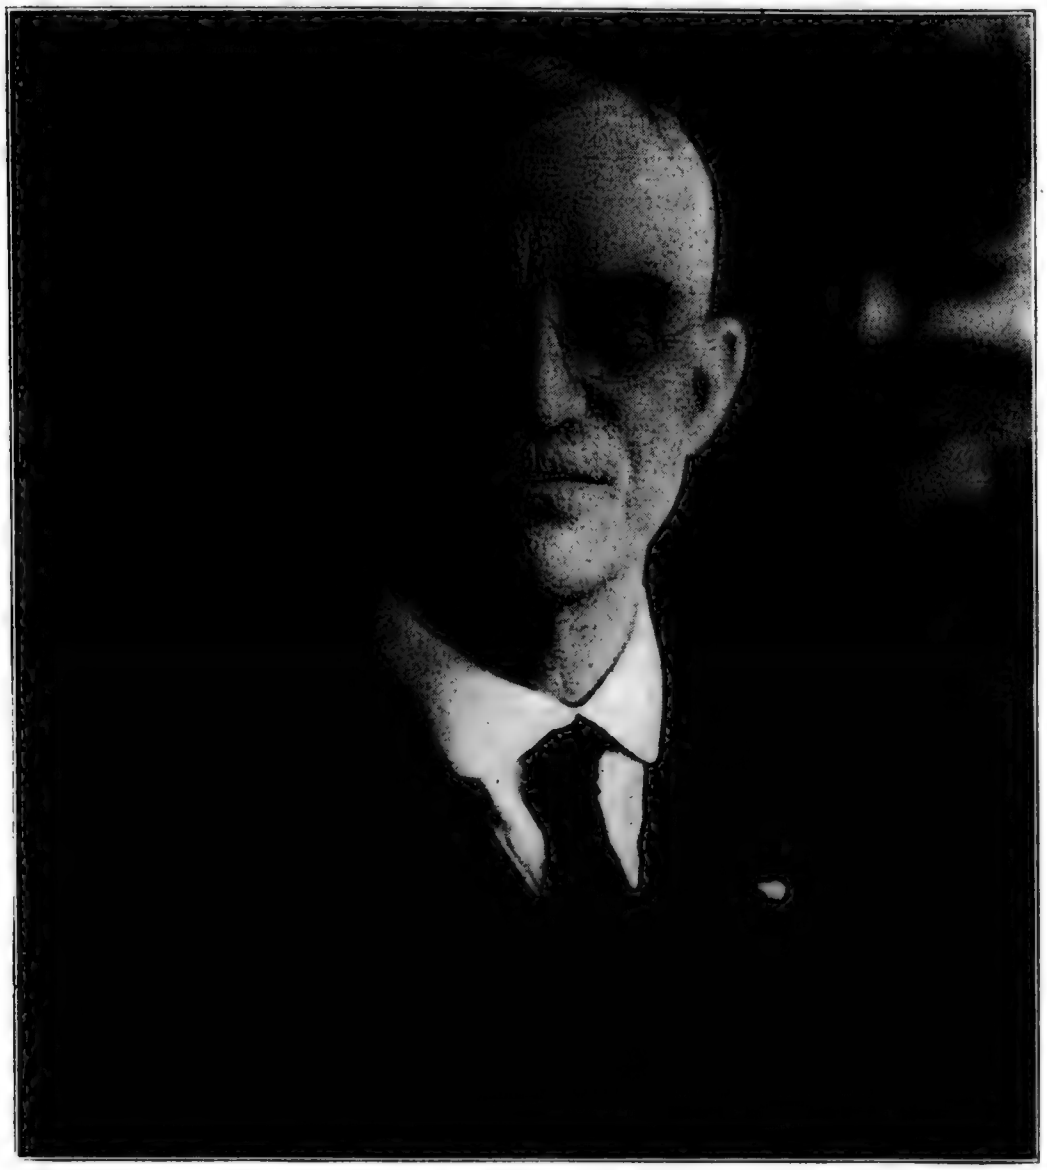
S. Bryson Ayres' seed farms are unusual places in the southwest because they are on such a large scale. The one near Independence, Mo., consists of sixty acres and the one on Blue Ridge boulevard of 100 acres. The latter has been in cultivation three years and shows a great mass of bloom for several months of the year. Giant white candytuft, several varieties of poppies, cornflowers and delphinium are now being harvested. The plants are being cut with a tractor and gathered into bundles, and the seeds are threshed out with a threshing machine. Five acres are in cornflowers. There are 150,000 double white gypsophila plants, 3 years old, to be sold this season. Mr. Ayres grows a variety of flowers the year around. He has one house for sweet peas, on which he has built up a reputation.

Greenhouses.

Longview Farm is pretty well known all through the United States, on account of the variety of interests featured there. High-bred horses, fancy stock and high-class roses are among the lines, but not all that is raised on the farm. The place is the country estate of R. A. Long, who also has a magnificent home in the northeastern part of Kansas City. Mr. Long and his family spend the most of the summer at their home on the farm. His manager and a full corps of assistants live on the farm in ideally modern homes the year around. The greenhouses on the farm are among the best that supply the trade in Kansas City and the flowers grown there, particularly the roses, are always eagerly sought by the trade.

Independence, Mo., is well liked for greenhouse sites and flower farms. The soil around there seems to be just right for growing good stock, and it is close enough to Kansas City to make it easy to bring flowers to the market. John Stevens has three greenhouses out that way, among the best anywhere around Kansas City. He is devoting much attention to his new carnation and is growing roses.

John Klaus has several houses at Graceland Farm, Greenwood, Mo., and is a grower of fine roses and carnations. His stock is well known through his territory. Mr. Klaus heads the sports committee for the S. A. F. convention.



Charles Thomas is growing fine outdoor stock on his farm near Seventy-ninth street and Troost avenue.

A. N. Nielsen has a range at Fifty-eighth street and Bennington avenue. He is a large grower of carnations.

A more lengthy sketch would include the description of the establishments of A. F. Barbe, A. D. Mohr, Akin's Floral Co., O'Connell Flower Shop, at Kansas City; Pinehurst Floral Co., at Pleasant Hill, Mo., and several others.

There are so many florists in and about Kansas City that it would be impossible even to mention them all in one article. No slight is meant to anyone who is omitted in this brief description. When the visitors to the S. A. F. convention go to Kansas City they will find a complete list of the florists of the city and persons willing to direct or take them to see any or all that they care to visit.

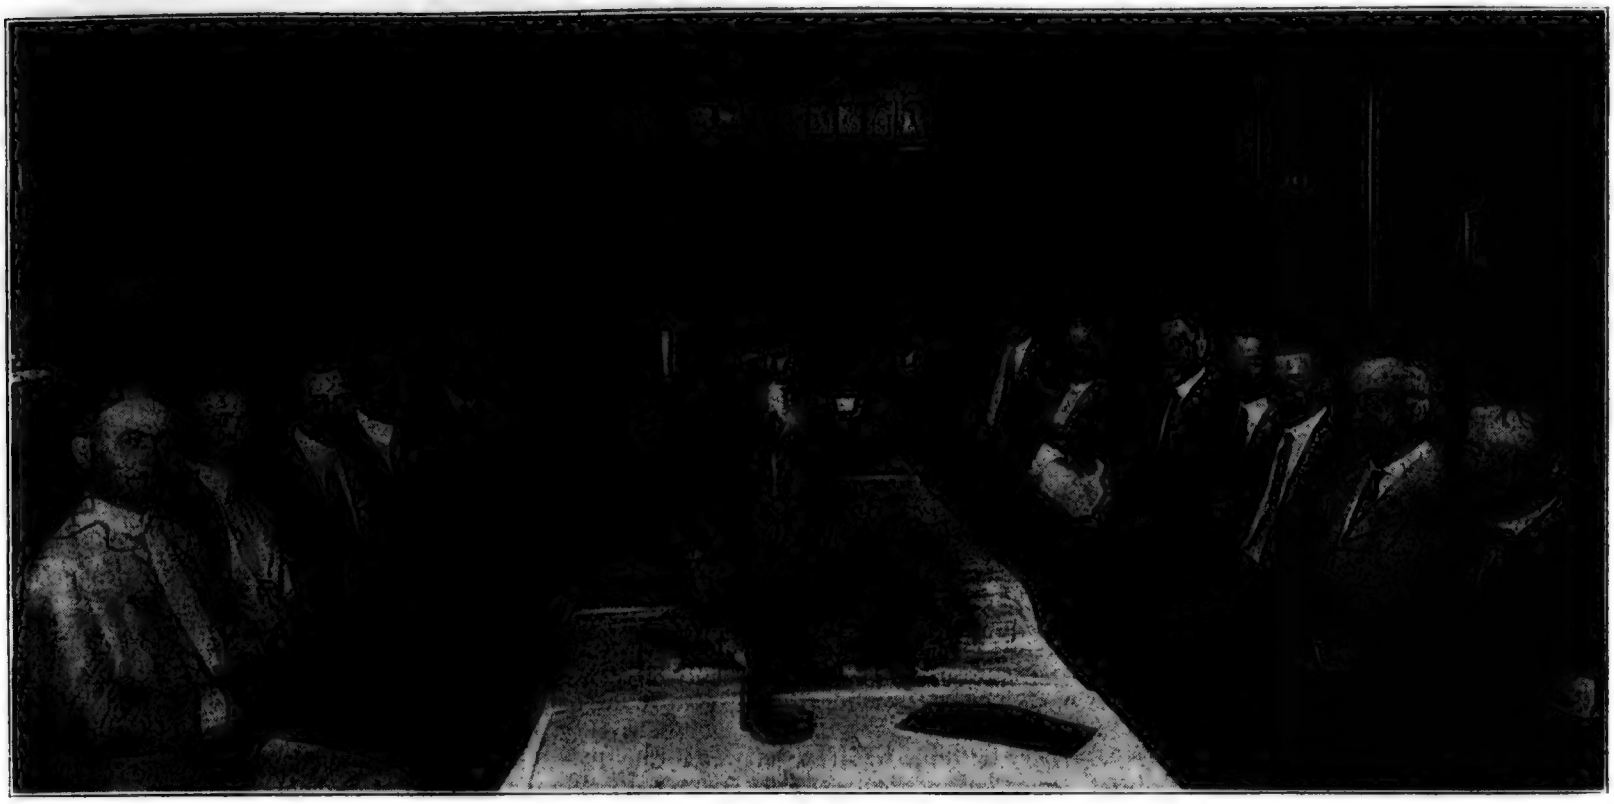
WHO'S WHO ON COMMITTEES.

Leaders in Convention Preparations.

The preceding article about the principal florists' establishments in Kansas City and their proprietors tells who some of the active leaders are in the preparations for the S. A. F. convention, August 15 to 17. Indeed, among the persons included are nearly all the chairmen of the local committees. The committee chairmen not there mentioned, being employees, are so well known in Kansas City and so active in convention matters that visitors should be acquainted with them, too.



Miss Mary Hayden, chairman of the woman's bowling committee, has been decorator in Samuel Murray's store for twenty-four years. She learned the business in Chicago, of which city she is a native, and is one of the finest artists in the trade. Besides being artistic, Miss Hayden is a thoroughly capable business woman. She is chairman of the publicity committee of the Kansas City Florists' Club. In this office she has displayed rare judgment in the advertising of flowers for holidays and special occasions, a feature which has added much to the volume of local flower business.

William Wade, chairman of the transportation committee, has been with the William L. Rock Flower Co. the greater part of the last twenty years. Mr. Wade is a native of Missouri and was educated at the state university. When the Pinehurst Floral Co., Pleasant Hill, Mo., opened a branch house in this city, Mr. Wade was made manager. Later he returned to the Rock organization and is now a traveling representative for that company. Mr. Wade was the first secretary of the Kansas City Florists' Club. It was largely through his efforts that the club was organized. He is secretary of the Missouri State Florists' Association.

Roy F. Millis, chairman of the information committee, is floor manager and buyer for the Alpha Floral Co. He has been with this firm ten years and has become known as a strong, upbuilding factor in the business. Mr. Millis has put in a great many systems and has enacted many policies that have met with the approval of the president of the Alpha Floral Co. He is a man of rare business genius and has met with great success wherever he has been.

William C. Murray, chairman of the printing committee, is cashier and bookkeeper and general office manager for his brother, Samuel Murray. W. C. Murray was born in Scotland. He came to Kansas City seven years ago. He says he knows little about the growing and care of plants, but enjoys them nevertheless. He is fond of outdoor sports, especially baseball and fishing, and is an ardent golf player.

D. conference committee, is called W. L. Rock's right bower. He is, indeed, right-hand man in the Rock organization and, having been in business a score of years, he is capable of handling the many details that fall to his care. He is, withal, pleasant and affable, having a smile at all times.

KANSAS CITY LEADERS.

BOWLING TROPHY.

The illustration just below shows the cup offered by the Kansas City Florists' Club to the team making the highest score in the bowling tournament to be held during the S. A. F. convention, at Harvey's Recreation, Twelfth and Wyandotte, at 8 p. m., August 16.

The condition offered in awarding the cup stipulates that it shall be an annual trophy, to be contested for each year at the convention tournament. In event that any team wins the cup three times within a period of five years, it shall be awarded to that team and shall not be contested for thereafter.

Kansas City Club's Bowling Trophy.

John Klaus, chairman of the sports committee, says he has many other valuable premiums for the tournament. Anyone desiring to enter for the tournament should communicate with Glenn K. Parker, secretary of the Kansas City Florists' Club, 1020 Oak street, or with the chairman of the sports committee, John Klaus, Greenwood, Mo.

KANSAS CITY MAKES READY.

Committee Chairmen Meet.

The meeting of chairmen of local committees for the S. A. F. convention Wednesday, July 26, at the Midday Club was a social affair itself. On the luncheon table were two large bowls of rubrum lilies and buddleias, furnished and arranged by William L. Rock. In the center was a tall vase containing a spray of Canadian orchids. Mr. Rock offered $5 to the florist who could name the variety, but no one claimed the prize. The variety is rare. The flower was greatly admired for its beauty. A spray between five and six feet long contained 160 blooms. While luncheon was being served, plans for the convention were gone over and some unfinished matters were worked out. William Wade, chairman of the local S. A. F. committee, reported twenty paid new members and several prospective ones. W. L. Rock, general chairman, said that all letters being sent out by his company contain a paragraph calling attention to the radio program to be given by the Kansas City Florists' Club August 7. He suggested that all the florists make this feature a part of their correspondence until the date of the concert. Glenn K. Parker, secretary of the Florists' Club, is sending out about 9,000 invitations to the convention to florists, nurserymen, horticulturists and officers of state and municipal institutions devoted to these interests in the United States and Canada. Every S. A. F. member will receive a personal invitation from the Florists' Club and the Chamber of Commerce.

Entertainment Program.

The local entertainment program for the convention is complete. There may be some slight change in detail later, made necessary by the general program. The president's reception and ball will be held in the Hotel Muehlebach Tuesday evening, August 15. Wednesday evening the bowling teams will compete for honors at Harvey's Recreation. John Klaus, chairman of the sports committee, has a good prize list made up. The Florists' Club trophy is a silver cup, to be given to the team making the best score.

Thursday morning at 11:30 the visiting women will be taken from the Muehlebach hotel to the Meadow Lake Country Club, where luncheon will be served with the Kansas City women as hostesses. This drive will be a pleasant feature, as the club is delightfully situated in the suburbs, about thirty-five minutes' ride from the hotel. After luncheon a musical program will be given by professional talent. Following this the women will be brought back to the Muehlebach. At 5 o'clock all of the visitors, men and women, will be taken for an automobile ride over the boulevards in the residence part of the city. Thursday evening the visitors will be entertained at Electric park with a vaudeville program in the Follies theater. There will also be dancing.

At the chairmen's meeting last Wednesday, July 26, the attendance was almost 100 per cent. One or two were out of the city, but reports for their committees were made by other members in their absence. Everything is going smoothly, and as the time for the convention approaches, the enthusiasm of those who are preparing for it increases. The meeting is expected to be one of the largest and most interesting in every respect ever held.

After the meeting a flashlight photograph was taken of the committee.

Tune In, at 360 Meters.

The radio invitational program of the Kansas City Florists' Club to the S. A. F. convention will be broadcasted by the Kansas City Star, August 7, from 8 to 9:30 p. m., central time, from Kansas City radio station, W. D. A. F. Florists throughout Missouri and other states who have radio receiving sets are asked to listen for this concert. The novelty of hearing a personal invitation by long-distance methods is such that several florists have written to the local committee expressing approval of the method and assuring members that they will be waiting to catch the program. The Kansas City Star's broadcasting station is equipped with powerful apparatus capable of easily reaching within a radius of 500 to 1,000 miles and much farther with conditions just right.

The program which will be given is as follows:

Selection by the Kansas City Florists' Club orchestra.
Short invitation to the S. A. F. convention, by William L. Rock.
Vocal trio, by Sam Worley, Harry Kessell and Bert Beuder.
Saxaphone duet, by Arthur Mohr and Ray McDonald.
Vocal solo, by Mrs. Katherine Moseley Beaman.
Short address, by S. J. Hare, on "City Beautification; Its Educational Advantages."
Violin solo, by John McClure.
Selection, "Say It with Flowers," by Florists' Club orchestra.
Saxaphone solo, by Arthur Mohr.
Medley, by Florists' Club orchestra.
Piano solo, by Eddie Werner.
Tenor solo, by Robert Bohannon.
Selection, by Florists' Club orchestra.

Express Company Will Help.

The following letter, received by W. L. Rock, general chairman of the local S. A. F. arrangements, shows the interest being manifested in the coming convention:

I notice that the Society of American Florists is to hold its annual convention in Kansas City, Mo., during the month of August, and as usual the American Railway Express Co. is desirous of rendering to your association or its members all possible service in the transportation and delivery of any exhibition or personal packages which might be entrusted to our care.

We will arrange special delivery of any shipments which might reach here for the convention, as well as have representatives at convention hall when the show is over to render any possible assistance, advice or otherwise, in getting the goods ready for return, whether the goods be express, freight or otherwise.

We will deliver everything possible early in the morning or at the time which might be specified by you and make special deliveries in the afternoon of all matter reaching here up to 4 o'clock. Also render any pick-up service that any of your members might require.

In holding the convention in Kansas City, I am sure that all the visitors will not be disappointed in our city and they will be well pleased to have come to the Heart of America.

Any assistance which I might be able to render for the success of the convention, I will be glad to offer in any capacity whatever, either personally or with the forces of the entire organization of the American Railway Express Co.

Yours truly,
J. S. Johnson,
Superintendent.

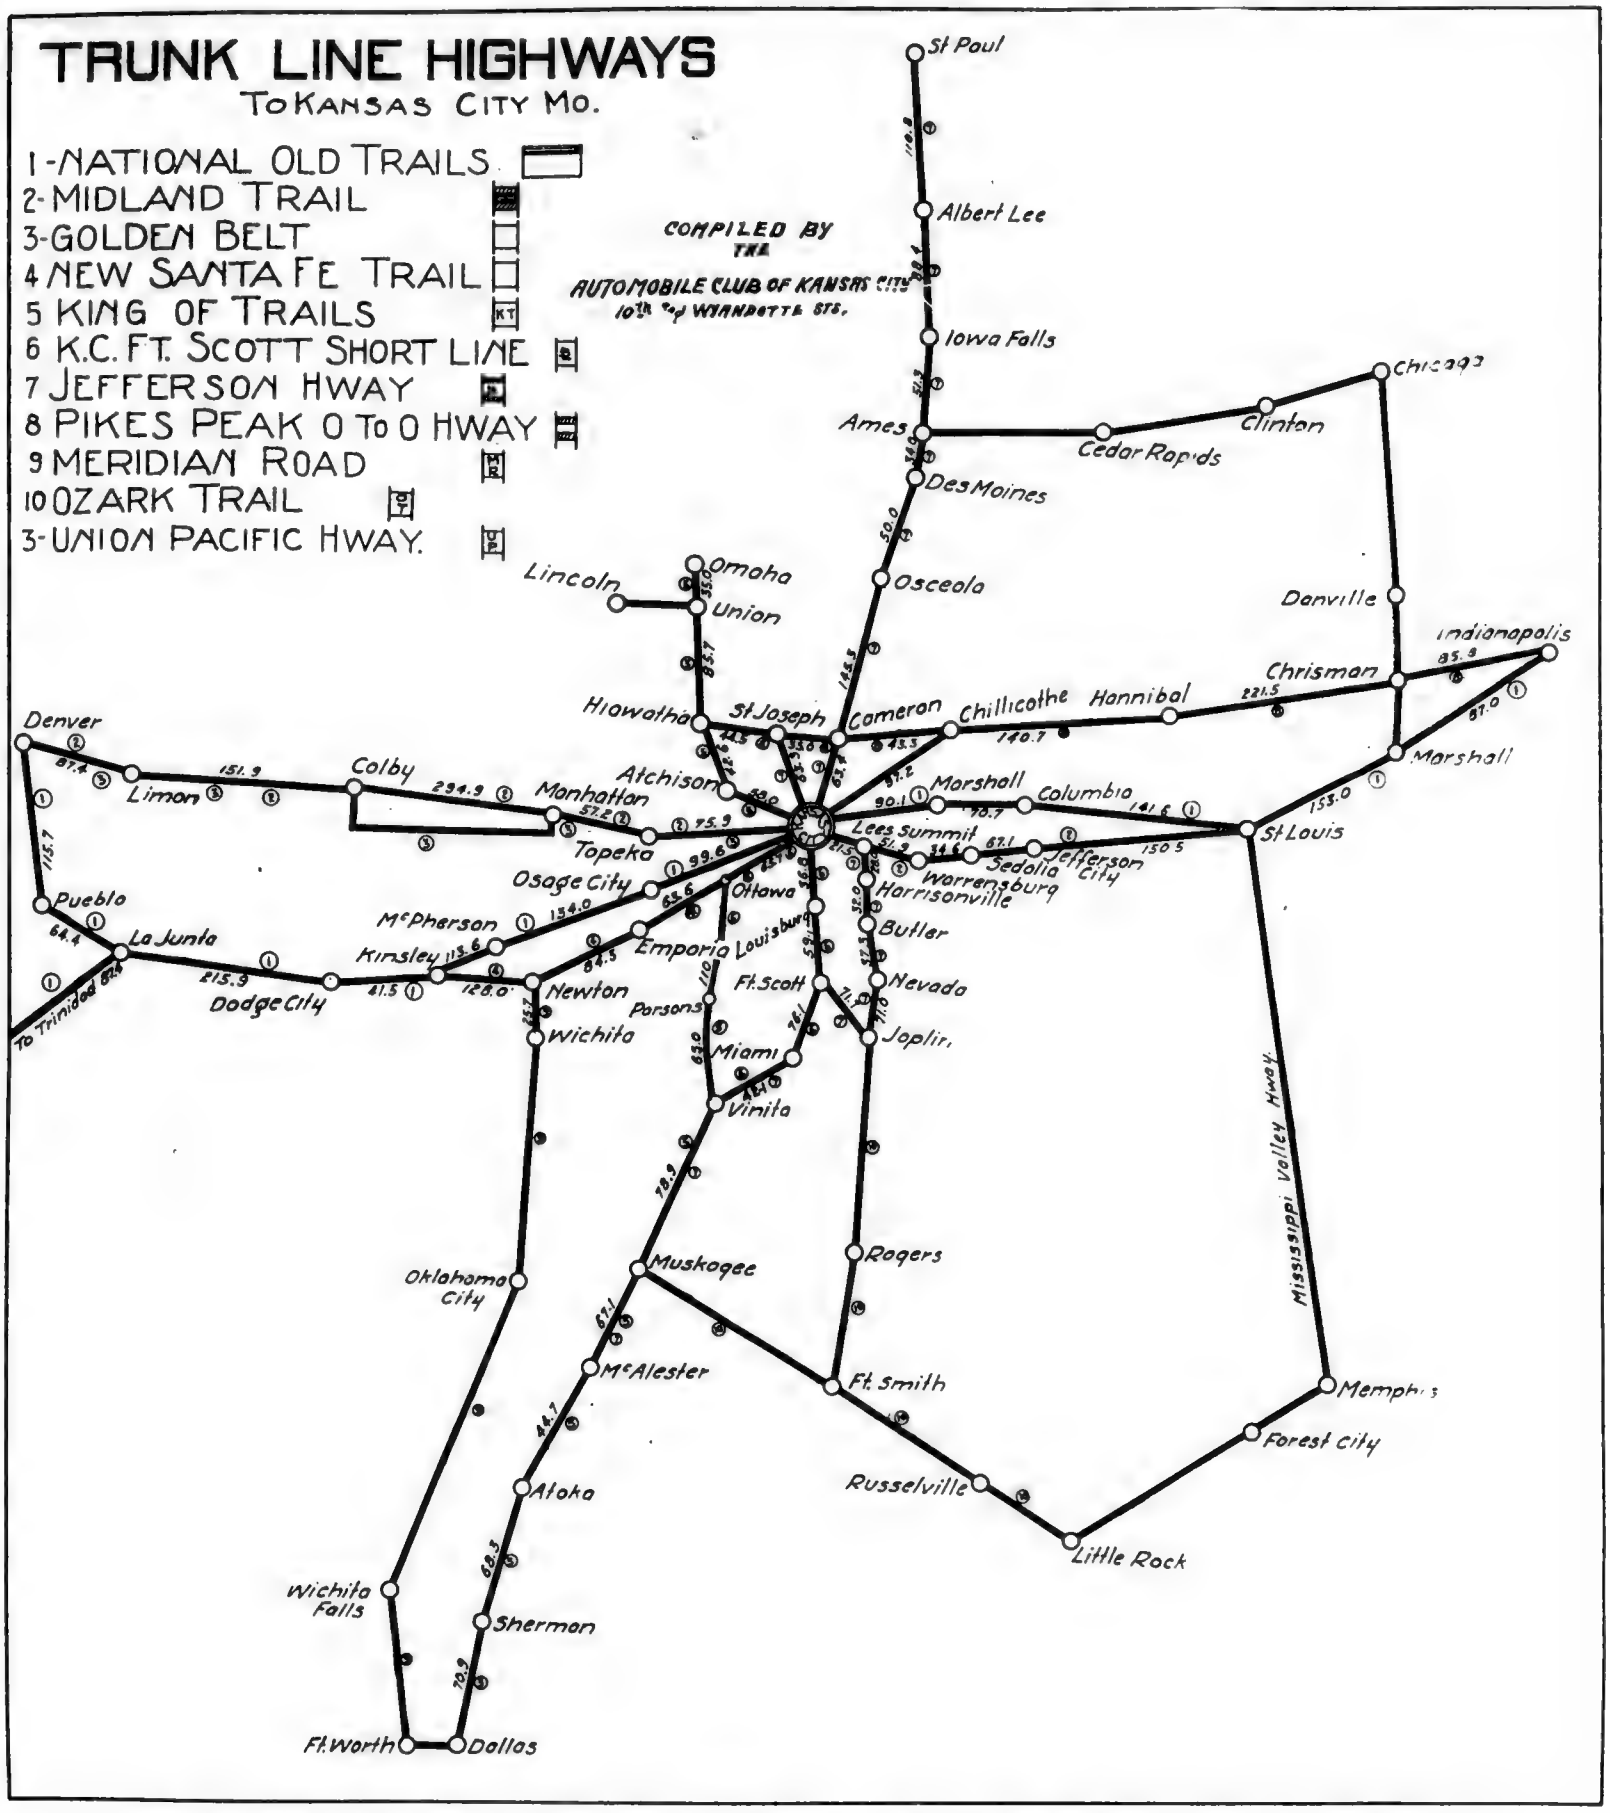
KANSAS CITY CONVENTION.

Secretary at Kansas City.

The secretary is now in Kansas City and will remain until after the convention. He should be addressed on all matters pertaining to the convention at the Muehlebach hotel, where his temporary office is maintained.

Addition to Official Program.

A little function, which should have been noted in the official program, is scheduled for the session of the first day, Tuesday afternoon, August 15. The Indiana State Florists' Association and the national flower show committee will at this session, as a token of their appreciation of the interest in the Indianapolis national flower show displayed by Thomas Roland, Nahant, Mass., through his wonderful exhibit of acacias at the show, assembled there at considerable expense and risk, tender to that gentleman a testimonial which shall at least insure that a record of his unselfish devotion to a part of the work of the society dear to all its members will go down in the annals of the society, perhaps to stimulate in others the desire to render similar service when occasion requires. John Young, Sec'y.



Arthur Newell.
(Chairman of the Hotel Reservation Committee for Kansas City Convention.)

MOTOR ROUTES TO CONVENTION.

The Automobile Club of Kansas City has drawn a special map for the benefit of florists who will motor to Kansas City for the S. A. F. convention. This map shows the principal highways from various parts of the country leading to Kansas City, and the markings of the highways. Tourists will be able to make the trip with much more ease by following these routes, as they are direct and the roads are good.

The Automobile Club of Kansas City has generously offered to be of every possible assistance to members of the S. A. F. The club has offered cars for the convenience of members of the local florists' club and visiting florists for sight-seeing trips. The club is one of the largest organizations in the city. Mayor Frank H. Cromwell, elected by a large majority in the city campaign last spring, without the aid of any local newspaper, is president of the club.

QUARANTINE EXTENDED.

The European corn borer quarantine has been extended by the United States Department of Agriculture, to include the towns of Somerset and Dighton, in Bristol county, Mass.

NORTH CAROLINA MEETING.

Second Annual Gathering.

Members of the North Carolina Florists' Association held their second annual meeting July 25 at the Woman's Club, Raleigh, N. C.

It was decided to stage an elaborate display of flowers at the state fair in October. The entire central space of Floral hall, including the exhibition space in the middle and the six encircling booths, will be used for displaying flowers and potted plants. A number of the firms represented at the meeting agreed to take space in the exhibit, and a committee composed of Otto Buseck, of Asheville; C. N. Hibbard, of Durham, and J. E. Wholey, of Raleigh, was appointed to perfect the plans for this display.

J. I. McCallum, of Scholtz the Florist, Inc., Charlotte, was elected president of the association, succeeding George J. Starr, of Wilson, who has done much to get the association organized and actively working. Otto Buseck, of Middlemount Gardens, Asheville, was elected secretary-treasurer, succeeding Mr. McCallum. Directors elected were: William Rehder, Wilmington; C. N. Hibbard, of the Durham Floral Co., Durham, and J. E. Wholey, of the J. J. Fallon Co., Raleigh.

The next meeting of the association, it was voted, will be held in Raleigh during fair week, as many of the florists will be there for the fair exhibit.

Banquet and Business.

A banquet and business meeting of the association was held at the Woman's Club Tuesday night, July 25. The association was welcomed by Simms Jamieson, secretary of the Chamber of Commerce, who spoke of the beauty of the florists' profession in its appeal and close touch to human hearts. Mr. Jamieson was presented with the beautiful basket of pink gladioli and roses and ferns that adorned the table. The response was made by Mr. Hibbard.

Mr. Buseck spoke in behalf of the Florists' Telegraph Delivery Association and Mr. Wholey presented the proposition of the state fair exhibit. The association voted to make a contribution to the Anna Jarvis memorial fund for the originator of Mothers' day.

It was voted that each member should write his congressman protesting against the passage of H. R. 8441, which would eliminate special delivery on parcel post packages.

Those present included George J. Starr, Wilson; Arthur Weathers, Rocky Mount; S. A. Starr, Goldsboro; J. E. Wholey, Raleigh; Thomas O. Doyle, Fayetteville; J. I. McCallum, Charlotte; Mrs. J. W. Black, Kinston; Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Fallon, Lynchburg; H. Steinmetz, Raleigh; L. B. Clemons, Greensboro; Mrs. W. E. Wilson, Henderson; Otto Buseck, Asheville; J. Van Hanford, Salisbury; Tom O'Connor, Greensboro; R. G. Lavender, Raleigh; Mrs. N. W. Cobb, Durham; R. E. Grunert, Winston Salem; Mrs. F. S. Denmark, Kinston; E. P. Trollinger, Burlington; William Rehder, Wilmington; Mr. and Mrs. C. N. Hibbard, Durham; M. J. McPhail, Sanford; J. H. Martin, Raleigh; Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Barringer and son, Statesville; Robert Q. Shoch, H. T. Royer and A. F. Eilers, of Philadelphia.

IRIS FIELDS IN KANSAS.

Perhaps some of the visitors to the S. A. F. convention at Kansas City, week after next, may wish to see irises growing in that section of the country. The illustration just above is an example of what they will be able to find. This picture shows the fields of H. H. Kern, at Bonner Springs, Kan., twenty miles west of Kansas City. Mr. Kern expects to have about 100,000 irises for sale in autumn.

TUBEROSES IN TEXAS.

How the tuberoses are growing in Texas this summer may be seen from the illustration just below, made from a photograph taken two weeks ago in the fields of the Nytex Floral Co., at Alvin, Tex. The company now has about four acres devoted to these tuberoses.

Seven years ago, when ten acres of land were purchased, in plowing it up, three bushels of tuberose bulbs were gathered from locations in various parts of the tract. The following spring the bulbs were set out, and every second year they have been taken up and divided. Each time a good many of the large bulbs were sold, while the smaller ones were set out again. By this process was worked up the present four acres of stock.

Tuberoses require a rich soil, a great deal of cultivation and plenty of moisture. It is, therefore, rather expensive to grow first-class flowers and bulbs. But the expense brings returns, because the better stock, it has been found, pays the most.

COLOR OF HYDRANGEAS.

Can you tell me what is wrong with my hydrangeas? I took cuttings from some that had blue flowers and mine all have pink ones. The plants from which I took cuttings grew in another person's garden, and others who had taken cuttings obtained blue flowers. Why did mine come pink?

S. S. S.—Conn.

It is believed that the character of the soil is largely responsible for the color of some hydrangeas. Probably your soil is different from that in which grew the hydrangeas from which you took cuttings. Plants bearing pink flowers, as in your case, have been made to bear blue ones by the addition of iron filings or alum to the soil.

BUSINESS EMBARRASSMENTS.

Warwick, R. I.—Joseph E. Koppelman, the Providence wholesaler, has placed a writ of attachment on the Maplehurst Greenhouses, for an alleged balance due on book account. The property attached includes buildings and improvements on Hope street.

BADGERS AT OSHKOSH

WISCONSIN FLORISTS MEET.

Summer Gathering a Success.

The third annual summer meeting of the Wisconsin State Florists' Association was held in Oshkosh, Wis., July 25 and 26. The meeting was held in the Municipal Club building, on the shore of Lake Winnebago, an ideal place for the meeting. It was well attended, there being about 150 members and ladies present. Most of the members motored to Oshkosh, as it is centrally located and good roads from all points of the state center there.

R. Voss, councilman, representing the mayor of the city, made the address of welcome. The response to the mayor's welcome was given by C. C. Pollworth. President Fred Rentschler occupied the chair and handled the meeting in good shape.

As the summer meetings are more for the outings than anything else, little business was transacted. Some interesting questions, however, were discussed. Discounts to undertakers created considerable argument. J. B. Fracken, of the state entomology department, gave a lengthy talk on insects and remedies and urged the florists to make more use of the department.

J. Fred Ammann, representing the F. T. D., made his usual eloquent address, touching on the florists' business in general, and then took up the advantages to the trade in being a member of the F. T. D. After the general session, a special meeting of all F. T. D. members was held and a number of names were added to the membership list. Mr. Ammann was well pleased with his visit. He had motored up from Milwaukee with W. A. Kennedy.

The financial report showed the association to be in a good condition. Secretary H. Welke reported a big increase in membership, it being now 182. This is pretty good for Wisconsin and a credit to the officers.

Banquet Largely Attended.

During the meeting, the ladies were entertained with a motor trip to Neenah, and they reported a most enjoyable time. One of the features of the meeting was the banquet given in the spacious dining room of the Municipal Club building, and over 200 were present at the dinner. An excellent dinner was served and the entertainment feature was excellent. Some fine musical numbers were rendered and a local singer of prominence sang several songs. A quintette called the Dynamite Five kept the crowd in an uproar most of the time. William Zimmermann acted as toastmaster and kept things moving lively. Miss Haentze, daughter of Richard Haentze, gave several recitations in a clever style.

After the banquet all of the guests proceeded to the ballroom on the second floor and danced until midnight. Wednesday morning all of the visiting florists were given a boat ride up the beautiful Fox river and 150 members enjoyed the trip. Light refreshments were served and a quartette kept the crowd in a merry mood.

During the banquet a song composed for the occasion by Walter J. Crawford, of Oshkosh, was given its initial rendition, by the Lyric quartette. Its words are:

If a deed of kindness you would do,
If you'd tell of tender love so true,
Find the blossoms, kissed by morning dew—
Say It with Flowers.

When deep sorrowed clouds bedim the skies,
Let the flowers tell of friendship's ties,
Bid them drive the tears from saddened eyes—
Say It with Flowers.

Think, then, what to us this world would be Without flowers, God's gift, so rich and free!
This their message sweet to you and me—
"Say It with Flowers."

This meeting was one of the best that the association has ever had, and the Oshkosh boys should be congratulated on the manner in which everything was handled and on the excellent meeting and reception given to the visitors. Credit for the success of the meeting is given James E. Taylor, Carl Fugleberg, J. V. Nelson, R. E. Pamplin, William Buchholz and Ward B. Davis.

Fred Holton, of Holton & Hunkel Co., who motored up with a party, escaped a serious accident while trying to avoid a collision with another car. He was forced into a ditch, his car tipping over. Eugene Oestreicher, secretary of the club, received several bad cuts and Mr. Holton's car was badly damaged, but all of the party reached the convention later in the day, although badly shaken up. They were happy, however, at escaping more serious injury.

A severe shock was given the members of the association when the news reached them Wednesday morning, July 26, that J. E. Matthewson, of Sheboygan, Wis., was killed in an automobile accident. Mr. Matthewson was an active and prominent member of the state association and its president during 1920. Expressions of sorrow were voiced by the members and a large floral emblem was sent to the bereaved family by the association. Further particulars appear on the obituary page.

Exhibitors.

Those firms making trade displays were as follows: C. C. Pollworth Co., Milwaukee, Wis.; Holton & Hunkel Co., Milwaukee, Wis.; Ove Gnatt Co., La Porte, Ind.; Raedlein Basket Co., Chicago; A. L. Randall Co., Chicago; American Bulb Co., Chicago; Burlington Willow Ware Shops, Burlington, Ia.

Schmidt's Close-Ups.

The following "close-ups" of the Oshkosh meeting are submitted for Review readers' edification by "Schmidt":

Chas. Oehlenschlager, of Oconomowoc, one of the granddads of the profession, received quite a hand when he answered the roll call. So did George Vatter, of Marinette.

Dick Haentze, the mayor of Fond du Lac, can look with real pride on his charming daughter, Anna Minette, who entertained at the banquet with several humorous readings. We predict some big future for the young lady.

George Mohn, Phil Weil, Joe Marks, et al., were observed at a quiet game of "tiddly winks" between booking orders.

Clem Pollworth showed about eight varieties of fine summer roses arranged to form a pretty mantel decoration at the Athearn.

The Oshkosh boys had about fifty vases of splendid gladioli at the hotel and club house.

About twenty-five F. T. D. members and prospects gathered for a brief but interesting confab, right after the business meeting, with J. F. Ammann. More strength to you, J. F.!

Genial Gene Oestreicher attended the banquet limping and his head in bandages. Gene, with a party headed by one Fred Holton, got their signals crossed on state highway 23.

We happened to "lamp" a guest at the Athearn handing the operator $28.75 for a 14-minute conversation with New York. No, dear reader, it wasn't a florist, not even a wholesaler.

About ninety per cent of the 200 guests came via auto over the wonderful highways of Wisconsin.

Our prexy, Fred Rentschler, sure was a busy man hand shaking with his constituents.

I thank you.

GERMINATION OF ASPARAGUS.

In last week's Review, C. J. A. asked about the percentage of germination of asparagus seeds. Three years ago we purchased seven pounds of Asparagus plumosus seed of a firm at Montebello, Cal.; from these we potted slightly over 65,000 plants. The seeds were supposed to run 10,000 to the pound, but we doubt that they did, because in potting the young seedlings not a seed was to be found. We are certain that ninety-eight per cent of the seed germinated. Last year we purchased a pound from the same firm, from which we potted 8,500 seedlings, and not a seed was to be found in the soil. This season we purchased a pound from another firm in California and at this writing there are not to exceed 1,000 seedlings to pot. In sending for these seeds we stipulated that if they had been on plants which were frosted, and were not absolutely A-No. 1, the check should be returned at once. There is no doubt that these last seeds were at fault.

CAMELLIA JAPONICA SEED.

In the July 20 issue The Review asked if some southern readers could advise an inquirer where Camellia japonica seed could be obtained. The usual prompt and obliging responses have come.

A. C. Oelschig, Savannah, Ga., stated that the seed may be secured from T. Sakata & Co., of Yokohama, Japan, which firm has a branch office at 20 East Jackson boulevard, Chicago, Ill. Mr. Oelschig also advised that small plants may be secured from George Bignault, R. F. D., Savannah, Ga.

In the same mail a letter from the Beaumont Seed Co., Beaumont, Tex., states that seed of Camellia japonica was secured by that company two months ago from Conyers B. Fleu, Jr., Germantown, Philadelphia, Pa.

WHO HAS WHITE DELPHINIUM?

Can you give me some information about a variety of delphinium I have seen? It is a large, white, bell-shaped flower, and produces no seed. I was told that Henry A. Dreer, Philadelphia, handled it a few years ago, but this firm has not handled it since the war. Can you tell me where I can get it?

A. E. W.—Minn.

Pure white, hardy delphiniums are by no means uncommon. Several have been named, one called Moerheimei being especially good. Pure white sports are liable to occur among the blues from time to time, and an occasional one may be had from seed. At present I cannot recall the name of any firm offering plants of the pure white variety, but I have seen bunches of it at various exhibitions every summer of late years.

POLLWORTH'S ADDITION.

Already about the largest greenhouse establishment in the state of Wisconsin, the range of C. C. Pollworth Co., just outside Milwaukee, is being enlarged. The latest addition is a rose house. In the view of the range on this page, this can be seen in the rear, where the single chimney appears. Two more plant houses will be added on the left side, according to Mr. Pollworth's present plans.

DESTROYING NEMATODES.

Pest Resistant to Treatment.

Among flowering plants grown under glass, roses are the most subject to the attacks of nematodes. Among vegetables the trouble comes mainly to tomatoes and cucumbers, but occasionally lettuce is also harmed. The greenhouse market grower handles but a few varieties of vegetables, mainly lettuce, cucumbers, tomatoes, rhubarb, beets, carrots, mint, watercress and radishes; the first three only are of major importance. If more varieties were grown, so as to give a better rotation, most of the trouble would undoubtedly disappear.

Nematodes are resistant to treatment. Formaldehyde, calcium cyanamide, carbon bisulphide and several other materials have been used in attempts to clean them out. So far, however, steam sterilization has proved far the most effective method. Experience has proved that if the soil in raised benches is thoroughly sterilized, the trouble will be practically eliminated. Scientists tell us that it takes a temperature of 180 degrees Fahrenheit, maintained uniformly for one hour, to insure the death of the cysts, which are the resting form of the eelworm or nematode. It means a serious expense, however, to maintain such a temperature for so long a period in a ground bed.

Experiments Made.

At Arlington, Mass., in a great glass house section for vegetable culture, Wyman Bros. carried out an expensive and extensive steam sterilization trial last winter. They are large and successful growers of head lettuce and cucumbers, and the crops produced since sterilizing have been wonderful, but the nematodes are already coming back strongly on the cucumbers.

At the Lexington experimental station for market gardening, in charge of Prof. H. F. Tompson, head of the market gardening department of the Massachusetts Agricultural College, formaldehyde was used with great success to clean up the damping-off fungus and for sclerotinia, or drop of lettuce, which also affects cucumbers. A great deal of success was had with it. At the market garden field station, its success amounted to practically 100 per cent in the control of lettuce drop.

Webster S. Krout has conducted many experiments with formaldehyde in greenhouses, coldframes and seed beds. The most important place, according to Mr. Krout, to commence sterilization is in the seed beds and in the transplanting houses. Seedlings which are grown in an infested seed bed, it has been clearly proved, will infest sterilized soil if transplanted into it. All manures and fertilizers should be added to the soil before starting sterilization. Keep the soil moist, but not waterlogged, for ten days before the treatment. Before applying the treatment, loosen and pulverize the soil well by forking it over.

When and How to Sterilize.

Where three per cent or more of the plants in a greenhouse show drop disease, the entire house should be sterilized. Where there is less than this amount and it is evenly distributed over the house, it is more economical to mark the location of the plants as they die, and, after the crop is cleared, sterilize the marked areas, including a space two to three feet around them. The sterilizing solution is made by thoroughly mixing four pints, or pounds, of commercial formaldehyde with fifty gallons of water. The soil should be moist before treatment, but not wet. The solution is applied at the rate of one gallon per square foot. Care should be taken to moisten the sides and corners of the beds well. If the soil is muck or contains much organic matter, it is advisable to turn it over when half the solution has been applied, later pouring on the remainder. The liquid can be applied by means of a watering can with a heavy rose, a spraying outfit or the Skinner greenhouse system. Where only a small area is treated, cover the beds with burlap or wrapping paper; this is hardly practical for a large house. Shut the house tightly after the treatment and leave it closed for three to five days. Fork over the soil as soon as the house is reopened. Eight to ten days after fumigation, lettuce plants may be set out. However, it is better to test this by setting out a few plants daily after the seventh day until none are injured, when it is safe to plant the house. It is not safe to treat a portion of a house containing growing plants. The gas escaping from the soil will burn the plants growing in the untreated area.

Keep Formaldehyde at Hand.

It is an excellent practice to keep a barrel of formaldehyde in the house, of the same strength as that applied to the beds. In this all tools, boots, shoes, boards, etc., should be soaked twenty to thirty minutes before being used in the sterilized beds. This is a necessary precaution to prevent reinfecting the soil. If the soil does become reinfected, labor and money are wasted. Formaldehyde is a thirty-seven and three-tenths to forty per cent solution; large quantities are best purchased at wholesale. Formaldehyde is irritating to the skin, mucous membranes of the nose, eyes and cuts. It is, however, not a poison and can be used in metal containers.

The fusarium wilt, or fungus, attacks tomatoes, potatoes, asparagus, cabbage, peas, cucumbers, sweet corn and watermelons. This genus, as a whole, is peculiar to warm climates or greenhouse conditions. Outdoors in our colder states, tomatoes, potatoes and sweet corn are attacked sometimes. Other vegetables named are often attacked in the southern states. The tomato indoors is frequently attacked by fusarium.

The writer is unaware of any trials with corrosive sublimate, except for treating potatoes before planting. Lye or lye water, or any of the so-called weed killers, would be most dangerous to use and would undoubtedly work permanent injury to the soil. We still have much to learn about soil treatment for insect pests and fungoid affections.

NEW YORK.

The Market.

The cut flower market is extremely dull; in fact, many are disposed to say that the present summer is the dullest in many years. In many respects they are right, for never before have there been arrivals of outdoor stock in such proportions as today. Asters, which it was thought would be short in supply, are arriving in tremendous quantities, and the quality, generally, is good. It is hard to quote prices, because there appears to be no line to be drawn, but it is safe to say that one could for some days buy asters at 2 to 10 cents per bunch that would hardly return the same amount to the carrier. It is almost the same with gladioli; shipments of gladioli are heavy, and sales run down to the small point of 50 cents per hundred. Of course, some of the better varieties do better, and occasionally they bring as much as 50 cents per dozen, but in clearances they figure with the rest, and there is no distinction as to varieties.

Roses are in small supply, and in equally small demand. American Beauty is not in particular demand, and moves slowly. Hybrid teas are rather short in supply, and move sluggishly at quotations which are unchanged. The weather now experienced is anything but rose weather, and little in the way of prices can be expected.

Carnations are practically out of the market. A few growers are still shipping, pending the clearing out of benches.

Cattleyas are not plentiful, and the demand for them is at the minimum. Arrivals carry over from day to day, and wholesalers have their work cut out to keep tops at 75 cents per flower.

Lilies seem to be fairly plentiful, and clean out at $10 to $15 per hundred. Lilies of the valley have advanced a little.

Herbaceous material has the market to a large extent, but one could hardly quote prices. There is a wealth of material, including marigolds, feverfew, cornflowers, centaureas, gaillardias, strawflowers, larkspurs, candytuft, tuberoses, coreopsis, pyrethrums, Golden Glow and other flowers, including tamarix, hydrangeas and other shrub flowers.

Various Notes.

In the realty notes of the New York press prominence has been given to a lease just consummated by the Charles H. Totty Co., Madison, N. J., of the store and basement at 4 East Fifty-third street. Mr. Totty has for some time felt the want of a New York office, and in the quarters leased will be able to attend to his large wholesale and retail plant business, possibly later, if conditions warrant it, running into retail lines.

W. C. Rickards, Jr., who is treasurer of the New York Florists' Club, has severed his connection with the Atlantic Grass Seed Co., and is again with the seed firm of Wm. M. Hunt & Co.

In the list of New York state incorporations last week was one of the United Cut Flower Co., of West Twenty-eighth street, for $25,000, with D. J. Pappas, T. A. McKennell and A. H. Appell as incorporators, the latter two attorneys.

Joseph S. Fenrich received congratulations July 31 on the occasion of his fortieth birthday.

Henry Weston, of Hempstead, with Mrs. Weston, and Charles Weber and Mrs. Weber, of Lynbrook, are making an automobile trip to Montreal, where they will leave their car and take the trip through the Thousand islands to the Saguenay and return.

Roman J. Irwin and Mrs. Irwin will attend the Kansas City convention of the S. A. F. and afterwards will make a trip through the Yosemite.

The Horticultural Society of New York is arranging for a big show of gladioli to be held in the Museum building, New York Botanical Garden, Bronx park, August 19 and 20. The ordinary prize list has been much enlarged, and many new classes added. Lunch will be served to all exhibitors, and it is hoped that all classes will be filled.

Harry Bayersdorfer, who has been motoring through New England with Mrs. Bayersdorfer, is now looking after his store, on West Eighteenth street.

Gladiolus Elora.

GLADIOLUS ELORA.

Not now widely known in the trade, Gladiolus Elora will without doubt become a favorite when more florists have grown it. This variety was originated by Luther Burbank some years ago. When he disseminated the variety, there was only a limited supply of bulbs, most of which went to the retail trade and thence to private gardens, when they were probably mixed with others and their identity lost. The W. B. Davis Co., at Aurora, Ill., secured some corms of the variety, almost accidentally. When they were grown, the value of Gladiolus Elora as an early variety was soon seen.

Elora is a remarkably large and quite early variety. It is a creamy white in color, with dainty red featherings in the throat. The flowers are as large as, or larger than, those of Pendleton, and the bulbs are said to increase rapidly. Stalks grow to four or four and a half feet in height. W. B. Davis says that its most remarkable quality is its earliness for such a large variety, that it persists in being the first to open each year. The illustration on this page shows a few spikes of this variety.

SEASONABLE SUGGESTIONS

COREOPSIS GRANDIFLORA.

Coreopsis grandiflora is best treated as a biennial, although usually classed as a perennial. It comes readily from seed and will soon need transplanting. Sown even this late, good-sized plants can be had before late fall. Outdoors, this coreopsis flowers in June and July, but persists until fall. It has considerable value, however, for forcing, and where yellow flowers are wanted it is well to remember that it forces well and can be flowered in April and early May. For Memorial day bouquets, nothing could be better. It can be planted in a bench or grown in pots and allowed to root through into a good bed of soil. Each plant will give a great many flowers and, as they have stems of good length, they will be found useful.

SUMMER LILIES.

Flowers of good quality are not abundant now and we are glad to have a batch of Japanese lilies to fall back upon. Auratum has too powerful a fragrance for many, but a limited number of it may be grown. The "golden-rayed lily of Japan," as it is popularly called, is probably the most magnificent of the entire family. It is a good garden lily, if planted where it can get partial shade and have a liberal summer mulch, such as rhododendron beds afford, but does well in fairly large pots or small tubs. L. speciosum album, now flowering, is a most valuable lily for funeral work or bouquets. If hot weather occurs while these are opening, the stalks may be cut as the first flowers expand and placed in a tub of water in a cold cellar. They will keep much better treated thus than on the plants. The same applies to the colored speciosums, like melpomene, rubrum and magnificum, all of which are most useful at this season. Do not throw the plants away when the flowers are cut, but plant them at once outdoors, in slight shade if you have it, but this is not necessary. Plant them deeply, so as to cover the bulbs not less than nine inches; these will give you a fine crop to follow the pot-grown plants next summer.

STEPHANOTIS FLORIBUNDA.

The name of this plant brings back memories of long ago, when roofs of storehouses were covered with this and other warm-house climbers. It also makes us think of the great balloon-shaped specimens, beautifully flowered, once a feature of the great exhibitions when such big specimen flowering plants as stephanotis, clerodendrons, allamandas, dipladenias, ixoras, rondeletias, francisceas, pimelias, aphelexis and statices were in vogue; few of these plants are seen nowadays. The writer is reminded that at present a fine plant of stephanotis is in flower at the end of an ordinary greenhouse, where winter minimums often sink to 40 or 45 degrees, and what a wealth of the sweet-scented flowers it now carries! Nothing could be finer in bridal bouquets or funeral work. One or two small plants now in 6-inch pots and not over three feet tall, each carry about a dozen trusses of flowers, showing that it is not necessary to have large planted-out specimens to get flowers. Mealy bug loves this plant, but a force of water, well directed from the hose, will keep the plants clean. Anyone needing some choice white flowers in summer might try a plant of stephanotis in a pot or tub.

ACHILLEA THE PEARL.

One of the most useful double, pure white flowers blooming at this season, just in advance of the aster crop, is Achillea Ptarmica The Pearl. An improved form is Perry's White. The flowers somewhat resemble those of the double white feverfew, so much in evidence for Memorial day, but they lack the disagreeable odor of the latter flower. The achillea is a herbacous perennial of easy culture, quite winter-hardy and always free-flowering, carrying stiff stems, and the flowers have splendid keeping qualities. There is scarcely a more valuable white flower at this season for the average country florist. The plant spreads quite rapidly and should be divided and replanted every second year. If not separated, it will continue to flower freely, but much finer heads may be had from divided stock. Fall is the best time to do transplanting.

LYSIMACHIA CLETHROIDES.

Another most useful herbaceous plant flowering at this season is Lysimachia clethroides, with terminal racemes of pure white flowers, somewhat resembling a veronica, but more graceful. This also is a good grower and hardy, and in design work it works in splendidly. Fall is also the proper season to plant this flower. There is another lysimachia, named punctata, which is an annual and carries clear yellow spikes of flowers; the punctata, however, is not of the same value to the florist as clethroides.

BUDDLEIA MAGNIFICA.

In the heated period of the year, shrubby flowering plants are not numerous. The various forms of Buddleia variabilis, of which magnifica is easily the best, are showing up well now and yield a great wealth of bloom, which will persist until October. The buddleias have much value in the shrubberies, but to florists they have an added value, as their flowers are fine for cutting and work in splendidly in floral designs. Good flowers are not abundant in the summer; asters and gladioli we always have, but they become so common that many persons welcome a change, and a wreath of white speciosum lilies and lavender buddleias should please anyone. If lilies are not available, substitute even white asters or perennial phlox and allow the graceful racemose stalks of the buddleias to rise well above them. For those who have failed in the culture of this buddleia outdoors, I would say that it should not be cut back at all in the fall, but in spring cut it back close to the ground, as you would a clump of perennial phlox or larkspur; the plants will then send up strong shoots five to seven feet in height, which will flower profusely.

CALENDULAS.

Of late years there has been a greatly increased demand for calendulas in winter and spring. This annual is of quite easy culture in either raised benches or ground beds; in midwinter it blooms somewhat more freely in benches. Orange King sells much better than Lemon Queen. For an early crop, start the seeds now in 3-inch pots and later transfer the seedlings to the bench. Use such a soil as will suit mums or roses, and it will be all right. Calendulas flower over a remarkably long season and, in the hands of specialists, they prove quite profitable. There is no reason why more small growers should not plant some of them. Do not plant them too close together in the benches, as the plants are strong growers; twelve inches between the plants and eighteen to twenty-four inches between the rows is quite close enough and, while this may seem wide at first, it will not be long before you will feel that even more space would have been better.

SOIL CULTIVATION.

With strong solar heat, frequent thunder storms and considerable humidity, plants outdoors now make rapid headway, only being surpassed in their rate of growth by the weeds. It almost seems as if the weeds are more numerous and harder to keep in control than ever. We cannot afford to neglect outdoor crops at this season. After each heavy rain it is necessary to get cultivation going as soon as possible, in order to conserve the moisture. The plants seem to stagnate in hard, baked soil, but how they do leap when the soil is well stirred about them! Much hand-pulling of weeds is necessary at this time and the hoe, as well as the cultivator, may be needed, but the judicious use of the last-named tool is half the battle in the growing of crops of all kinds. Even if you are busy housing carnations, building new benches, overhauling boilers, painting roofs or doing any other necessary seasonable work, it is well to remember that a good dust mulch is one of the best methods of watering and that few plants in the open ground need the hose or sprinkler when the cultivator is intelligently used.

RESULTS.

We give them. You get them.
We both have them.

THE opening of the autumn season comes with the reopening of schools, only a month away. Are you getting ready for it?

As margins of profits narrow, and they seem surely to be narrowing in this trade, the business must be put more nearly on a cash basis.

IT costs no more to grow good varieties of gladioli than it does to grow the old, yellow-dog type. No florist should waste his time on the back-number sorts—grow the kinds that will bring the money.

THERE is no agreement as to the quantity of Paper Whites that will be needed at current prices. Since one man's guess is as good as another's, we venture there will be bulbs for all who demand them.

A GOOD many florists have installed rather elaborate, up-to-date and expensive office equipment and been surprised it did not produce the results expected. The trouble was they neglected to hire someone to operate the outfit.

THE public is spending money again. Department stores report increases during the last three months; mail order houses state sales are up ten per cent; chain stores tell of a twelve per cent gain. Such improvement at this season of the year augurs a good season ahead for the florist.

THE government's efforts to stimulate coal production are meeting with success. Car loadings indicate an increase from forty-five per cent of normal production to about sixty per cent. Even the latter figure will not meet the country's needs when cold weather comes, but the present danger of a fuel famine is not great. Expectations prevail that the strike will be over before cold weather sets in.

THIS is an ever-changing world and one's customers of today are gone tomorrow. As an indication of the rapidity with which a florist's mailing list will get out of date, it will be conceded that telephone subscribers as a class are the least migratory portion of our population, and yet the American Telephone & Telegraph Co. states that one telephone in seven throughout the United States is disconnected or moved each year.

THE large crops are beginning to make themselves felt in the form of increased business from agricultural communities. The large mail-order houses of the country report a record volume of orders. Florists in farming communities, in consequence, are looking forward to a season much better than their last.

THE day has passed when strikes strangled business. The public lost sympathy with the strikers' complaints when they were learned to be against wages and conditions better than many other workers in the community enjoyed. And when the public's sympathy is lost, ample means is available in this day to relieve the handicap imposed by the workers' cessation.

OVER 500 members of the trade have already made reservations at Kansas City during the convention of the Society of American Florists, August 15 to 17. The proximity of the gathering is attracting many from parts west of the Mississippi not previously in attendance at S. A. F. gatherings, and the opportunity to see these new faces is drawing many from points east.

CARNATION growers will find much interesting reading in the proceedings of the Hartford meeting of the American Carnation Society, just off the press. The discussion of cultural matters brought out many valuable points. This neat volume bears the marks of President A. F. J. Baur's experience as well as the competence of his successor as secretary, O. E. Steinkamp.

BITUMINOUS coal production during June was 22,000,000 tons, compared with 20,000,000 tons the previous month and 34,000,000 tons a year ago. Production for the calendar year to July 8 totaled 192,000,000 tons, compared with 203,000,000 tons for the first half of last year, indicating that the soft coal output plus stocks on hand at the beginning of the strike has fairly well taken care of consumers' needs. The shortage is now being felt in certain of the heaviest consuming districts and particularly in the coke regions.

ARE YOU A MEMBER?

There is unmistakable evidence that public officials are coming more and more to realize the value of the modern legitimate trade association. Secretary Hoover has lately written and spoken of it, and within the past two or three years the most intelligent work of university investigations and of the government has been undertaken in conjunction with trade organizations.

Trade associations have had and are having a tremendous influence on the development of trade ethics. A striking testimonial of the trade association's assistance to the government and the enlightening influence it has had was that given by Irving S. Paull, secretary of the congressional joint commission of agricultural inquiry, before a recent convention. He said:

"I cannot help saying to you that the trade association perhaps is the biggest bargain counter in the world. When you have an opportunity to exchange the little you know for the much that the many know, everybody benefits.

"The time is coming when no man is going to succeed without the coöperation of an association, because the little that he can garner from the outside to apply to his own business is not going to carry him through; he has got to have all of it. But in order to deserve it he has got to contribute his part of it.

"We are talking coöperation to the farmer; we are talking coöperation all the way up and down the line, and the trade association is merely a matter of coöperation. But coöperation is enlightened selfishness. I cannot conceive of any man going out bareheaded and alone, facing the whole world and saying, 'I will get mine.' The majority is against him.

"If he will work with a group in his own community or business, if there are ten of them and he thinks for ten and ten think for him, he is going a lot farther than if he thinks for himself and nine others think for themselves, with a conflict of interest between the entire number."

GLADIOLUS SOCIETY TO MEET.

The thirteenth annual exhibition of the American Gladiolus Society will be held at Kalamazoo, Mich., August 16 and 17. In this connection the society will hold its annual meeting Wednesday, August 16, at 3 p. m., at the Knights of Pythias Temple, Kalamazoo. At this time the officers' reports will be received, action taken on the revision of the constitution and by-laws and other business transacted.

For hotel reservations those who plan to attend the meeting should address Allen C. Frink, Kalamazoo, Mich.

President C. R. Hinkle, of St. Joseph, Mich., has been active in preparing for a noteworthy exhibition and meeting. The schedule of prizes is a long one, totaling about 150 classes, of which eighty-two will be open to commercial growers.

The present officers of the society are: President, C. R. Hinkle, St. Joseph, Mich.; vice-president, Dr. T. E. Bennett, St. Thomas, Ont.; treasurer, Madison Cooper, Calcium, N. Y.; secretary, David Tyndall, Brockton, Mass. H. E. Meader, Dover, N. H.; Joe Coleman, Ravenna, O., and John J. Prouty, Baldwinsville, N. Y., compose the executive committee.

SELLING VEGETABLE PLANTS.

Each year sees a large increase in the business done in vegetable plants by readers of The Review. Not so many years ago the vegetable plant industry was a local matter. Now vegetable plants are shipped far and near. Florists and nurserymen are getting a steadily increasing proportion of the business, once largely in the hands of market gardeners. It is like this:

Please stop our ad and send bill, as we are sold out of celery plants. The Review certainly is "there" as a trade getter. This is our first year selling celery plants. We shipped to fifteen states and you will hear from us again another season.—Peter Schrier & Co., Kalamazoo, Mich., July 24, 1922.

If you hear a man complain of the cost of advertising, you can be pretty certain he spends a good bit of money elsewhere than in The Review.

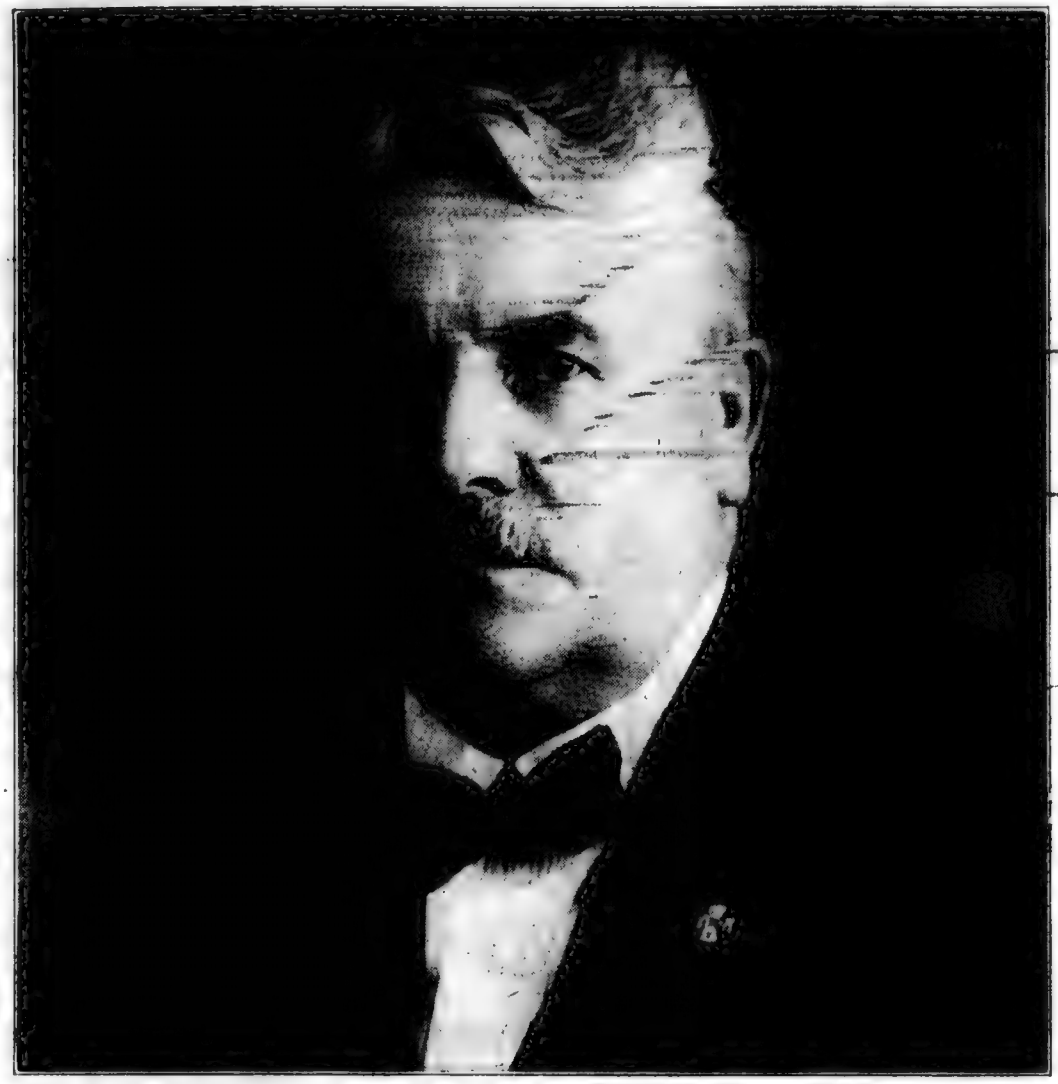
OBITUARY

James E. Matthewson.

James E. Matthewson, of Sheboygan, Wis., president of the Wisconsin State Florists' Association during 1920 and a prominent and active member of that association, was killed in an automobile accident Wednesday, July 26, while returning from the meeting of the state association July 25 and 26 at Oshkosh, Wis. The automobile in which Mr. Matthewson was riding at the time of the accident was being driven by Karam Basil and the party was on its way to Crystal Lake when the car turned turtle, pinning Mr. Matthewson under the front wheel and breaking his neck.

The funeral was held at 2 p. m., Friday, July 28. It was one of the largest ever held in Sheboygan. Flags all over the city were at half-mast. There were many floral tributes sent, conspicuous among which were a mammoth wreath from the Wisconsin State Florists' Association, a large ball of flowers with the words, "Our Jim," from the members of the Matthewson basketball team and a large floral mound from the E. C. Amling Co., Chicago. Many florists from Milwaukee, Oshkosh, Watertown, Manitowoc and Green Bay, Wis., attended the funeral.



Mr. Matthewson was born in Arbroath, Forfarshire, Scotland, November 21, 1864, and came to America in 1891. He came directly to Wisconsin with his young bride, who had been Miss Mary Allen Peebles, and located in Milwaukee, where he obtained employment with Currie Bros. Co., florists. Three years later he leased the Schucht greenhouses, in Sheboygan county, and these he operated until he purchased the site upon which stands the present range of 100,000 square feet of glass.

Mr. Matthewson was an active member of many other organizations, aside from his prominence in the florists' circles. He was a member of the Knights of Pythias; Elks, Sheboygan Lodge No. 1; F. & A. M., Harmony Chapter No. 10, and the Knights Templar. He was a member of the Rotary Club and the Sheboygan Business Men's Association and a life member of the S. A. F.

Mr. Matthewson is survived by his widow; two sons, Edwin L., who has charge of the retail store, and James H., who was in the greenhouses with his father; a daughter, Miss Winnefred; his mother, Mrs. Isabella Matthewson, Scotland, and a brother, Alex, who is connected with the greenhouse end of the business at Sheboygan, Wis.

Frank C. Slayden.

Frank C. Slayden, a well known and esteemed practical gardener on the south shore of Massachusetts, died at his home at Cohasset, Mass., July 29, after an illness extending over two years, during which he underwent several serious operations. The deceased was born at Rochdale, Lancashire, England, sixty-five years ago and came to America in 1889. For about seventeen years he worked at Lowell, Mass., and after holding one or two other positions, was engaged in 1911 by C. W. Barron, owner of the Boston News Bureau, to manage his estate at Cohasset, which he did until failing health compelled his resignation in 1920, his son, Frank, succeeding him. Mr. Slayden leaves a widow and four children. Funeral services were held from his late home, August 1, and were largely attended, many of his former confreres from the south shore estates and elsewhere attending. There were many beautiful floral tributes. W. N. C.

The Market.

However optimistic our attitude or boastful our mood, we can say little that is good of the latter half of July save that, one way or another, huge quantities of flowers were moved. We can not say, however, that all the available stock was sold, as large quantities were lost; nor can we report that the greatly increased quantities handled made up for the lower prices, as in nearly every case wholesalers find that decreased intake in the latter half wiped out small gains in the first half of the month and left July with a record on the books below that of the month in 1921. In some cases the decrease was as much as fifteen to twenty per cent.

It is a practically unanimous report that July offered larger supplies of flowers than ever before in the history of the Chicago market. It was true of roses, of gladioli and of asters. Because of steadily increasing summer business, the growers prepared for larger rose production than last year. Gladioli came into full crop ten days to two weeks earlier than usual. Asters, after being nearly a failure for two seasons, made little progress in June's drought; then came good early-July rains and a flood of small, short-stemmed flowers, like the short roses, only good for work. And there were few funerals! What more need be said except that the experience of the last two or three weeks has no bearing whatever on the outlook for a good fall and winter season?

While last week's business was no better than that of the week before, there were certain noteworthy features, chief of which was a sharp decline in the supply of roses. There had been an exceedingly large supply of short, soft and open roses. They could not be sold in competition with the fine early gladioli. Consequently the growers began pinching and the average quality and average price at once began to go up. At the beginning of last week the market was overloaded with roses, but before the end of the week the situation was again under control and fair clearances were being made. Roses again have a stable market.

The supply of good gladioli has declined and the quantity of such sorts as America and Chicago White has increased. These are slow sale. Instead of being a funeral work flower, as in the old days, the gladiolus has become a decorative flower, chiefly used in baskets. Consequently it is the bright-colored, attractive sorts that sell. Dark pink is in first demand, then light pink, then red, then white, with novelties selling well at all times. Last week large quantities of low-grade stock were lost, as most of the wholesalers preferred to let the flowers spoil rather than sell at less than $10 per thousand to the peddlers.

Many wholesalers comment on the slow sale for primulinus varieties of gladiolus. They say that beautiful as many of these are, the retailers are not keen for them. After being induced to give them a trial, the purchases do not increase. Indeed, those whose trade does not call for basket work usually refuse to make a second purchase. The wholesalers think it will not pay to grow the primulinus sorts for wholesaling, unless they are of some special color.

Favorable weather has brought in huge quantities of short, small asters, but now the quality is improving. There are plenty of lilies, valley and such garden flowers as are in season.

Car Strike Disturbs Trade.

Chicago found itself without street car or elevated railroad service on the morning of August 1. The strike had been expected, so that the interruption to business was not severe and was scarcely noted outside of the downtown district. Practically all the retailers were in the market as usual that morning, their movements being delayed only by the congestion of automobile traffic, but they bought only for immediate needs. The strike will have no effect on shipping trade, but will interfere with city business, just as does everything else which interrupts the normal course of city life.

Chicago to Kansas City.

All Chicago florists who will attend the Kansas City convention are urged to arrange to travel with the Chicago Florists' Club party leaving at 7 p. m., daylight saving time, Monday, August 14, on the Burlington route, leaving from the Union depot. Reservations should be made with S. J. Owen, city Invitation to St. Joseph.

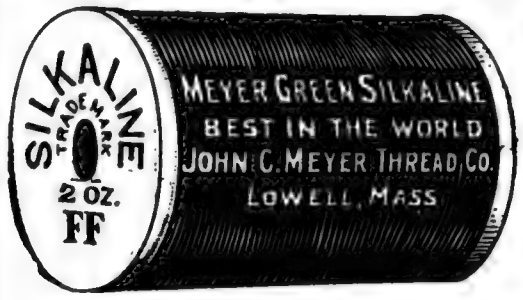
Frank Stuppy wired The Review as follows August 1: "St. Joseph florists cordially invite all Chicago florists and friends to St. Joseph, Mo., August 15. We have arranged for ample automobiles to meet the 7:20 morning train on the Burlington. After breakfast the visitors will be taken for a ride through the city and adjacent country, visiting the greenhouses. Luncheon at the Elks' club and return to station in time to arrive in Kansas City at 2:30 p. m."



Pass Up the Wild Flowers.

Wild flowers no longer are handled in any considerable quantity in the Chicago wholesale market. Liatris spicata and the milkweed offered as gypsophila are the principal exceptions. But every morning recently has seen country people with their flivvers full of flowers going from flower store to flower store trying to sell direct to the retailers.

It is poor policy for a florist to sell wild flowers. In the first place, large numbers of people have the opportunity of getting into the country and picking them for themselves. If the same thing is seen in flower stores it cheapens the store's stock or adds to the appraisal of the blooms obtained at the roadside. Then, too, there is a large and rapidly growing organization for the preservation of native flowers and plants. Its members usually are of the class from which flower buyers come. These people will not buy flowers gathered in the woods and meadows and they are likely to withhold their patronage from any flower store that seems to have despoiled the countryside.

Here's Something New.

needs of the hospital trade. Every florist has recognized that sending flowers to a person in a hospital was a more or less unsatisfactory proposition unless some arrangement was made for a vase in which to put the flowers in the sick room. Few hospitals supply anything of the kind. Glass or earthenware cost too much to lose and seldom are returned if the florist lends them. Mr. McVea has at last developed a waterproof paper container with a tin bottom. It is cheap enough so the florist can paste his label on it and send it free with the flowers, thereby making the vase his advertisement; or he can sell it cheaply and still make a profit. The vase is guaranteed to hold water at least as long as the flowers last and, as a matter of fact, a sample standing on Mr. McVea's desk has held water for as much as six weeks without leaking. That the vase promises to fill a long-felt want is apparent from the fact that advance orders took the entire first shipment of 25,000 when received from the factory.

"Lives of Great Men," Etc.

G. Swenson, the well known Elmhurst grower, is strong and active at 78. He was born August 6, 1844.

August Lange was born August 7, 1868, but at 54 never misses a day on the market, although his son, Homer, now relieves him of much of the detail at the store.

Paul E. Weiss, president of the Premier Rose Gardens and secretary of several other corporations in the trade, will be 33 next week. He was born August 7, 1889.

In Gloede's Garden.

All that visitors ordinarily see of Richard Gloede's place in Evanston is the display in front of the greenhouses and the adjoining athletic field of Northwestern University. These plantings are elaborate and showy, but there is much more in the rear, surrounding the Gloede home, which is tucked away in the quiet garden, out of sight. In the greenhouses many ferns and other pot plants are grown, but a specialty is made of geraniums. Two varieties are grown, Poitevine and Mrs. Richard F. Gloede, with only a few Nutt, as Mr. Gloede finds the call principally for pink. The Gloede geranium is a seedling of his own raising which has been rather widely distributed this year. Propagation for next year has begun and hundreds of thousands of cuttings will be rooted. Most of Mr. Gloede's business is landscape work and he has a large stock of hardy decorative stock in his garden. For several years Mr. Gloede's hobby was the delphinium and he raised many interesting hybrids, of which he has a permanent record in full-sized water color sketches by a talented Evanston artist. During the war he was obliged to drop such work, but it is being taken up again, with the prospect that lovers of the hardy garden in years to come will find their pleasures multiplied.

Various Notes.

Joseph Foerster recently has occupied a new home in Kenilworth, just off Sheridan road, and is devoting his leisure this summer to getting the grounds in shape. He will have a most delightful place of residence when all his plans are carried out.

Enders, president of C. A. Samuelson, Inc., is preparing to leave for the west. He goes first to Mr. Samuelson's ranch near Wendell, Idaho, where he will spend a few days, after which he will proceed to the Pacific coast. He expects to be away about a month.

A. C. Kohlbrand, secretary of the Chicago Wholesale Cut Flower Association, returned July 29 from a fortnight's outing at Lone Pine Point, Mich. With his family was that of a brother from Cincinnati.

Miss Nettie Parker, of A. T. Pyfer & Co., is on a boat trip to Duluth.

Young stock of chrysanthemums, says C. L. Washburn, has been selling extremely well of late. Bassett & Washburn are cleaned out for the season.

J. W. McConnell, formerly one of the assistant sales managers for florists' supplies with the A. L. Randall Co., has been appointed general manager of sales for the Zetlitz Floral Products Co., Dayton, O.

In spite of threatening weather, more than 100 of the members of the Chicago Flower Growers' Association, their families and friends, attended the picnic in Paul Schramm's grove at Elk Grove, Ill., July 30. Manager Paul R. Klingsporn was among the absentees, having missed the Saturday train from Frankfort, Mich., where he had been spending the week with his family, visiting friends. They reached home on the boat Monday morning.

The eyes of many retailers continue to turn to upper Michigan avenue, that section between the bridge and the Drake hotel, as being the point of vantage from which best to deal with Chicago's most liberal buyers. It is said that George Wittbold, manager of Henry Wittbold & Son, is keeping his eyes open for such a location for another store.

The geranium has ceased to be the principal bedding and window-box plant in the best parts of Chicago. A ride along the north shore shows that the petunia holds first place. Most of the varieties used are pink, but some of the growers of pot plants say purple sold best up to the time the stock of it was cleaned out.

Motoring into Wisconsin, A. J. Zech and Mrs. Zech spent a delightful week end at beautiful Lake Delavan.

The store of William F. Schofield, at 738 North State street, is attracting crowds "four deep," in the words of F. V. Young, who manages this store. The display is really striking, with its pool of water in a rockery, over which vines and ferns hang shadily. And in the pool are many bright-colored goldfish, which cavort about the figure of a female in a meditative pose. The window suggests coolness on the hottest of days.

night away. Mr. Young says all indications point to the largest convention the society has yet held.

Edward Amerpohl was here last week on one of his now rather infrequent trips from Janesville, Wis. He says business is rather better than usual this summer and that he is preparing for a good season.

BOSTON.

The Market.

There has been an improvement in the market, which was especially noticeable July 29 and 31. There has been an absence of the hot weather usually associated with the dog days of late July, and this has helped in some measure to tone up business. A few hot days may bring a decided change, but in the meantime it is nice to know that flowers are moving better.

Roses have shortened up quite materially and prices have advanced considerably. It was difficult to secure flowers July 29. Short-stemmed stock, which a week ago made $1 or less per hundred, jumped to $4 and $6, and the better grades also moved upwards. Columbia continues to be the foremost summer rose; it seems to be equally good in summer and winter. Butterfly, Double White Killarney and Premier are the others which are most in evidence. There are some fine American Beauties on 4-foot and 5-foot stems, which meet with an improved call.

There are still a few carnations, but asters are pushing them to one side. The latter are now of better quality, but are not yet in oversupply. Gladioli had a hard week until near the close, when they braced up surprisingly. Never were spikes of grander quality than this season, but if the growers would send in only half as many, it would pay them better. Some fine primulinus varieties are noted. Lilies are not abundant; there are a few longiflorums and auratums, and a limited number of speciosums of rather inferior quality.

Among miscellaneous flowers are WELCOME TO THE CONVENTION S. A. F. AND O. H.

Physostegia virginica, commonly called Texas heather, and Buddleia magnifica. There are the usual supplies of bachelor's buttons, everlastings, gaillardias, coreopsis, etc. The hardy gypsophila is over, but much of the annual variety still comes in. Zinnias, calendulas, annual larkspurs and hardy larkspurs sell in a moderate way. Valley is of good quality for the season, but the demand is not large. Cattleyas are scarce and mainly of the variety Gaskelliana.

National Association of Gardeners.

A meeting of the local branch of the N. A. G. was held at Horticultural hall, July 28. There was a large attendance. Robert Cameron presided and W. N. Craig, general chairman of the local committees, outlined the progress made since the last meeting, in preparations for the coming national convention in Boston. Mayor Curley and other speakers had promised to attend and welcome members on the opening day. The Hotel Brunswick, on Boylston street, was selected as convention headquarters. It is convenient to Back Bay and Trinity Place stations, to Horticultural hall and the heart of Boston.

The finance, transportation, publicity and other committees all made progressive reports. It was decided to print a detailed program of outings, showing all points of interest to be passed or visited. Among estates to be visited on the opening day on the north shore will be those of Mrs. H. C. Frick, Mrs. Gardner M. Lane, William H. Moore and Albert C. Burrage; the latter's extensive orchid collection will be inspected. Later, Castle Hill Farm, Ipswich, Cedar Acres gladiolus fields and other interesting spots will be inspected.

Gustave Thommen gave the members a short but interesting account of his recent trip to Florida, of its vegetation, orange groves, horticultural possibilities, fauna, winter resorts, etc. It was voted to hold another meeting August 18.

Various Notes.

An unfortunate accident occurred to James McHutchison, of New York, July 17, while he was visiting his brother-in-law, Frank Edgar, of Waverley, en route to a cottage at Kennebunk, Me., whither he, Mrs. McHutchison and family were going for a few weeks' rest. Mr. McHutchison was knocked down by an automobile near Mr. Edgar's home and his right ankle broken. It is now in a plaster cast and the patient is convalescing as well as can be expected. His host of friends sympathize with Mr. McHutchison at this time and wish him a speedy recovery.

Miss Fanny B. Fishelson, daughter of Fishelson the Florist, in Back Bay, and a graduate of Boston University, 1920, left last week on the S. S. Majestic for a trip to England and France, accompanied by Miss Fannie Smith, daughter of the well known Providence florist and a graduate of Brown University. After visiting relatives abroad, they will go to Jaffa to study Hebrew in the new university there and will stay at least a year.

Wollrath & Sons, of Waltham, are noted growers of pot plants for the Boston markets and always do cyclamens remarkably well. Many plants are now in 6 and 7-inch pots and in perfect condition. There are thousands of fine begonias; Melior is mostly grown, but there are also batches of Mrs. Peterson and Peerless. Dracæna Massangeana, ficus and pandanus are all well done. Of nephrolepis there are large numbers; Verona is specially well liked and many plants are already being sold. No cut flowers at all are grown here now, pot plants only being handled. Ernest Wollrath, salesman for the firm, left July 29 for an extended automobile trip in northern New England, including the Mohawk trail.

Henry Penn and wife left July 30 for a five weeks' vacation at Jamaica Point Camp, Belgrade Lakes, Me., where salmon abound. William Penn is back from his northern trip, well bronzed. Joseph White and Israel Halper, of Penn's force, are away on a vacation, at Wolfboro, N. H.

Frank Edgar has a superb lot of cyclamens again this season. Many are already in 8-inch pots. Begonias, poinsettias and nephrolepis are all in first-class condition.

A. S. Mohegan, of Cambridge, was married July 25 and is in Canada for a six weeks' honeymoon.

Henry R. Comley, of Park street, is tleyas. Columbia is head and shoulders over all others as a summer rose. Mr. Welch says prospects are good and his city trade is excellent. He has just concluded contracts to ship flowers the coming season as far as Florida and Canada.

Robert Koppelman and wife have returned from a six weeks' trip, spent mainly in the lake regions of Pennsylvania.

William Patterson, the popular Wollaston florist, is on the invalid list.

Fred Palmer, of Brookline, loves mountain climbing and finds no better way to get relaxation from business than by taking a trip to the White mountains of New Hampshire. He has just returned, looking fit.

Thomas F. Galvin, Sr., is spending the summer at his cottage at Siasconset, on Nantucket island, where it is always cool and bracing.

The Flower Exchange is planning to hold its annual outing, probably at Nantasket, during the last week in August. Moses Leibman and W. J. Thurston have charge of the arrangements.

Peter Pederzini is sending in some particularly handsome varieties of primulinus gladioli from Medfield, which sell well.

Henry M. Robinson, wife and family are at their new summer home at Green Harbor, Mass. His sons, Charles and Henry, graduates of Dartmouth and Columbia, are with them.

Thomas McCannon, of the Boston Rose Co., left last week for a vacation among the lakes and mountains of northern New England.

Do not forget the great annual exhibition of gladioli at Horticultural hall, August 12 and 13. Everything points to a record-breaking display, the weather having been ideal for gladioli.

July gave us abundant moisture, enough to keep crops and weeds luxuriant. We had no days of excessive heat, and towards the close temperatures were unseasonably low. On the whole, it was a comfortable and enjoyable month.

Bay trees in commercial hands are becoming scarce in the United States. N. F. McCarthy, of Boston, stocked up heavily before the F. H. B. clamped the bars down and has a large stock on hand at Montrose, believed to be the largest stock in America. He is also strong on boxwoods.

No decision has been reached yet regarding a site for the new wholesale flower market. Subscriptions in cash continue to come in well. W. N. C.

PHILADELPHIA.

The Market.

Everybody is thoroughly tired of business. The market has broken under the weight of the big supply. Prices go lower and lower until almost any absurdly low sale finds believers.

Gladioli and asters are the principal flowers. The trading in both is quite active, at prices that are generally below the cost of production. There is a fair amount of business, that would be considered satisfactory with the supply small.

Baseball.

With the season half over, the race for the Campbell cup is becoming exciting. Bickmore leads by one game over Niessen, while it is possible for both Craig and the Retailers to tie for second place when they complete their belated games. The standing of the clubs now is:

	Won	Lost
Bickmore	6	1
Niessen	5	2
Craig	3	2
Retailers	3	2
Bayersdorfer	3	3
Independents	2	3
Dreer	2	5
Pennock	0	6

Monday, July 24, the Independents defeated Dreer in a well-played game by the score of 6 to 5. Opitz and Miller were the winners' battery. To their good work and the support given them the result is due. Bickmore incautiously allowed the Retailers to pitch the "great unknown" and met their first defeat, 11 to 5, in a hard-fought game that proved the Retailers have good men. They have now beaten both the leaders. The profesh, from store to curb, was out in force to witness the struggle between Pennock and Niessen, transferred from the street to the diamond. It was a terrific game, replete with everything that makes up our national game. When the Great Sam invited his sturdy rival to enter the game, the enthusiasm knew no bounds. S. S. Pennock, Jr., covered first base, but Niessen won in a long drawn-out battle, 21 to 14, and again tied for first place. The Bayersdorfer-Craig game was postponed in order to allow the Craig players time to recover from their injuries of the previous Thursday.

Wednesday, July 26, saw the big game of the week. Not a league game, but a jolly, sporting, social affair that aroused great enthusiasm from a good crowd, that included President Alfred M. Campbell. It was the Berger family vs. the Independents. The line-up was slightly changed to admit a few ambitious scions of the Berger family. Edward Berger pitched, holding the Independents down while his family ran the bases in fine style, winning by a score of 21 to 8. Many of the fair sex graced the occasion by their presence.

Thursday, July 27, Bickmore regained the lead by defeating Niessen in a hard-fought game, 10 to 7. Bayersdorfer hit Meehan hard, winning from the Independents, 13 to 8. The scarred Craig warriors defeated Dreer, 15 to 11. The game between Pennock and the Retailers was postponed.

Four games in the first half remain to be decided—Independents vs. Retailers, protested because an unknown pitched; Craig vs. Independents, Bayersdorfer vs. Craig, and Pennock vs. Retailers.

The Great Unknown.

Walter Davis, chairman of the florists' league committee, called a meeting for Tuesday, August 1, to consider the game protested by the Independents with the Retailers, July 17. The protest is based on the ground that Harper, the Retailers' star pitcher, is not a florist. Captain Jack Donnelly, who has done such splendid work in organizing the Retailers at a moment's notice to replace the Michell team, which withdrew from the league, and who has a winning team, swears by the Holy Mike that Harper is a florist. Captain Donnelly says that Harper is employed by Hartley, of Darby, son-in-law of Mrs. Miller. It is further asserted that Harper has never played ball professionally. Captain Stuart Miller, of the Independents, backed by his whole team, says that no one knows Harper and that he is a member of a prominent semi-professional team in West Philadelphia. The committee will also decide on the Pennock-Dreer game, in which Dreer won in the eighth inning and which Pennock claimed as a tie on seven innings.

Overproduction.

The supply of outdoor flowers is so large, so far in excess of requirements that their disposal has become a burden rather than a pleasure. The season has been extremely variable and a great many persons who do not always grow flowers for market are growing them now. Various remedies have been suggested—advertising, lower prices by the retailers, prohibiting production, coöperative restriction. All have their advocates. The only really satisfactory remedy is that when a crop doesn't pay it will be given up. There is bound to be overproduction at times. It cannot be helped. This is especially true of outdoor flowers that can be cheaply produced.

Bulling the Market.

The following story is fact; the names of people and of plants and of prices are fictitious:

Frank Denby lit a cigarette. The foreman had his instructions, the mail had been read, the dictation was finished. The chauffeur entered. "Harry, bring the car." Taking down the receiver, Denby called up a neighboring plantsman. "That you, Charlie? Go over to Loughlin with me to see Joe Peters? All right, I'll be there in half an hour." After a few parting words of instruction, Denby was off and, picking up Charlie and his foreman on the way, was over at Loughlin, thirty miles away, in a little more than an hour. They received a hearty welcome from Joe Peters, who was hard at work. He took them over the entire place, talking intelligently of his stock and of the market. When they got back to the office, Denby turned to Peters. "See here, Joe," he said, "how much do you ask for those pompons?" Peters named the price on each size. "Tell you what I'll do, Joe," Denby remarked; "I'll take the lot, 10,000 I think you said there were. I'll give you 10 cents a plant more than you asked for them. I will send you a check for them tomorrow. And," Denby continued, "I advise you decline my offer, because I will get 20 cents apiece more than you are asking for every pompon you have." A great deal more was said, when Peters recovered from his surprise. He admitted that he worked extremely hard, that he could not give Mrs. Peters and the children the things he would like to give them, but he said the buyers would be offended and it would not do. Finally the Denby party left, leaving Peters to think it over. Some weeks later, when the pompon crop had all been sold, Peters called on Denby to thank him for what he had done. The offer had been declined, but 10,000 pompons had brought $2,000 more than the original asking price.

Kansas City.

Despite the fact that the S. A. F. convention is going out in Missouri two weeks hence, the Robert Craig Co. plans to send a lot of plants out there just to show 'em how. It is a pleasure to record this fact, because we want to match the western growers with enterprise equal to their own and because confident the eastern standard of quality is now safely in plants as well as in supplies.

Entre Nous.

A French teacher explained that this means "'twixt you and me." It will be fine to know what you think on the questions of the day. Phil thinks that prohibition on production of flowers is impossible; that it is easy to produce in summer, but it takes a grower to produce in winter; that the returns in July and August, though small, help to keep down expenses; that florist league baseball is a mighty good thing. In the old days, our leading men bowled on summer nights, dripping wet, in the basement of Horticultural hall and thought they were having a good time. Now they are having real sport outdoors. Isn't it better? Now, what do you think?

DESTROYING WHITE FLIES.

Can you advise me of a good destroyer of white flies in the greenhouse? I have used hydrocyanic acid gas, but I should prefer not to use this method of destroying the pests, as I have a poultry house containing fowl adjacent.

P. K.—Pa.

Fumigating with hydrocyanic acid gas is the best method of exterminating white flies, but as you say that you do not wish to use this method, spraying with nicotine sulphate, one part to 600 parts of water, to which a little soap has been added to make it adhesive, will discourage the fly, if the process is continued every second or third day. Fumigating with nicotine preparations gives good results. Tobacco stems are burned slowly, in order to produce a smudge, and if the stems are dampened a little before using them, the result will be even better. Place a few live coals in a steel container, with a perforated top, located in the greenhouse to be fumigated and lay the dampened tobacco stems on the live coals. The fumigating should continue lightly throughout two consecutive days, in order that those pests which survive the first fumes will be killed in their weakened condition the second day. By fumigating lightly you do not run the chance of scorching the leaves of the plants.

PACIFIC COAST DEPARTMENT

LOS ANGELES, CAL.

The Market.

Retailers all say that business was better than usual for July. That should be a satisfactory record, although much of the business was funeral work. Roses are greatly improved in quality and there is a good cut, giving everyone plenty. Asters also show marked improvement and some excellent flowers are now seen. Dahlias are not so good as usual, though some fair blooms are on the market. Gladioli are excellent and the prices now favor the grower. Carnations are plentiful and of fair quality. Greens are of better grade and are more plentiful. Statice is more or less a drug on the market.

Warner's Gladioli.

A most interesting lot of new gladioli are now in bloom at Frank Warner's place, at Inglewood, and everyone who appreciates good flowers should make a trip to see them before they go out of bloom. Most of them are the Kunderd ruffled type and Mr. Warner has them all under name, for anyone to see. For it should be noted that he is not one of the class of growers who want to keep their doings secret.

Early Pendleton is a beauty, with flowers rivaling orchids, a little lighter in color than the type, but with the same characteristic blotches of deeper color in the center. Corunna is a deep lake crimson, with an almost black center—a most attractive flower. The name Salmon Plume is descriptive of a notable variety. Cymbaline also is an extra good creation. Defiance is the finest white in the collection, with noble spikes of pure white flowers. The spikes of Yellow Gem are also particularly good; the color is a light, creamy yellow that will please the most critical. Scarlet Princeps will be a splendid market flower; the individual blooms are well arranged on the spikes and the color is exquisite. Rose Glory is one of Mr. Warner's favorites, and deservedly, for it is a lovely, ruffled flower; the color is a glowing rose, with deeper lines. There are several fine reds and Ashbourne is one of the best of them; it is lighter in color than some, but a magnificent commercial kind. And so one might go on, but adjectives would run out; so Meteor shall be last, though not least; it is a glowing orange crimson, with deeper center. These, perhaps, are the pick of the collection at the time it was visited, but there are many others to come.

Mr. Warner was also busy with his Spanish and Dutch iris bulbs. These are turning out extra fine, large bulbs, with a free increase, showing that the sandy loam of the locality suits them well. When one considers the short time this skilled grower has been here, the progress made is most praiseworthy.

Various Notes.

Friends of E. R. Hunt, of Monterey Park, will be interested to hear that he is coming back into the florists' business, after a year or two spent in other lines of endeavor. Mr. Hunt will add another greenhouse and begin by growing Cecile Brunner roses and ferns; the roses will be grown more particularly for winter blooming. Mr. Hunt will be remembered as a fern and cut flower grower and also as manager of the nursery and floral end at Hamburger's, where Miss Rose Lathrop now presides.

Miss Vetter has a most attractive store at Hermosa Beach and good stock is shown. Business is good here and many visitors were noted around this little town. Miss Vetter is a regular buyer at the Los Angeles market, as well as a grower, having a place for the production of stock near Hermosa. Mr. Vetter, her father, is suffering from an affection of the eyes.

Whatever C. F. Gutting does is usually done well and the new store at the Superior Nursery, on Slauson avenue, is a case in point. This is most attractive and, although it is apparently well out of town, there is no doubt that trade will follow.

F. Westrem has returned from his vacation and now his partner, J. Garland, is going. Mr. Garland expects to be gone about a month, driving up the coast to Oregon and back inland, stopping in the neighborhood of Bishop for some trout fishing on the way. Mr. Westrem put in the last few days of his vacation in surf fishing and feels quite fit.

Owing to lack of time for preparation, and owing, also, to other matters that could not be foreseen by the committee, it has been decided not to hold the flower show this year.

Fred R. Hills, Mrs. Hills, C. E. Morton and Mrs. Morton returned last week from their driving tour and Mr. and Mrs. Morton leave now for Phoenix. They report that Yosemite is at its best and that they had a wonderful trip all through. As a finish, they all went to Catalina island for a few days.

W. Kent, of the American Florists' Exchange, says that business for the last month has been exceptionally good.

An immense cut of roses is now coming to the E. C. Amling Co. from the range of Amling Bros., at Santa Ana. R. Pleuss, of the shipping department, left for his vacation last week, going to Carlsbad for some surf fishing and from there to Imperial valley. His place while he is away is taken by R. E. Dressel.

S. Murata & Co. report business good, with an exceptional demand for asters, which now are particularly good here.

roses is coming to the store of W. Armacost & Co. Manager Williamson leaves this week for his vacation, driving to San Francisco and returning by the inland route.

George Eischen, manager of the Alexandria Florist, has resigned and intends to put in more time at his ranch at Montebello. H. R. R.

SAN FRANCISCO, CAL.

The Market.

Stock was plentiful last week, though roses had become rather scarce, especially those of fine quality. Good, long-stemmed roses were almost at a premium, but baby roses were plentiful. Asters had become a notable feature of the market, their quality being exceptionally good this season. Dahlias were fairly plentiful and there were some attractive pompons in the market. Gladioli were fine, indeed, but there were not so many as during the previous few weeks. Rubrum lilies had become a feature of the market, some of them being luxuriant. Lilies of the valley were sufficient to meet the demand and the same was true of gardenias and orchids, especially of the latter.

Various Notes.

Several San Francisco growers, friends of Mrs. Darbee, telegraphed to her at London, asking her to visit their families in Genoa, Italy. Mrs. Darbee's response was that she was leaving for that city. London, Mrs. Darbee found, was still suffering from the results of the war. Even the famous roast beef was not what it used to be.

Louis Castillo, decorator for Pelicano, Rossi & Co., was called hurriedly from his vacation by news that his wine cellar was being robbed. He found that two thieves had established themselves in his house and were not only drinking his wine, but were eating his food and burning his electric lights night and day. Mr. Castillo is taking the remainder of his vacation at home, with a shot gun handy.

Robert Newcomb, representing the Burlington Willow Ware Shops, Burlington, Ia., is calling on the bay cities trade. The San Francisco Coöperative Flower Market carries this line.

The Charles C. Navlet Co. is continuing its policy of holding dahlia shows at the Market street store. Some of the new seedlings are attracting especial admiration, according to Manager L. Picetti. One especially large, unnamed seedling is pale yellow, shaded to salmon, and another mammoth flower is pale lavender. The exhibit is bringing in excellent business.

Frank D. Pelicano is cutting some splendid dahlias on his dahlia ranch, and Pelicano, Rossi & Co. are handling them. The Eva Pelicano is an especial beauty and each pink head of the California Superb is a bouquet in itself. Mr. Pelicano is cutting a number of fine pompon dahlias.

Adrian J. Schoorl has just returned from a trip to Santa Maria and Guadaloupe, where, he states, they were just beginning to harvest the sweet pea crop, about seventy-five per cent of which is good. Orders for early sweet peas are coming in already, and Mr. Schoorl is also receiving substantial orders for ranunculi and anemones.

tinues to be good. He cleans up his roses every day and, while many other dealers are complaining of the lack of good gladioli, Mr. Axell could have more than he is able to handle. Some of these gladioli would arouse the admiration of eastern growers. The yellow Schwaben, Magenta, Herada, Pendleton and others have over eighteen inches of flowers of unusual size. Californians like their gladioli to be of showy colors, according to Mr. Axell, who is also handling a number of fine asters. Mr. Axell has just bought a fine Packard car.

C. Kooyman finds that when the quality of the summer stock deteriorates the really good cut flowers are more and more in demand.

F. C. Jaeger & Son report a steadily increasing volume of orders for California strawflowers.

Eppus McDonald, of Joseph's, is spending his vacation at Saratoga, and Harold Payton, on the principle, "Know your own city," is familiarizing himself with the Twin Peaks.

The E. W. McLellan Co. is handling a good many asters and is finding that the railroad strike is not interfering with coast shipments. According to G. W. McLellan, the heat wave has pre-

The Market.

The flower market in the east bay section has assumed a more normal status than it has for some months. The market is no longer glutted with a quantity of flowers which cannot be absorbed. While there were plenty of flowers for all purposes, there were none going to waste, and both growers and dealers were satisfied on this score.

Asters are fairly plentiful, but many of them are a trifle small. The first chrysanthemums have appeared and are good in quality, but they will probably not do for shipping, even if there were through southern California, where he renewed acquaintance with many of his old associates in the florists' business. Mr. Harris says that the more he sees of stock in other places, the more he thinks of the stock around Oakland and San Francisco. He states that business is holding up well during the summer months.

The Thorsted Floral Co. reports July business increased over that of last year. Mr. Thorsted says that funeral work was rushing until the middle of July, when it dropped off somewhat. The cut flower business has remained fair all through the month. Mr. Thorsted is busy rebuilding a number of the greenhouses. A number of houses are being equipped with stands instead of beds, as formerly. The Thorsted Floral Co. grows all its own potted plants, ferns, cyclamens, etc. L. Thomas, of the firm, is leaving for his vacation.

W. S. Harmon, of the H. M. Sanborn Co., is away on his vacation. Mr. Sanborn reports the usual summer quietness in business. Owing to recent increases in rent, Mr. Sanborn is subletting a portion of his floor space to the Crabtree Travel Agency. He is moving the seed department to the rear of the store and is making use of more of his mezzanine space for offices and store room. Mr. Sanborn expects that the new arrangement will work in well, as most of the business of the travel agency is carried on during the summer, when the florists' business is quiet, while in the winter the situation is reversed. The change will be completed about August 15.

Hogan & Evers will move shortly to their new store, a few doors south of their present location.

J. Seulberger is away on his vacation and will not return until the middle of August.

The florists of the college town, Berkeley, are enjoying a better business since the beginning of the summer session. More social affairs are taking place. M. M.

PORTLAND, ORE.

At the monthly meeting of the Oregon Florists' Club, held July 25, plans were perfected for the annual picnic, which will take place August 6, at Montrose park, on the Columbia river highway near Troutdale. A large turnout of florists and their employees is expected.

James Forbes and Fred Van Kirk have been retained by the Oregon state fair board as superintendents of the floral exhibits at the annual state fair, to be held late in September.

It is reported that the Oregon Bulb Farm, Salem, Ore., is well along in the harvesting of its tulip bulbs, which are of prime quality and will be used extensively by florists in this section of the country for cut flower purposes.

Dr. A. J. Knapp, of Evansville, Ind., an extensive grower of peonies for the Chicago market, visited this section last week. He is investigating the possibilities of peony shipping to the north Pacific coast from a point farther south.

Fred Grobe, the well known florist of Santa Rosa, Cal., visited our city several days. His trip will take him as far north as Vancouver, B. C.

H. E. Heiner, of the Garland Co., Cleveland, O., and Fred Gust, representing the McCallum Co., Pittsburgh, Pa., were trade visitors last week.

HAVE YOU SEEN THE NEW WRIGHT FERN?

A PAGE OF HINTS AND HELPS FOR THE RETAIL FLORIST

CAPLAN'S SIDE LINES.

The remarks of Caplan the Florist, Boston, Mass., in the article in last week's Review, on "Selling Birds as a Side Line," give especial interest to the news that the conservatory to be erected in conjunction with his new store, at 140 Massachusetts avenue, will be so divided that a space 14x20 feet will be available as a bird house. The bird house will have no cages, it is stated, but will be an open room in which the birds may fly about.

The new store, which will be a few doors from his present location, will be 22x75 and finished in ivory and tile. In the center of the store will be an oval fish pool, 3x6 feet, constructed of beach stones set in concrete. In the conservatory, which will be 14x60 feet and constructed by Hitchings & Co., the benches will be filled with plants and the space below them used for goldfish. Mr. Caplan has been highly successful in selling fish and birds as side lines in his flower store. The combination of flowers, fish and birds is a triple alliance that appeals to many customers.

LOWE'S FLOWER SHOP.

The accompanying cut shows the interior of a newly opened flower shop in Long Beach, Cal., which truly represents an easterner's idea of what a flower shop in sunny California must be —a veritable bower of fragrance and beauty. The store depicted is located at 251 American avenue and is owned by H. N. Lowe, of 242 West Ocean avenue. It is operating under the name of Lowe's Flower Shop, and is the second to be opened by this hustling individual.

The interior of the store is commodious and up-to-date in every respect. The jardinieres, tables, fern boxes and the pedestal for the crystal globe in the center of the room are of the Italian terra-cotta type. The floor of the store is of tile construction and the lighting system is effected by means of the antique lanterns. At the back of the store and through the left archway is the wrapping room, and still farther back is located a well lighted workroom. The icebox is reached through the center arch, and to the right through the arch and up the stairs to the mezzanine floor is found the basket room. Stately palms and boxes of ferns, together with baskets and vases of flowers along the sides of the store, and the pedestal surrounded at its base by ornamental baskets of ferns and flowers, lend a rich and aristocratic appearance to the entire setting.

New Store Recently Opened by H. N. Lowe at Long Beach, Cal.

VALUE OF ADVERTISING.

"It is becoming a recognized fact that advertising does not add to the selling cost of an article," said a prominent business man recently, "because overhead charges are reduced consequent on the increased sales.

"There are well authenticated cases where, after large sums were spent on advertising, the article itself has actually been sold at a lower price than before that expense was incurred.

"If you believe in your business and your production, don't hesitate to spend money on advertising, for by so doing you will not only be increasing your own business and your own profits, but you will also be increasing the general business of the country, helping to find employment, and stimulating the action and reaction of one trade upon another."

WAYS WITH WINDOWS.

Few types of merchants find their display windows so valuable a means of advertising as do florists. Examples of this fact have been presented in these columns before. A few suggestions for those who wish to take more advantage of this advertising space than they have before come appropriately at a time when the florist wants to use all methods of pushing business.

It should be remembered that a large quantity of any sort of merchandise in a display window denotes abundance and therefore cheapness. If you are running a special sale on roses or sweet peas or any other flowers, fill your windows with the flowers, but if, on ordinary days, you wish to give your store the air of a select establishment where high quality and unusual service prevail, with corresponding prices, the fewer the objects in your window the better. Of course, other factors enter into the situation and one would get no idea of high quality and price from a shabby and bare window with only a few ferns therein. Instead, such a window indicates as loudly as a poster the deadness of such a store.

The florist can get many ideas for his windows by watching those of other merchants, particularly in such lines as pay special attention to window decorating. Compare the type of window staged by a 5 and 10-cent store with that of an expensive jewelry shop. A study of department store windows is also worth while, because extensive use is made of accessories and settings, which the florist may also employ to much advantage. A few florists have found how striking a window may be obtained by placing a single conspicuous vase or basket in a window, with richly colored velvet or other material for a background.

It is necessary to make window displays plausible. By this is meant that the vase in the above-mentioned window should not be a cheap affair filled with cheap flowers. In that case no message of high value is carried. Nor would one fill a window with extra long-stemmed roses or orchids and expect to give the idea of cheapness that he would if he used sweet peas or bulbous flowers.

Whether one uses price cards in his window or not depends upon the purpose of the window. The display which is staged to move flowers in a special sale should carry price cards. The florist who wishes to invite transient trade and serve many customers, even if they spend small amounts, will find it to his advantage to use price cards. But the florist who is not interested in a person who comes in with less than a $10 bill to spend will naturally shun such cards.

The most effective displays are those which are seasonable. They are also the easiest. A seasonable display is one which is suggestive of a certain day or week or occasion. Such displays must be planned beforehand, set up at the right time and removed when their use is over. A St. Valentine's day window is decidedly out of place February 15.

THE FLORIST'S CAT.

How feline feeling caused infelicity in a Boston grocery store, and how the florist who harbors a cat in a place where his customers may come in contact with it is under legal obligation merely to use due care to avoid injury to customers, is shown by the decision of the Massachusetts Supreme Judicial court in the case of Goodwin vs. E. B. Nelson Grocery Co., 132 Northeastern Reporter, 51.

Plaintiff, a customer in defendant's store, was accompanied by a dog which ungallantly engaged in a fight with a cat in the store. After the animals had been separated, the plaintiff reached down and grasped pussy's paw, whereupon the cat severely bit and scratched plaintiff.

Holding that the plaintiff could not recover damages from defendant, the court finds that plaintiff's own carelessness in unnecessarily coming in close contact with the cat was the direct cause of the accident. It is further found that the defendant had not been previously apprised of any such vicious propensity of the cat as rendered the defendant liable in keeping it in the store. The court says in part:

"It is necessary for the plaintiff to show as ground of recovery that the defendant committed a breach of some legal duty owed by it to her. There

The Penalty of Leadership

"In every field of human endeavor, he who leads must pay the penalty.

In art, in industry, the reward and the punishment are always the same.

The reward is widespread recognition; the punishment, fierce denial and detraction.

When a man's work becomes a standard, it also becomes a target for the shafts of the envious few.

Jealousy does not protrude its forked tongue at him who produces a commonplace thing.

Whatsoever you do, no one will strive to surpass or to slander you, unless your work be stamped with the seal of superiority.

Long, long, after a great work or a good work has been done, those who are disappointed or envious, continue to cry out that it cannot be done.

The little world continued to protest that Fulton could never build a steamboat, while the big world flocked to the river banks to see his boat steam by.

The leader is assailed because he is a leader, and the effort to equal him is merely added proof of that leadership.

Failing to equal or excel, the follower seeks to depreciate and to destroy—but only confirms once more the superiority of that which he strives to belittle.

There is nothing new in all this.

It is as old as the world and as old as—envy, ambition, and the desire to surpass.

If the leader truly leads, he remains—the leader.

That which is good or great makes itself known, no matter how loud the clamor of denial.

That which deserves to live—lives."

All of which is a good word of cheer to you who are doing distinctive things distinctly well. Things which the other fellow has neither foresight enough to follow, nor hindsight enough to grasp.

can be no negligence without some act or omission in violation of a legal duty. The defendant by maintaining its retail store and thus impliedly soliciting the patronage of the plaintiff, assumed toward her the obligation to keep the premises in a condition reasonably safe for her use as a customer while she was in the exercise of due care. . . . The plaintiff cannot recover unless there was evidence warranting a finding that the cat was vicious to the knowledge of the defendant, and that her injury followed as the natural and probable consequence of the defendant's wrong in keeping such an animal." S.

MOTT-LY MUSINGS

"Some class!" observed a boy scout, while riding in a Pullman on a day coach ticket. Robert H. C. Bard, Syracuse, N. Y., remarked that "this exigency of the New York Central, in furnishing a higher-class accommodation, will never be lost upon our young traveler, who, by the way, was not the only one thus favored, and here is an example shown the trade to endeavor to go one better where it is possible to do so." Increasing business necessitated engaging a manager at the Bard Flower Shop, Syracuse, N. Y. Fred W. Buttmann, of local fame, is the appointee.

• • • •

"Impossible to attend the S. A. F. convention," commented Harry Bellamy, of Bellamy Bros., Syracuse, N. Y., "but we will doubtless be entertained, as usual, by a full account of the proceedings in The Review." Commenting upon the big demand for geraniums, in which Pink Beauty and J. J. Harrison are leaders, our worthy craftsman sees still larger sales for them, even as plants for winter use. The small-sized model of Thoro-Mix, sold by L. C. Stroh & Sons, Batavia, N. Y., is highly spoken of. "It keeps four men busy and we use it for everything in soils," commented Mr. Bellamy.

• • • •

Community advertisers in the local Syracuse press are Robert Bard, Gustav Bartholme, Charles W. Bourne, Werner F. Buttmann, Albert H. Davis and Matthew B. Kay. Each expresses satisfaction with the combination and subsequent results of coöperation.

• • • •

Manager J. F. Sullivan, of E. W. Edwards & Sons, intends giving Syracusians a larger variety through the season by means of 100,000 square feet of glass, large acreage of sash and land, and a sprinkler system, possibly Skinner, owing to the favorable reports received of its workings. Cyclamens, chrysanthemums, carnations and roses are leaders, with geraniums in abundant prospective.

• • • •

Mrs. E. V. B. Felthousen, Schenectady, N. Y., received the first prize at a recent local fair for the best decorated go-cart. It was done in red, white and blue—S. A. Nutt geraniums, white hydrangeas and larkspur. It received much praise from the local press.

• • • •

If Ivor Ringdahl, Rome, N. Y., attends the convention at Kansas City, accompanied by some specimens of the superb cyclamens he is growing, he will create a mild sensation.

• • • •

If C. F. Baker & Son make the suggested automobile trip to the S. A. F. convention, Utica, N. Y., will be well represented and our enterprising conferes will feel amply repaid in the fund of information gained; there will also be the pleasure of meeting western correspondents of many years' acquaintance, who will doubtless be there in full force.

Manager James McLaughlin, of the Cleveland-McCallum Co., commented upon the delightful outing of the Cleveland Florists' Club July 26, when some 200 florists and friends enjoyed the one big time of getting together. Charles Rotter, foreman for A. Graham & Son, Cleveland, O., is justly proud of the several houses planted with chrysanthemums and cyclamens, intended to exceed last year's supply in number and equal it in quality. Among foliage plants are crotons, limited in number and intended only for retail sales, but of surpassing quality.

ance, including forty of the Laver circle, headed by the president of the club, John E. Laver, who did his utmost to make the gathering a record-breaker. "It was a tired though jolly crowd that wended its way homeward, following an afternoon of games and a substantial lunch," said H. E. Selkregg, of North East, Pa., who, with Mrs. Selkregg, was among the members from out of town. "The afternoon ended all too soon and it is regrettable that such meetings occur so seldom, as it is beyond question that at such meetings the best feelings of the craft are exhibited." The following day Mr. Laver entertained some of the visiting craft at a luncheon of the Rotary Club. The talk by a Rubin accountant was most instructive, as in it he traced the system of accounting from the time of Joseph, who kept what was known as the single entry method of bookkeeping, down to the present, showing what familiarity the Egyptians had with figures which may appear small in these days of large transactions, but which, nevertheless, were accurately kept. It was agreed that the matter of costs is preëminent and peculiarly applied to the florist.

Little activity was shown among the buyers at any of the wholesale markets last week. Business is now at its lowest ebb, being limited principally to funeral work. The wholesalers have been well supplied with seasonable stock. There are plenty of roses, but the bulk of these cannot be classed as really fancy and the prices are low in all grades, except on the few fancies that come in. Carnations are about at an end; only a few good ones are seen, as all local growers have pulled out the old plants.

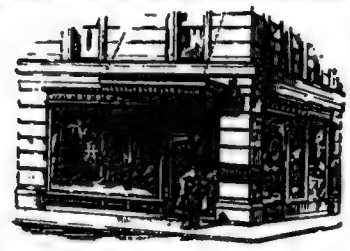
Asters are fairly plentiful and take the place of carnations. The best of the asters clean up almost daily. Gladioli are seen in large quantities. A good, soaking rain is badly needed, as the bulk of them come in with burned tops. Growers who can water with an irrigation system have the quality that brings top prices. All varieties are in plentiful supply and do not clear on any one day. America and Schwaben have the call daily. Mixed varieties in thousand lots go at extremely low prices. Easter lilies are in plentiful supply, with no extra calls. Valley is slow. Among the outdoor flowers seen in big lots daily are larkspur, daisies, feverfew, cornflowers and candytuft. Gypsophila cleans up fairly well.



Good smilax was in demand last week, but was scarce. Plumosus, Sprengeri and ferns have good daily calls.

The Picnic.

The much talked-of event, at which florists' families and employees have a day's outing and have the opportunity to see one another once a year, occurred Thursday afternoon, July 27. Old Sol was on the job early and made it hot for all at Normandy grove. By 3 o'clock the attendance reached close to 400. Great credit is due to the club's trustees, Messrs. Gumz, Baumann and Ruff, whose hard efforts made this, the twenty-ninth annual, one of the most successful and enjoyable of all the club's picnics.

The prizes for those taking part in the games were elaborate and expensive. These were made possible this year by more liberal contributions from members of the trade. The eight wholesale markets, the Lady Florists' Club, the County Growers' Association, the St. Louis Seed Co., the American Greenhouse Mfg. Co. and leading growers and retailers were contributors to the long list of prizes. The various athletic events, fourteen in number, were full of interest and excitement. Art Beyer's jazz band kept the younger folks busy in the dance hall until a late hour.

The games committee, consisting of Gus Kuehner, Andre Bourdet, Frank A. Windler, Fred Bruenig, Charles Hahn and J. J. Windler, started the fun at 3 o'clock with a 75-yard dash for boys 12 to 17 years old. This was won by Robert Breitshoe, with Henry Braun, Jr., second, and George Patten, third.

The paper bag throwing contest, for ladies, was won by Mrs. A. W. Gumz; Miss G. Kuemire, second, and Mrs. H. G. Berning, third.

The 50-yard dash for boys of 12 years and under was won by E. Easton; Elmer Rowe, second, and Eugene Wors, third.

The running high jump, for florists only, brought out a fine company of athletic-looking young men. After many jumps, the contest narrowed down to three. In the finals it was won by Eugene Kuehner; Ray Wiederholt, second, and Frank Sanders, third.

The doughnut eating contest, for girls from 12 to 17 years old, created much fun. Thirty girls participated and Miss Helen Madson won first prize; Miss P. Deare, second, and Hilda Kuehner, third.

The Japanese race for little girls was won by Miss D. Young; Josephine Mathis, second, and Miss R. Schrieffer, third.

The novelty race for ladies brought out the largest number of participants, fifty starting the race. Of the forty who finished, each got a box of candy. The special prizes in this race were won by Miss E. Haub and Mrs. Adolph Kuehner.

In the men's novelty race, all taking part won cigars.

The guessing contest, conducted by the St. Louis Seed Co.—guessing the number of beans in a jar—was won by J. J. Beneke. The jar contained 3,740 beans and the winning guess was 3,700. G. W. Turner was second and Mrs. Robert Ladley, third.

In the tug of war, between teams made up by Joe Hauser and George Kuehner, Mr. Kuehner's team was declared the winner. Each team divided two boxes of cigars among those taking part.

The cracker eating contest, for small boys, caused lots of fun and each boy won a ball.

The girl's novelty race, for small tots from 5 to 8 years old, called out numerous contestants and each one won a ball.

The great feature of the day, however, was the ball game between the wholesalers and the retailers. George Kuehner captained the wholesalers and J. J. Bentzen captained the retail team. The regular umpires, Frank Gorly and Henry Berning, assigned for this contest, failed to appear and the two teams drafted Charles Wors to act in that capacity. Mr. Wors did the job in regular league fashion. Both teams had plenty of rooters. Ruff and Sanders for the retailers and Kuehner and Finnegan for the wholesalers were the batteries. At the end of the seventh inning the game was called on account of darkness, with the retailers the winners by a score of 25 to 15. The great playing of Oliver Sanders, Erwin Dotzmann, John Bentzen, Eugene and George Kuehner, Ruff and Finnegan was given much applause.

After dinner the young folks crowded the dance pavilion and remained until a late hour, while the older folks found their way home. All say that the twenty-ninth annual picnic was one of the best ever given by the St. Louis Florists' Club.

Various Notes.

The St. Louis Florists' Club will hold its regular meeting August 10, in Kirkwood, Mo., at the greenhouse establishment of the W. C. Smith Wholesale Floral Co. Automobiles will be in waiting in the wholesale district to carry the members to the meeting place. The features of the meeting will be the elec-

Louis delegation should reach sixty by the time of leaving, August 14, and he advises making early reservations for the trip and also securing hotel accommodations at Kansas City, as the hotels are said to be filling up rapidly.

Mrs. Charles Juengel reports that her son, Edwin, has left her employ to engage in other business. She has offered her store and greenhouse for sale. This is an old-established business.

For the first time in the twenty-nine years of florists' club picnics, not a representative of Belleville, Ill., was present at the picnic. Usually the whole family of Belleville florists are in attendance. Edwardsville and Collinsville also failed us. George Madsen and family, of Alton, and Edwin Denker, of St. Charles, were on hand. Kirkwood's representation was small compared with former years, but Messrs. Rowe, Pilcher, Goebel, Edwards, Braun, Hauser, May, Wagner, Denys and De Wever, with their families, made the loss good. The east side was represented by Charles Haun and G. Menges. All were glad they came and those that failed us missed a good time.

The florist bowlers held a meeting at the establishment of the Pieser Wholesale Floral Co., July 25, and decided to use the Grand Arsenal alleys again the coming season. Six teams have already been selected, under the same conditions as last season. The seventh alley has also been engaged, for the use of the extras not bowling in teams and for visitors. The season is to begin August 30.

The following bowlers have promised to make the trip to Kansas City and take part in the bowling tournament: O. Ruff, George Kuehner, A. Hoffman,

The Market.

There was little change in the market last week. Plenty of flowers were to be had, but business in general was exceptionally slow. The annual overproduction on midseason gladioli has again occurred. Growers of these bulbs evidently forget from year to year when planting that a summer dullness in business occurs, and just at this time their production is the heaviest. This lack of calculation is important and should be considered. Growers should guard against producing such quantities and varieties as to make it necessary to sell them as low as $10 per thousand.

Various Notes.

S. F. Houghton, representing C. R. Burr & Co., Manchester, Conn., growers of nursery stock, was in Pittsburgh calling on the trade.

J. B. Strayer, engineer and manager of the A. W. Smith Co. landscape department, reports prospects for a good season are in evidence. This firm has several large lots in preparation for fall planting.

Out beyond Warrendale on the Perry highway, in a neat little summer cottage, Harry Langhans, of McGrath & Langhans, is spending his vacation. His trusty Cadillac brings him back and forth daily.

LANCASTER, PA.

Reading Florists Entertain.

The Reading Florists' Club entertained the Lancaster County Florists' Club at a picnic at the Eagles' Home on Mount Penn, July 28. The reputation of the Reading florists' hospitality is well known among us, but this picnic exceeded anything ever put across by the Reading boys. In the sports, which were intensely interesting, Lancaster succeeded in carrying off two honors. Mrs. Elmer Weaver caught the rooster in the rooster chase and J. Moore smoked the cigar in the shortest time. S. S. Pennock broke the most flower pots, with T. J. Nolan a close second. At quoits Reading beat Lancaster in a close match. At 5 p. m. a fine dinner was served, during which many souvenirs were distributed.

Those from Lancaster who attended were: Albert M. and Mrs. Herr, Elmer J. and Mrs. Weaver, I. Wade and Mrs. Gayley, Rudolph and Mrs. Nagle, R. C. and Mrs. Smallwood, J. and Mrs. Moore, L. S. and Mrs. Landis, J. H. and Mrs. Schoenberger, E. P. and Mrs. Hostetter, P. S. and Mrs. Hostetter, A. K. and Mrs. Rohrer, Barre and Mrs. Heinitsh, Harry

Various Notes.

Edgar Harry Herr and Cora Frances Weaver were married at noon Wednesday, July 26, by Rev. John Stringer, at Philadelphia. The ring ceremony was used. Elmer and Mrs. Weaver and Charles B. Herr witnessed the ceremony. The couple will be at home to their friends after September 1, at their home in Lancaster. The groom is a brother of Charles B. Herr, the noted carnation specialist, and the bride is a sister of Elmer J. Weaver, of prominence in floriculture.

Mrs. B. F. Barr is spending some time at Atlantic City with her sister, Mrs. Nellie Eichler and family.

Ira H. Landis, noted gladiolus grower, has purchased a Pierce-Arrow touring car.

H. K. Rohrer has gone on a motor trip to Montreal and Quebec.

Albert M. and Mrs. Herr will attend the S. A. F. convention at Kansas City, August 15 to 17. H. K. R.

ROCHESTER, N. Y.

The Market.

There is not a great deal of transient trade at present, but just the ordinary run of business, with a good share of funeral work. Social functions calling for elaborate decorations are rare. There is an abundance of summer flowers, such as marguerites, calendulas, phlox, abelias, daisies, sweet peas, gaillardias, etc. Gladioli in several varieties are coming into the market in great quantities. Roses are plentiful, as are carnations, but the latter are poor in quality.

Various Notes.

Irving Briggs, of James Vick's Sons, is traveling, calling on the seed trade.

George Kramer, Cecil Lester and K. Rohrer, Charles B. Herr, Carrie Stechman, W. B. Girvin, Mrs. Ida Goldbach, B. F. Barr, J. P. Siebold, T. J. Nolan and S. S. Pennock, Philadelphia.

Business was reported poor all along the line. There were plenty of flowers in the home gardens and large amounts of gladioli and perennials were offered on the market, some of excellent quality. Gladioli were selling at $1 per hundred early in the week and retailing at 40 cents or less per dozen. Asters were retailing at 25 cents per dozen.

The district west of the Twin Cities has suffered from the drought considerably. Grains are short-stemmed, although the heads are fairly well filled. Fruits in most sections are doing well. Dahlias have been flowering nicely.

The Alpha Floral Co. is nicely settled in its new quarters on Hennepin avenue just off Eighth street.

The Minnesota florists are planning a big picnic, August 8, at Wildwood. Every florist should be there.

At the last meeting of the publicity committee of the fall flower festival at Minneapolis, November 11 to 16, it was announced that one of the large stores would put on a fashion show.

Both the silver and bronze medals are

The Market.

Business was good Monday and Tuesday of last week. The rest of the week was slow. A surplus of good gladioli is being cut. Better stock could not be asked for than growers are bringing to market, but with such quantities on all sides, it would take an immense trade to use all. Home-grown asters are coming in and the quality is good.

Various Notes.

A. N. Nielsen has taken out all of the old benches of his greenhouses. He is putting in new wooden benches on concrete legs. Within a few days he will be ready to take the carnations from the field. He has about 60,000 good plants, all of the stores, wholesaling at $3 per hundred and less in some instances. The wet season is somewhat to blame for the shortage in flowers. Asters are all late. There are some crop failures reported. There is one instance on record of 50,000 plants being ruined.

Sweet peas are about over for the season outdoors. Summer-flowering bulbs, montbretias, galtonias and lilies are appearing at this time. The retailers from now on will be well supplied with all of the flowers they need.

The Auburn Flower Gardens have had all of the orders that they could fill.

E. A.

CLEVELAND, O.

The Market.

Summer vacation conditions continue in the flower market. Business has been exceedingly slow; the supply of stock on the market is large and the demand small. Gladioli continue to flood the market and asters are now a close second. Roses are still off crop in most varieties and those that do arrive are not exceptionally good. Poor stock of any variety is almost impossible to dispose of, and even the good stock is found difficult to move. Carnations are finally gone, but asters are taking their place nicely. Buddleias are arriving now in fair quality and clean up well. Easter lilies are coming in fine; in fact, in better quality than has been seen here for some time.

At Willoughbeach park and a large crowd turned out. There was a ball game between the wholesalers and the retailers, which was won by the retailers by a score of 19 to 2. After the game, races of all kinds were held, in which all participated. There were free peanuts for all and they certainly were good, and were appreciated by all. Due credit must be given to Kenneth Wilson, who, as a committee of one, took charge, and, thanks to him, everything went smoothly.

The results of the events were as follows:

Fifty-yard race, girls under 9 years—Elsie Linder, first; Mabel Magune, second; Jean Rokusek, third.

Fifty-yard race, boys under 9 years—William Merkel, first; Norman Merkel, second; David Thans, third.

Fifty-yard race, girls 10 to 14 years—Mabel Magune, first; Annabel Parker, second; Thelma Steinbrenner, third.

Fifty-yard race, women over 25 years—Mrs. Braswitz, first; Mrs. Merkel, second; Mrs. Steinbrenner, third.

Fifty-yard race, girls under 25 years—Lucile Ogle, first; Alice Schuelle, second; Eleanor Schoen, third.

Hundred-yard race, men over 28 years—Thomas Ludick, first; J. Huiran, second; Adolph Goltz, third.

Hundred-yard race, boys under 28 years, Monk, first; Bagney, second; M. George, third.

Snap the cork, free for all—Mrs. Knoble, first; Sidney Grundstein, second; Victor Kirchner, third.

Hundred-yard race, fat men—A. Barber first; H. Holmes, second; Walter Priest, third.

Fifty-yard race, fat women—Mrs. Steinbrenner, first; Mrs. Mandelson, second; Mrs. Loher, third.

Hundred-yard shoe race, boys—Bisham, first; Kenneth Spang, second; Henry Wilms, third.

Fifty-yard shoe race, girls—Lucile Ogle, first; Alice Schuelle, second; Elizabeth Ogle, third.

Kick ball contest, women—Alice Schuelle, first; Mrs. Scerba, second.

Fifty-yard sack race—Charles Macuga, first; Harold Clapp, second; Monk, third.

Fifty-yard backward running race—Charles Macuga, first; Monk, second; Cancik, third.

Fifty-yard needle race, women—Lucile Ogle, first; Mrs. Merkel, second; Mrs. Braswitz, third.

Hundred-yard needle race, men—Harold Clapp, first; Charles Macuga, second; Eugene Burger, third.

Hundred-yard special race, for all previous men winners—Bagney, first; Charles Macuga, second; Monk, third.

Tug of war, wholesalers versus retailers—Won by the retailers.

Buy A Book Each Month

Many of the most successful business men in America had little schooling—but they practically all are readers—they read The Review each week and they buy books frequently. Such men are self-educated—knowledge gleaned by reading.

It is the mission of The Review to assist its subscribers in every way to improve their knowledge of the trade and their knowledge in other fields of human interest. As a measure of co-operation The Review has added to its services to subscribers a book purchasing service. This department, of course, specializes on books of special interest to florists, nurserymen and seedsmen, but in addition will secure for subscribers, without charge for its service, any book they want, of any nature.

If you want a book of any given title, The Review will get it for you. Or if you want a book on any certain subject, The Review will give you the titles and prices of all the books on that subject.

Look over the list in the appended coupon. Most of these are standard books by well known authors. Order the one which seems, from its title, most nearly to concern your special interests. When you have read it carefully, order another.

Put a cross opposite the books you want. Clip the coupon and send it to us with a check to cover cost. Books will be forwarded, postpaid, without delay.

Westerville, O.—J. F. Sked and wife are on a jaunt north. When last heard from, they were at Skagway, Alaska. Mr. Sked stated that there were plenty of flowers in that section, and pansies seemed to grow much larger there than they do in the states. "The appetite one gets up here is what gets your goat," says Mr. Sked.

WASHINGTON, D. C.

Club Picnic.

More than 300 florists, their families and friends, participated in the annual outing of the Florists' Club of Washington, D. C., held July 27, at Great Falls, Va. Athletic events, dancing and refreshments were the principal features of the day.

The crowd left Washington in several special cars; overflowing these, many of the participants were compelled to avail themselves of transportation in the regular cars of the railway company. On the way out, peanuts and other edibles were distributed for the benefit of the children, and the ladies were each presented with a corsage bouquet.

The big event of the day was the tug of war between the storekeepers and the growers. The former were getting the better of the deal when friends of the latter, standing on the sidelines, joined in the melee, with the result that Adolph E. Gude, anchor for the storekeepers, was dragged from his post after his teammates had deserted him and a lamppost around which the storemen had wound the rope was toppled over.

Huge quantities of edibles, presented by the florists to their guests, were disposed of, including 1,500 sandwiches, 1,500 cakes, 1,500 bottles of soft drinks and many other similar refreshments. The stores were all closed at 1 o'clock, in order that all employees could get into the fun.

Nine committees looked after the arrangements. The following were the chairmen: Executive, George C. Shaffer; finance, William H. Ernest; entertainment, Z. D. Blackistone; tickets, A. Schnell; refreshments, Adolph E.

PREPARING SWEET PEA SOIL.

Kindly advise me how to prepare the soil for carnations and sweet peas. How deep should the soil be for sweet peas? I have some well rotted straw manure and some that is about half rotted. The soil is rich, but a little sandy.

L. M. S.—Mich.

The more completely decayed the manure is, the better for any crop. What little plant food the manure contains is completely locked up until it is broken down by decay. When we speak of the little plant food it contains, we do not wish to minimize its importance. Analysis shows but a trace of available plant food in ordinary manure, but we all know how it stimulates growth through its mechanical effect upon the soil. On our prairie soil we have used well rotted manure as strong as one-half manure and one-half soil, but with a sandy soil one part manure to four parts of soil is enough; a sandy soil is too light as it is, in most cases, and manure tends to increase this condition. After the bed is prepared, we supplement the manure with steamed bone meal at the rate of one pound to four or five square feet of bench space. On a sandy soil, this would better be reduced to one-half. After the plants are well started, more manure can be added as a top-dressing. For carnations, some form of nitrogen should be added to the top-dressing in the form of blood and bone or dried sheep manure. Sod that has been rotting for a year should be in excellent shape to use for any ordinary greenhouse crop. To some extent it takes the place of manures. Twelve inches is a good depth of soil in which to grow sweet peas.

Old-Style Refrigerating Machines--and the new

AUTOMATIC!

What a difference! The Lipman is made full-automatic at the factory—it has none of the clumsy, complicated automatic attachments found on other machines. A Lipman operates for months with no attention other than occasional oiling and doesn't vary 2 degrees, while hand-controlled refrigerating machines need the constant care of a skilled mechanic and often vary 20 degrees a day.

Perishable flowers are preserved indefinitely in the crisp dry cold of Lipman Automatic Refrigeration. For economy and efficiency—get the Lipman. It pays for itself—and earns a profit—by the savings it makes. Write for information—no obligation.

Seed Trade News

AMERICAN SEED TRADE ASSOCIATION.
President, Alexander Forbes, Newark, N. J.; secretary, C. E. Kendel, Cleveland, O.

FRENCH bulbs reached New York last week.

JOHN C. BODGER, the well known Los Angeles flower seed grower, will celebrate his forty-second birthday anniversary August 4.

ADVANCE orders having been filled, jobbers find themselves with some surplus of Purity freesia in spite of the short-crop reports.

THE Smith Dewitt Seed Co., Auburn, N. Y., has been incorporated, with a capital stock of $10,000. The incorporators are I. C. Smith, D. S. and Y. M. Dewitt.

JAMES MCHUTCHISON, of New York, was knocked down by an automobile July 17 at Waverley, Mass., where he was visiting his brother-in-law, Frank Edgar, on his way to Kennebunk, Me., and his right ankle was broken. It is now in a plaster cast and Mr. McHutchison is improving satisfactorily.

ONE of the most attractive pieces of advertising issued by seedsmen is the monthly calendar, a lithographed card about 5x10 inches to hang on the office wall, sent its friends by the J. C. Robinson Seed Co., Waterloo, Neb. Exquisitely colored, each one bears an attractive illustration and an apothegm that is interesting. That for July, "The only way to have a friend is to be one," is supplemented by August's, "A friend is some one who knows all about you and loves you just the same."

A SURVEY of the Chicago Federal Reserve bank covering forty-one canneries in the district shows the season's pack of peas up to about the first week of July well in advance of a year ago. Individually, three-fourths of the canners report increases, while the aggregate count by cases is nearly thirty-five per cent larger. The majority of the reports received, especially from Wisconsin, are for the Alaska or early packs only, which in general have been of good quality. Prospects for the late pea crop vary. In several localities of Illinois and Indiana the plant has suffered from extremely hot, dry weather, and throughout the district twenty-five per cent of the canners report damage by insects.

IN order to take care of the increasing domestic and foreign demand and the falling off of imports of seeds during the world war, the acreage planted for seed purposes in old, proven localities was increased, and new areas of production were sought, particularly for the production of vegetable seeds, but to a much less degree for field seeds. Although some new areas were found to give better yields or seeds of better quality than did old areas, the expense of pioneering was often such a drawback as to discourage further increased production in many of the new areas, says the United States Department of Agriculture. However, it is apparent to many growers that certain kinds of seeds may be produced in a number of places in this country, and that one of the best assurances against total failure of seed crops is the diversification of acreages as much as possible. At the same time it is realized that certain localities are better adapted for the production of a few kinds of seeds than are other localities.

THE Beckert Seed & Bulb Co., Pittsburgh, Pa., has announced its incorporation. The office and storeroom of the concern will be opened at 414 Ferry street September 1. The officers of the corporation are as follows: President, Albert J. Beckert; vice-president, John W. Fornof; secretary and treasurer, Oscar M. Beckert. Seeds, bulbs, roots, insecticides and implements will be handled.

MOTT-LY GLEANINGS.

The Theilmann Seed Co., Erie, Pa., is closing one of the best seed seasons on record.

The George Siegel Seed Store, Erie, Pa., reports business as encouraging to George Siegel, Jr., who has succeeded to this old-established business. Enlargement of the store to take care of increasing trade is under way.

O. W. Clark & Son, Buffalo, N. Y., have had a remarkable run on grass seed, a strong leader.

The Harvey Seed Store, Buffalo, N. Y., finds a steady call for field seeds. Shipping trade is fully up to former years, according to Manager Egerton. The Queen City Seed & Nursery Co., Buffalo, N. Y., held its annual holiday in conjunction with that of the Florists' Club. Manager Sullivan is well pleased with the season's business.

Hart & Vick, Rochester, N. Y., are busy with florists' seeds for summer sowing. Edward Vick is calling upon the trade. Manager Glenn is spending a vacation inspecting the firm's crops.

Manager Day, of the Fred Ebeling Seed Store, Syracuse, N. Y., is taking a well-earned though enforced rest, following the most strenuous season on record.

Members of the C. F. Saul Seed Store, Syracuse, N. Y., figure that the larger sales will balance the lower prices and make a satisfactory average for this season.

The Batcheler Seed Store, Utica, N. Y., reports sales on insecticides fully up to normal. The seed sowing season is late, but sales total well. This encouraging state of affairs seems prevalent throughout the Empire state.

"Proud to accommodate them," observed Walter E. Cook, of Walter E. Cook, Inc., Cleveland, O., referring to the renting of part of the seed store to a bank which is temporarily homeless. The new tenant may reciprocate by accommodating our hustling seedsmen when its new building is completed. If rumor is correct, Mr. Cook plans to motor to Kansas City to attend the S. A. F. convention. Manager James Fisher is on a vacation.

Manager Rotherham, of the seed store of Wood & Co., East Cleveland, O., has fully recovered from the severe illness of last winter and will take a vacation on the return of Mr. Wood. Last heard from, he was in the wilds of upper Canada.

Johnson's Seed Store, Cleveland, reports one of the busiest seasons on record.

C. E. Kendel, secretary of the American Seed Trade Association, Cleveland, O., gives an optimistic summary gathered from reports of correspondents throughout the seed trade, together with home experience. The present lull gives opportunity for vacations, which are welcome after the long season.

The Botzum Seed Co., Cleveland, O., separate from, though associated with, the Akron firm of same name, finds market gardeners' purses well lined this season. Good prices for produce mean freer purchasing and less complaining to the seedsman. J. C. Younghans, general manager of the Botzum Seed Co., was caught on the fly, as it were. A swing around the circle of growers catered to and purchased from indicates one of the best general averages for many seasons. The outlook in every respect is encouraging.

Ogden Gaul, general manager of the Buckeye Seed Co., Cleveland, O., observed that it is generally presumed that rocks and sand, or in other words, nerve and capital, are required to successfully pilot a real seed business. Our worthy confrere's experience of many years, together with that of Fred Owen, president; R. Valgo, vice-president, and S. Thomas, secretary and treasurer, each thoroughly versed in the business, should mean success to the new corporation. W. M.

SEED LABEL REGULATIONS.

In Oklahoma.

Although plaintiff was defeated in the case of D. M. Ferry & Co. vs. Whitehurst, 276 Federal Reporter, 18, it must be gratifying to that well known company to read the compliment paid to its reputation by the United States Circuit Court of Appeals. The litigation involved a construction of an act of the Oklahoma legislature, adopted in 1919 and providing as follows:

"Section 4. Every lot of beans, lettuce, radish, cabbage, watermelon, cantaloupe, and other garden and truck seeds, which are sold, offered or exposed for sale, when in bulk, package or other container, shall have affixed thereto, in a conspicuous place on the exterior of the container of such seed, a plainly written or printed, in not less than 18-point type, tag or label in the English language, stating: . . . (d) Approximate percentage of germination of such garden and truck seed, together with the month and year said seed was tested."

Defendants in this suit were the officials charged with enforcement of the law. They took steps to prevent marketing of plaintiff's seeds in Oklahoma, because they deemed that plaintiff had not sufficiently complied with the law. Plaintiff sued to enjoin defendants from thus interfering with their business. The United States District Court for the Western District of Oklahoma conditionally granted an injunction, but the decree has been reversed, on the ground that plaintiff had not complied with the law.

The statement on plaintiff's labels was "One per cent viable, tested since July 1, 1919, 99½% pure." The condition on which the lower court granted an injunction was that plaintiff state on its labels, "Germination, 10%. Tested July, 1919, or any other specific month as the fact may be, 99½% Pure." Plaintiff accepted this condition and a decree was accordingly entered in its favor and defendants appealed. Reversing the decree, the higher court said:

What "Approximate" Means.

"The only point presented by the appeal is as to whether the word 'approximate' in subdivision (d) above mentioned allows the appellee to specify one per cent, or ten per cent, as the approximate percentage of germination. The trial court was correct in so far as it ruled that the month and year must

New Gladiolus ELORA

(Originated by Luther Burbank)

A remarkable very early variety, a seedling from America.

Color, creamy white with rich cream throat on three lower petals, overlaid with dainty featherings of American Beauty pink, giving it just enough color to complete its beauty.

Blooms measure 4½ to 5 inches in diameter, on perfect, slender, stiff stems 4 to 4½ ft. tall. Commenced blooming this year July 7th, 75 days after planting. Very prolific in bulblets, a really wonderful variety for florists.

Only a limited number to be distributed this year, and in order that all growers may have a chance to get a start of Elora, we have decided to limit orders to not more than one dozen. Order now for October delivery.

Price, $1.00 each; $10.00 dozen.

The Growing of Tulips, in America, solved by MICHIGAN BULB PROPAGATING CO. R. F. D. No. 1, GRAND RAPIDS, MICH.

FOR TEN YEARS WE HAVE GROWN WITH SUCCESS TULIPS IN MICHIGAN AND WE ARE IN POSITION TO FURNISH YOU WITH THE PROOF.

Last year we offered to the trade 2-year-old planting stock (round bulbs) and the enormous success we had has prompted us to go last year one better. We are quoting the following named varieties at a ridiculously low price, for a short time only. Some of these varieties will bloom 50 per cent and nearly all 10 per cent the first year.

Single Early Tulips

Artus, bright red
La Reine, white
Cardinal's Hat, red
Yellow Prince, fine yellow
Cramoisi Brillant, scarlet
King of Yellows, best yellow
Bacchus, purplish red

Per Peck... $15.00

Per ½ Peck.. $8.00

be positively stated on the tag or label, and that the tag or label used by appellee was in this respect not in conformity to the requirements of the statute, but we think it erred when it decided that the statement of 'germination ten per cent' was a compliance with the statute in so far as it required the approximate percentage of germination to be stated. In this connection we may say that the word 'viable,' used on the label of appellee, has the same meaning as the word 'germination,' used in the statute, but manifestly would not so plainly convey the information intended to the ordinary purchaser as the word 'germination,' and as the statute uses the latter word, the tag or label must also use it. There is evidence in the record showing that appellee claimed its seed would run eighty or ninety per cent as to germination, but that it would not label its seed with any statement that implied a guaranty as to germination. This is the real reason back of appellee's refusal to label its seed as the law requires. It does not want to guarantee its seed as to germination. The law does not require any such guaranty, and therefore uses the word 'approximate' or, in effect, a reasonable margin above or below the actual test percentage of germination.

About Percentage.

"In addition to the admission of appellee as to the actual percentage of germination of its seed, we are of the opinion that we may judicially know that a percentage as low as one per cent or ten per cent is not the approximate percentage of germination of appellee's seed. No dealer would offer seed for sale with such a low percentage of germination, if he expected the purchaser to rely upon the statement. Counsel for appellee contend that it may place any percentage of germination it chooses upon its label, for the reason that the law does not fix a minimum, and therefore it is just as lawful to label seed one per cent or ten per cent germination as eighty or ninety per cent, but we are of the opinion that this position of counsel entirely overlooked the requirement of the law that the percentage stated must be approximately or nearly the true percentage, and that one per cent or ten per cent is manifestly not an approximation of such true percentage. Counsel further insists that the only lawful purpose sought to be accomplished by the law or which it could seek to accomplish, is the protection, under the police power of the state, of its citizens from fraud and imposition by making the seller of seeds conform to the requirement that he should state some percentage of germination, and, further, that he should not knowingly overstate such percentage.

"We can agree with counsel upon this view, except that the law only requires

SNAPDRAGON

BE WISE and have a big supply of Snapdragon the coming winter. There's a reason. Coal will be scarce and high; carnation plants are of poor quality and scarce, and bulb stock, particularly Paper Whites, will be high. Get busy and have a lot of seedling snapdragons ready to fill all empty space. Seed may be sown any time. Plants should be ready to bench in from 60 to 75 days.

a statement of some percentage of germination. The law does not say 'some percentage'; it says 'approximate percentage,' and the word 'approximate' as used in the statute means 'very nearly.' We, therefore, are of the opinion that the label which states a percentage of one per cent or ten per cent of germination is not according to the requirement of the statute, for the reason that the percentage is so low as to show upon its face that it is not a true approximation. In this situation counsel for appellee argue that the buyer of truck and garden seed can in no way be injured, but must be benefited if he receives seeds of a higher percentage of germination than indicated by the stamp or label. This argument, however, assumes that appellee or any dealer in truck and garden seeds may place upon the tag or label any percentage of germination as long as the percentage does not in fact exceed the actual percentage of germination of the truck and garden seeds offered for sale.

Oklahoma Court's Viewpoint.

"This is not our understanding of the law. . . . The legislature of the state of Oklahoma in the exercise of the police power of the state was of the opinion that a regulation, requiring the approximate percentage of germination to be stated, whether that approximation was above or below the actual percentage, would prevent fraud and imposition upon the buyer. The legislature was not making the law for the appellee alone, but for all persons who might engage in the seed business; and, while the seeds of appellee have gained a reputation through a period of upwards of sixty years that causes them to be purchased regardless of label, this might not be so of other dealers, and purchasers, not knowing the character of the seeds offered for sale by such other dealers, might have to depend altogether upon the label. The stamp formulated by appellee or the one formulated by the trial court did not comply with the law. The bill of complaint complained only of the construction placed upon section 4 (d) by appellants. As that construction is not shown to have been wrong, the decree below is reversed, and the cause remanded, with directions to dismiss the bill." S.

NEWS OF THE NURSERY TRADE

It is reported that Jac. Smits & Co., Naarden, Holland, are introducing a new hybrid rose stock, said to be a cross between R. canina and R. rugosa. It surpasses rugosa because it suits all soils and, more important, it makes a stem so stout that no stakes are required. It has a wonderfully fibrous root system and, according to the introducers, it surpasses all other stocks used for standards.

PARK EXECUTIVES TO MEET.

The American Institute of Park Executives will hold its twenty-third annual meeting at Minneapolis, August 19 to 24. Headquarters will be at the Curtis hotel, on Third avenue, south, and Tenth street. The executive committee will hold a preliminary meeting August 19.

The convention proper will open Monday morning, August 21, when Theodore Wirth, of Minneapolis, will call the meeting to order. To the addresses of welcome by Mayor Leach and William H. Bovey, president of the board of park commissioners, response will be made by G. A. Parker, superintendent of parks at Hartford, Conn. President G. H. Hollister will read his address and the remainder of the morning will be devoted to committee reports.

The afternoon session, convening at 2 o'clock, will be taken up by the presentation and discussion of a number of addresses, as follows: "State and National Parks," by Major W. A. Welch, superintendent of Palisades Interstate park, New York; "The Landscape Architect and the Park Executive," by Percival Gallagher, Brookline, Mass.; "Municipal Rose Gardens," by Robert Pyle, West Grove, Pa.; "Engineering in Park Development," by A. C. Godward, park and city planning engineer of Minneapolis.

The American Park Society will have charge of the Monday evening session, at 7:30 o'clock. J. Horace McFarland, Harrisburg, Pa., will open with an address on "The Parks and the Public: Their Relationship, Benefits and Duties." Other papers to be read are: "Training and Educating Young Men for Park and Landscape Work," by Prof. H. R. Francis, of the New York State College of Forestry, Syracuse; "The Preservation of Wild Life," by Paul B. Riis, superintendent of the park district, Rockford, Ill., and "Zoological Parks," by Ed. H. Bean, director of the Washington park zoo, Milwaukee, Wis.

The entire following day, Tuesday, will be devoted to the inspection of the park system of Minneapolis.

At the opening of the Wednesday morning session, to be devoted to recreational interests, "The Trend of the Recreation Movement" will be presented by F. C. Berry, Minneapolis. Other addresses include: "Social Dancing as Conducted by the Recreation Department of St. Paul, Minn.," by E. W. Johnson, superintendent of recreation, St. Paul,; "Movies as Conducted by the Recreation Department of New York City," by J. R. Batchelor, field secretary of the National Playground Association, New York, and a discussion of municipal athletics, led by K. B. Raymond, supervisor of recreation, Minneapolis.

At the afternoon session, convening at 2 o'clock, the election of officers will take place and the next meeting place will be determined.

A pageant by playground children, at Lyndale park, will be held at 7:30 p. m., the same day.

The parks of St. Paul will be inspected Thursday by the visitors, who will leave the hotel at 9 a. m., returning at 7 p. m. The members will entrain for Hibbing at 10 o'clock that evening, arriving in that city, Friday, August 25, at 11 a. m. The day will be devoted to visiting the parks and iron mines, and Saturday morning the party will depart for Duluth, Minn., in automobiles at 8:30 a. m., reaching that center about 2 o'clock in the afternoon. After an inspection tour of the park and boulevard systems, a farewell dinner will be tendered the members of the institute, at 6 p. m., by citizens of Duluth.

The officers of the institute are: President, G. H. Hollister, Hartford, Conn.; vice-president, C. A. Bossen, Minneapolis; secretary-treasurer, Emmett P. Griffin, East St. Louis, Ill.

ADVERTISEMENTS THAT TALK.

The Personal Pull.

What is the true test of advertising? The experienced advertiser will at once answer, "Results." There are various theories concerning the way to undertake publicity in advertisements and many of these theories conflict. Yet, strange to say, in many cases two forms of advertising maneuvered under two conflicting theories are equally successful in obtaining results. This can be partly explained by the variance in individuals, all of whom go to make up the collective public; what appeals to one person may not to another.

But there is another element entering into the most skillful advertising—personality. It is the way of saying things, the manner of expressing the thought that works wonders in influencing people. As the critic said about the actor: "It is not what he says, but how he says it that brings him his popularity." It is plain that a copy writer who has something important to say and at the same time says it interestingly produces a powerful pull.

An Example.

Henry Hicks, of the Hicks Nurseries, Long Island, has a style all his own. He manages to discuss in writing just as if he were talking to you. His advertisements are, at the base, quite cordial and they inspire confidence. For example is offered the following advertisement about shade trees, which was entitled: "What You Can Do in June; a Personal Message from Henry Hicks":

How many folks will be saying this summer, "How I wish I had planted some shade trees

NEW BRUNSWICK NURSERIES
NEW BRUNSWICK, N. J.

there on the lawn!" or, "I should have planted some flowering shrubs, perennials or annuals to complete my color scheme, but I'll have to wait until next year."

You came to live in the country to enjoy the clean air, the beauty, comfort and quietness of natural living. You came to secure natural playgrounds for your children, home-grown fruits and vegetables for your family and guests. I wonder if you are getting full measure—taking full advantage of your opportunities?

Why delay longer? Why regret omissions? By our tried and tested methods, we can add to your planting in June, just as we are doing for other folks and as we have done for many years.

There is no reason why you should let another year pass without colors, without the charm and peacefulness of shade trees, flowering shrubs and evergreens on your home grounds. Just tell us what you want and depend on us to do all the technical thinking.

We have been growing nursery stock for seventy years and our experience is at your disposal. We have supplied the stock and done the planting on some of the big estates in the east, as well as supplied well-grown nursery stock for many John Joneses and Jim Smiths through northeastern America who trusted us with their orders.

If you want shade, tell us the conditions and we will make suggestions, or you come and pick them out—some are ready in boxes and tubs. If you want more color, let us know what you have planted and we will serve your needs.

Don't envy a beautiful place—have one. We have shade trees and evergreens 5, 10 and 20 years old that we have been growing, waiting for you to call for. By using them you get immediate results. In other words, we will give you a ready-made garden and express your taste in that garden.

Do you want to enclose your lawn, your flower garden, your laundry yard? Do you want to shut off the street or the next place? A carload of evergreens and shrubs will do it even 1,000 miles away.

The confidence of our thousands of customers is our best recommendation.

If you haven't yet received a copy of "Home Landscape," send for one. We have just issued a new edition, illustrated with some beautiful colored paintings of actual gardens, and it is yours for the asking. Our list of rare plants is extensive. Have the pleasure of looking them over. The chart in our catalogue gives you volumes of information on hardy flowers in the most understandable manner.

And remember—if you love a plant, you can make it live any time.

Asking and Answering.

There is much that is friendly and convincing in the lines of the above. And it is especially notable that all the paragraphs are in logical sequence. Leading from a general topic, the discussion progresses rapidly and easily to certain specific points in favor of the Hicks Nurseries. The sincerity of the wording suggests that Mr. Hicks placed himself in the readers' shoes before he started his letter.

Probably one of the greatest assets in an advertisement of this particular type is the amount of reading there is between the lines. When practically every sentence suggests a side thought that supports the written word a regular stream of thoughts is forced through a reader's mind. Somewhere in that stream he is bound to be convinced.

Another specialty of Mr. Hicks is asking his readers a question and then showing them how to answer it by answering it directly or indirectly for them. A specimen of this is given in the following advertisement, which was headed: "It's Never Too Late to Mend; with Over Eighty Per Cent It's Never Too Late to Plant":

You can plant all summer the things we say you can. They are guaranteed to grow satisfactorily. The price is right.

In May you can come to the nursery and pick out the crab apple, azalea, iris, and many, many others, and take them home with you. You do not need a technical education or to employ a technically educated gardener to have a beautiful garden. You can have a garden that is talked about.

You don't need to go to the expense of planning a big area, grading, a big gang of laborers, and a big bill. For the price you save on a picnic dinner you can satisfy yourself with a garden corner.

You and your neighbors are perfectly good friends, but you'd rather not look into each other's windows. There is room for a belt of evergreens between. We don't stop planting when the soft growth comes out, because the roots are prepared. In front of the evergreens you can put a border of flowers and your neighbor a bird bath or seat.

In May, shade will be welcome. Can you use a group of trees fifteen or twenty feet high at $8 to $15? Three trees may just take away the new look and make a place for a swing. Do you want them bigger, 20 years old? They are ready, and we move them in full leaf and guarantee satisfactory growth.

Are you willing to work and grow your own food? Come to the nursery and load up your car with apples, pears, peaches, plums, blackberries, raspberries, strawberries and asparagus. Your neighbor says it is too late. It is not, because your car takes them home so quickly that you can make them live, even after the leaves come out.

Bird-feeding fruits and shelter from hawks can be planted in May.

Does the Garden Club and Civic Association want to beautify the town? Take some photographs, sketch on what you want to do and we will do it. If it is for the public good, we will add some free.

VISIT THE HICKS PLANTATERIA.

Assembled near the office are thousands of plants ready for you all summer. Some are heeled in in the ordinary way that can be taken up, pruned, and the roots kept moist and put in your car. Others are in pots, tubs and boxes. Pots and flats of annuals are ready, as asters and tomatoes. Others are ready with a ball of earth in burlap. Larger trees—you can pick out and have them dug.

(Signed) Henry Hicks.

The Market.

Business has maintained a good volume for the summer period, an unusual number of funerals having contributed to the activity. Flowers are at the lowest ebb, as far as prices go, but the supply is fully equal to all demands. Asters are beginning to come in quantities that threaten to flood the market, while gladioli are also plentiful.

her way to Palestine. She was accompanied by her cousin, Miss Fanny B. Fishelson, daughter of Samuel Fishelson, the Boston florist. After visiting relatives in Palestine, they will enroll as students in the new Hebrew University at Palestine, the cornerstone for which was laid some time ago. The young women are nieces of Joseph E. Koppelman, wholesale florist of this city. Miss Smith was associated with her father in his flower store, while she was pursuing her college course at Brown University, where she obtained a degree last year.

Olney H. Williams, one of the best known florists and greenhouse men in this state, and his wife celebrated the thirty-sixth anniversary of their wedding at their home, on Hartford avenue, Johnston, Friday, July 28. Surrounded by their children and grandchildren, numbering seventeen, they enjoyed a family clambake on the lawn at 1 o'clock and the remainder of the afternoon and evening was enjoyably spent. Mr. Williams was born in the village of Pocasset and as a boy became associated with his father as a florist and grower.

NATIONAL PUBLICITY CAMPAIGN.

The accompanying account shows that the campaign is progressing, though not so actively as the publicity committee would wish. Numbers of subscribers are yet in arrears with their subscriptions, and at a time considered to be more or less crucial, because it is absolutely necessary that contracts be placed for the new season's advertising without delay. Doubtless these tardy subscribers mean well, but they certainly are not acting well. A regular business could not be run on pledges alone, and why should anyone think that a campaign such as this could be run on pledges which of themselves are "n. g." at the bank? Again, all delinquents are urged to live up to their pledges, and to make remittances immediately, so that the committee can go ahead with its plans to create the publicity all will look for at the time when it will be needed.

Greenhouse Heating

Subscribers are invited to write the editor of this department with regard to any details of greenhouse heating that are not understood. When information is desired regarding the capacity of boilers, or the amount of radiation required for a greenhouse, the needed temperatures should be stated in the inquiry, as well as the amount of glass in the side walls, and the dimensions and general arrangement of the greenhouses. It is often helpful, also, to have a sketch showing the location of the houses.

HEATING TWO HOUSES.

We are mailing you a diagram upon which appears a plan of our two new greenhouses. Will you kindly examine this diagram and advise us regarding the size and the number of pipes required to heat the two houses? The house 27x40 feet is to be held at 65 degrees in zero weather, while the house 27x85 feet is to be held at 56 degrees in zero weather. F. G.—Ind.

One of the new houses is 27x40 feet, and is to be heated to 65 degrees in zero weather, while the other house is 27x85 feet, with a heat requirement of 56 degrees. Each house has one exposed side wall seven feet high, with four feet of glass. The boiler room is located in the angle between the houses, with an open coal bin between it and the end of the small house. About 450 square feet of radiation will be needed in the 85-foot house and 300 feet in the other.

It is suggested that you run a 2-inch flow pipe on each side of the longer house at the gutter, using the one on the north (outside) wall to supply three 1¼-inch returns under each of the three 5-foot benches and one return on the north wall above the 2½-foot solid bed in this house.

At the east end of the house, carry the other flow pipe through the wall into the small house and supply coils of four 1¼-inch returns under each of the four benches, or use three pipes in each coil and two on each side wall.

PROVIDING FOR ENLARGEMENT.

I am planning to erect one greenhouse, 17x100 feet. The house will run east and west, and the south wall will have two feet of glass. The west gable will be exposed, but the east gable will abut against the boiler room. I am planning to use two 2½-inch flow pipes, with a slope of eight inches in 100 feet. One flow will connect with four 2-inch returns under the north bench. The other flow will have a double connection, which will supply two 2-inch returns in the center bench and three 2-inch returns under the south bench. The boiler is an Imico hot water, No. 395, with five sections. Its grate area is 24x27 inches, and the boiler is tapped for two 3-inch flows and two 3-inch returns.

Please advise me how large the main flow and return should be, and how many additional sections will be required in the boiler to heat two more houses of the size mentioned above. How far below the surface of the earth should the boiler be placed? How high should the expansion tank be, if the highest point in the system is six feet six inches above the floor? How high should the chimney be built, if it has an inside diameter of ten inches and the smoke pipe has a diameter of eight inches? I shall use oil for fuel, and my fuel tank has a capacity of 584 gallons. The oil will be under a 20-pound pressure. Can I put the oil tank under the center bench at the west end of the house?

A. A.—Kan.

We have had no experience with the boiler described, but from the description it is judged that it will readily heat one house, 17x100 feet. The addition of two sections to the boiler will not give it the capacity required for heating three houses, although it would probably answer for two houses, if oil is used as fuel.

The radiation described should give satisfactory results, but it would be advisable to run the flow pipes downhill and connect the expansion tank with the highest point in the system. The expansion tank need only be above the highest point in the system, but the efficiency of the system will be improved if it can be elevated several feet without danger of the water freezing either in the tank or the connecting pipe. It is noted that you propose to run four returns on the north wall, where there is no glass, and only two on the south wall, which has two feet of exposed glass. We should prefer to have at least as many returns on the south as on the north wall, and one additional return should be used to balance the glass in the side wall. Unless the house is much exposed, it can be heated by means of two returns on the south wall and under the middle bench, to be supplied by one flow, and three returns on the south wall, which in turn are to be supplied by the flow pipe on that side.

While a smoke flue nine or even ten inches in diameter would be required for a boiler in which coal is to be burned, it is presumed that an 8-inch smoke pipe will be sufficiently large when oil is to be used as fuel, with a chimney thirty feet high.

If the distance from the boiler to the overhead flow pipes is not more than twenty feet, one 3-inch main flow pipe and a return of the same size would answer for this house, provided all flows run downhill and the returns are above the top of the boiler.

It will be well for you, before placing the fuel tank in the greenhouse under the bench, to seek the advice of your fire insurance agent in regard to the matter. It is highly probable that you will not be permitted to do this, or if you are it will only be at a greatly increased insurance rate, and even then it is doubtful whether the board of fire underwriters would sanction the idea.

SELECTING STEAM BOILER.

We have two new greenhouses, each 29x100, six feet to the eaves, with 16-foot rafters. There are three feet of concrete in the walls and three feet of glass. The houses are on level ground, with the wind striking the west side. The engine room and workroom are on the west side. Can I heat with steam, using soft coal? I am enclosing an illustration of an upright boiler. Will two such boilers heat these houses to 60 degrees? The weather here is seldom below zero. Will you advise as to the arrangement of piping, number of returns, etc.? Would you recommend one sectional steam boiler? D. G. H.—Pa.

If the system is likely to be enlarged, it would be advisable to use one No. 80 steam boiler, as shown in the illustration sent, which has a grate area of about seven and eight-tenths square feet and is rated for 2,100 square feet of steam radiation. On the other hand, if no addition is to be made to the size of the place, it would be well to install two of the No. 24 boilers, each of which has a grate area of about four and four-tenths square feet and is rated for 1,100 square feet of steam radiation. This is not only because there would be one boiler in reserve in case anything went wrong with the other, but because for about one-half of the period during which heat is required for the greenhouses, it would be possible to maintain a temperature of 60 degrees in the two houses with one of the No. 24 boilers.

For the radiation in each of the houses it would be advisable to use either one 2½-inch or two 2-inch overhead mains and twelve 1¼-inch returns. In case the coils are connected with the mains at the boiler end of the house, fourteen 1¼-inch pipes should be used to provide the needed heating surface.

vented transcontinental shipments from being made. The firm is busy preparing for early fall rose crops. P. D. Mortensen, San Francisco manager, is still in southern California.

Podesta & Baldocchi gave a trial order for Dazey flower holders, manufactured in Los Angeles. This article has taken so well with the trade that the firm will continue to handle it. Podesta & Baldocchi had a rush day for baskets when the Maui sailed for Honolulu.

The Suzanne Floral Co. is finding business better than it was at this date last year. Telegraph orders between this city and Los Angeles for stage favorites are satisfactory. Oliver Morosco, a Los Angeles producer, now has two companies playing in this city.

The California Floral Co. finds that business is fairly good in cut flowers.

Domoto Bros. are cutting between 300 and 400 rubrum lilies of excellent quality every day and the demand for them is good. According to M. Domoto, the quality is better than it has been for the last three or four years. These lilies are a great feature of the market at present.

S. Enomoto, of Enomoto & Co., has returned from a two weeks' vacation on the Russian river with his family. The firm is handling asters which Mr. Enomoto says are now of a quality calculated to withstand a 6-day journey. He is enthusiastic regarding this year's crop of asters.

The United Flower & Supply Co. continues to add to its stocks of dried strawflowers, and the shipping of these flowers constitutes one of its chief activities. M. M.

Horticultural Society.

Andrew Dorward, president of the Newport Horticultural Society, presided at the regular business meeting held Tuesday evening, July 25, at Music hall, at which there was a large attendance. Plans and arrangements that have been made for the fall exhibition, to be held September 7 and 8 at the First Presbyterian church, were discussed. A revised premium list was approved.

One of the features of the premium list will be the prizes offered, as in former years, by former Governor R. Livingston Beeckman, for novelty table decorations. In this connection it may be announced that a new class will be table decorations of foliage and grasses.

Tentative plans were discussed for the annual ball of the society, the date for which has been set for the evening of September 14.

The members of the society who have been assigned as judges of the school gardens began their examinations July 24, and preliminary reports indicate the gardens are of an unusually high standard.

The Market.

The market has been glutted with all seasonable stock. Gladioli are the most in evidence of any flowers. Prices have been greatly reduced, good flowers being only $2 to $6 per hundred. Roses, especially short stock, are plentiful. These are, in the majority of cases, from young stock and bring only $4 to $8 per hundred. Carnations are gone.

Asters are appearing in larger numbers and range in price from $2 to $4. Fancy asters are scarce.

Easter lilies are extremely scarce and are bringing $20 per hundred. Rubrum, album and auratum lilies are plentiful, but do not meet with a ready sale.

Outdoor stock is abundant. Buddleia has been fairly popular. Delphinium sells well. Other offerings include zinnias, gaillardias and snapdragons. Statice is available and clears readily. Green goods are abundant

Various Notes.

Mr. and Mrs. Marion Elder have a new daughter.

The Bankers' Trust Co. had an amateur flower show in the lobby of the bank last week. The display was most creditable for an amateur show.

Irwin Bertermann will attend the S. A. F. convention at Kansas City.

The committee in charge of the Indiana State Florists' Association picnic is busy making preparations and a splendid program is planned. An unusually large crowd is expected. A ride on the steamer Sunbeam will be taken August 9 at 4:15 p. m., up the White river. E. E. T.

FORT WAYNE, IND.

Conditions in the flower market last week were typical of the usual summer slump. Outdoor stock was in abundance and great variety was to be had. Reports from a number of growers throughout this section indicate that the early aster crop has been attacked by disease.

The Doswell Floral Co. has let a contract for the erection of another new greenhouse this fall, the dimensions of which are the same as the two erected last year. The firm is also doing extensive repair work. Raised benches are being installed.

W. J. & M. S. Vesey have just completed a large cement basin in which to preserve fertilizer.

The Blossom Floral Co. has been busy with weddings and funeral work. A large shipment of palms and ferns has just been received, which adds materially to the attractiveness of the store. A new office and large desk have replaced the smaller ones and will also add to the efficiency of the establishment. A fine line of summer baskets and pottery is being shown.

The Fort Wayne Flower Shop was purchased by the Blossom Floral Co. The supplies and fixtures were sold and the building re-leased to a shoe company.

D. Earnhart, representing the Lindley Box & Paper Co., Marion, Ind., called on the trade recently. S. N.

NEWARK, N. J.

The Market.

The local market is dull at the present time. Funeral work usually forms the bulk of trade during the summer months, and during the last two weeks there have been comparatively few deaths. There is a greater variety of gladioli coming into the market than before this season, and the blooms are of excellent quality. Asters are becoming more plentiful.

Various Notes.

Fred Philips, of Philips Bros., Broad street, has returned from a month's vacation on the New Jersey coast. He reports that sea bass have not been biting well this summer. His brother, Frank, has just left for North Asbury, where he will spend the month of August at the Asbury Inn. He will try his hand at casting from the shore also, and hopes to have better luck than Fred.

Charles Maillard, Orange street, reports business dull at present.

Cedar Grove, La.—Fernand Bizet has entered the trade, growing cut flowers and plants.

Gloucester, Mass.—Roy C. Peavey and James C. Thompson are the proprietors of the new flower shop recently opened on Main street.

Nampa, Idaho.—Chester Minden is contemplating an investment of between $8,000 and $10,000 in the erection of new greenhouses on block 113, Griffifth & King's addition, on the north side. Construction work will begin in time to have the greenhouses completed by the spring.

CHRYSANTHEMUMS

CHRYSANTHEMUMS.
LARGE SUPPLY. QUALITY GUARANTEED.

OUR GUARANTEE.
We deliver Mum rooted cuttings parcel post free of charge up to the 6th zone, or 1400 miles from Geneva, and guarantee safe delivery. Stock not satisfactory when received may be returned at once and money refunded, or slight difficulties will be adjusted and you keep the stock. Outside this territory stock travels at buyer's risk and expense.

If we are short any varieties ordered will use our best judgment in supplying kinds just as good unless you state, "Do not substitute" or give second choice.

The quality of our stock is best shown by the fact that all our this season's business has gone out under the above guarantee and we have had to replace less than 100 plants.

CYCLAMEN PLANTS
READY NOW.

We can emphatically recommend them as a superior grade of plants, inasmuch as we have specialized On CYCLAMEN for years and have constantly improved our strain and methods of growing.

Through the use of a specially prepared compost, we have produced wonderful root action and a fine foliage, in fact we have never produced a finer lot of plants of the very best known varieties.

We have broken all records this year in the sale of plants and seedlings and have even shipped in full carload lots to eastern points.

Our plants positively have no trace or sign of the mite or any other diseases CYCLAMEN are subject to.

Orders booked in rotation.

COLORED FREESIAS.
My strain is a mixture of both the Rainbows and the Sunsets; to bring them to perfection, they ought to be grown cooler than Purity; plant from August on, every two weeks and they will bloom early in the New Year without any forcing and prove very useful and profitable; only good blooming bulbs of No. 2 size left now at $1.75 per 100, $15.00 per 1000, by mail.
O. FEHRLIN, CITRONELLE, ALA.

FREESIA PURITY.
Most profitable commercial size for forcing is the ½-in. diameter, $10.00 per 1000, $47.00 per 5000, $90.00 per 10,000; 7/16-in. are good bloomers, $2.00 per 1000 less than for ½-in. Prepaid for 50c per 1000.

IRISES

FRYER'S NEW IRIS.
Mr. P. L. Battey of Glencoe, Ill., who visited me in Iris time wrote me as follows:
"My dear Mr. Fryer:—I was greatly surprised and pleased with your new Iris. From what I had heard and read I imagined they were all, or most all, in the class of yellows and maroons, and all short stemmed varieties, but when I saw the great diversity of colors as well as form, many with fine long stems and conspicuously good foliage, I was greatly impressed with what you have accomplished with your crosses. Your magnificent Mrs. Fryer and Kathryn Fryer are outstanding varieties. C. P. Connell and Lowell are excellent and for flowers and lots of them I have never seen anything equal to your Dr. Andrist, Aunt Rachel, Barton Harrington, W. F. Christman and many others. Some of the new seedlings which we so thoroughly enjoyed that day are very fine, particularly the beautiful pink one, 'a real honest to goodness pink one too.'"
My summer list is now ready and prices on my new Iris have been greatly reduced. Also Delphinium, Peonies, Phlox and other hardy plants.

Have Tight Greenhouses

by using

Kuhl's Elastic Glazing Composition

It is light gray in color and the only glazing material that can be applied with the hands the same as putty, and will not stick. It retains its elasticity indefinitely and prevents breakage of glass. Withstands heat, cold and dampness and will adhere to wood, iron, stone, etc. Beds perfectly and lasts as long as the glass lasts. If the glass breaks, Elastic Glazing Composition can be cut out without injury to the wood, as it remains flexible.

Kuhl's Elastic Glazing Composition is used by:

King GREENHOUSES

King greenhouses are designed and built to withstand stresses and strains from wind and snowloads which are far in excess of the most extraordinary conditions.

With the capacity to grow a greater number of first quality flowers, to last longer and to operate at a minimum cost, a King Greenhouse gives lasting satisfaction.

Write today for the Bulletins on the types of King construction and compare facts and figures before deciding on your next house.

When you think of good greenhouses, think of KING.

INDEX TO ADVERTISEMENTS AND TABLE OF CONTENTS—PAGES TWO AND FOUR

They Will Be Linked Up at the Kansas City Convention

Just so you can see exactly what the difference is, between our Number One and Number Two Constructions, we are going to show at the Convention, a house with half of it built of one construction, and the other half of the other.

Any of you who may possibly have been led to infer that the Number Two House is other than first grade, can at once prove how mistaken you are.
The Number One is no better than the Number Two.
The Number Two is exactly as good as the Number One.
They differ only in the Number One construction being used for houses over 40 feet wide, while the Number Two is used for houses less than 40 feet wide. The Number One construction being used for the wider houses, of course, it is made proportionately stronger, and constructed somewhat differently.

The Number Two, which is the same A-One quality as the Number One, is the house we have sold so many of this year, for exactly the same price as the Semi-Iron House.
It is a full iron frame house for the price of a half-iron, or so-called Semi-Iron house.

Come around and see for yourself.
We will have plenty of easy chairs, and the L & B brand of hearty welcome.

A ROW OF EARLY-FLOWERING SWEET PEAS UNDER GLASS

THE NEW SWEET PEA The SENSATIONAL NOVELTY Mrs. Kerr THE BEST EARLY-FLOWERING SALMON

MRS. KERR created a sensation when exhibited at The Great International Flower Shows in New York, March, 1920, and again in March, 1921, likewise at the National Flower Show recently held in Indianapolis, Ind.

This magnificent novelty has been hailed by experts as being the greatest advance in this type, its introduction being eagerly awaited by Sweet Pea growers.

MRS. KERR has all the desirable qualities which go to make up a perfect flower. In addition to its unique and dainty color, the plant is of most vigorous habit and extremely floriferous.

The flowers, of immense size and exquisite shape, are a most pleasing shade of rich salmon overlaid or suffused with orange. Under glass the color is intensified and indescribably beautiful; in artificial light it is simply magnificent. The great flowers are of substantial texture, thus adding to their unusual lasting qualities after being cut.

MRS. KERR produces flowers which are bold in the extreme; the standard is broad, deep, and charmingly waved; the wings are well placed, as are also the three or, more often, four flowers on their long, stiff stems.

It is impossible to fully describe the great beauty of this lovely flower, which we feel convinced will become one of the most popular of the early-flowering type.

Per oz., $2.00; per ¼ lb., $6.00.

"A Visit To Randall's Always Pays"

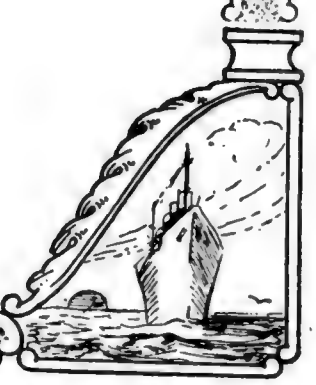
INVITATION

WE CORDIALLY INVITE all florists passing through Chicago on their way to or from the Kansas City Convention to make our store their headquarters while here—there is much of interest and profit for all to see in our huge stocks of Florists' Supplies and Flower Store Equipment.

Have your mail and telegrams sent in our care, use our telephones, dictate to our stenographers if you wish, and make yourselves at home while you are looking over this market.

For the benefit of those who cannot visit Chicago to place their fall orders, we shall have at the Kansas City Convention next week

A Wonderful Exhibit of Florists' Supplies



Randall's is the ONE house in America which can equip a flower store complete, Fixtures, Accessories and Cut Flowers. Come to us with the lease of a store and we can outfit you ready for your grand opening—you will see it all in our exhibit at Kansas City. We hope to have the pleasure of greeting you there.

BUY A BOOK TODAY

Many of the most successful business men in the trade had little schooling—but they practically all are readers—they read The Review each week and they buy books frequently. Such men are self-educated—theirs is knowledge gleaned by reading.

It is the mission of The Review to assist its subscribers in every way to improve their knowledge of the trade and their knowledge in other fields of human interest. As a measure of co-operation The Review has added to its services to subscribers a book purchasing service. This department, of course, specializes on books pertaining to the business of florists, nurserymen and seedsmen, but in addition will secure for subscribers, without charge for its service, any book they want, of any nature.

If you want a book of any given title, The Review will get it for you. Or if you want a book on any certain subject, The Review will send you the titles, with prices, of all the books on that subject.

Look over the list in the appended coupon. Most of these are standard books by well known authors. Order the one which seems, from its title, most nearly to concern your special interests. When you have read it carefully, order another.

Put a cross opposite the books you want. Clip the coupon and send it to us with a check to cover cost. Books will be forwarded, postpaid, without delay.

Every retail store and grower should feature Crotons this fall and winter. We know our stock will please you and your customer.

CROTON LEAVES AND SPRAYS

Cut Croton Leaves and Sprays have been supplied by us in the past years to some of the leading retail florists, who have featured them in mantel, table, and funeral work. Cut Crotons will last in a cool place from three to four weeks. We can supply them every day in the year.

Very highly colored sprays at 50c each; cut leaves, $5 per 100.

When you have orders for funeral or table work, "out of the ordinary," order Craig's Cut Crotons.

DRACAENAS

There is no variety of foliage plant so attractive as the highly colored Dracaena. The small and medium sizes can be used to great advantage in making up the popular Christmas baskets, while the large specimens have always been in great demand for decorative purposes. We are now growing more Dracaenas, in greater variety, than any firm in the country.

DRACAENA GODSEFFIANA

Green and white leaf, very hardy, fine for baskets.

TERMS

CASH WITH ORDER: Kindly send sufficient to cover the entire bill. We do not make shipments C. O. D. unless remittance has been made on account to guarantee acceptance. This does not apply to regular customers. REMITTANCE: Remittances should be made by money order or New York drafts. If money is sent, letter should be registered. All prices quoted in this list are strictly net. SHIPPING INSTRUCTIONS: Give your name, post office, county and state and the name of your nearest express office to which shipment is to be made. We have always made it prominent in our printed terms that our goods are sold F. O. B. cars at the point of shipment and are at the purchaser's risk while in transit. Because of the present unsettled conditions we wish to emphasize still further that we do not guarantee safe delivery. The ownership of all goods sold by us passes to the purchaser on delivery by us to the carrier, and the issuing of the receipt by the carrier ends our responsibility. Any claims for damage should be made promptly to the agent at the point of delivery. CORRESPONDENCE: We endeavor to answer all correspondence promptly, but owing to the pressure of business we ask that all requests be clearly and concisely stated. ERRORS: Keep a copy of your order. We aim to have our orders correctly filled. When we are at fault we shall make satisfactory correction.

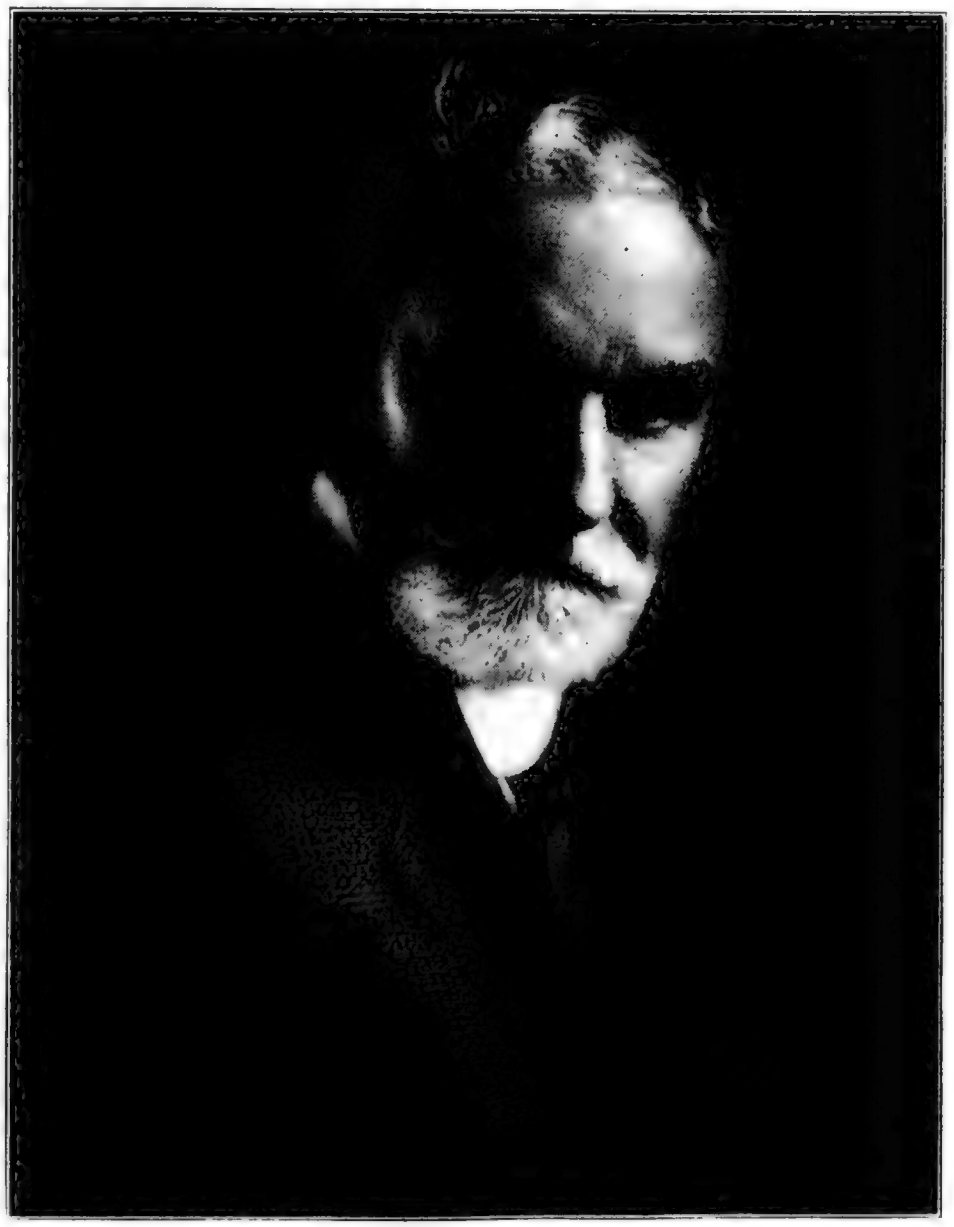
GROWING PEONIES FOR CUT FLOWERS

Florists who are planning peony plantings for next season will welcome the information contained in this article. And those who are not will read with interest the ideas of a man who, after making his name nationally known as an underwear manufacturer, repeats the feat as a "peony fan."

By HENRY S. COOPER.

PERSONS who are contemplating the planting of peonies for market are of two distinct groups. There are those who have some land that they wish to employ in growing more profitable crops and who know little about peonies or peony growing or the peony flower market. Then there are those who are looking for a favorable location with suitable land upon which they may grow peonies for a predetermined market and to meet certain known seasons and a definite existing demand. These latter know the flower market and in many cases know why, how and when peonies fit into that market.



For the first group my advice would be to study the flower market, to learn whether the cut peonies were to be sold to a trade near the grower or whether they must be shipped to large cities with marketing centers that are known and recognized as such. If I were planning to plant to supply a nearby market for my flowers, I would disregard the shipping qualities of my varieties and choose to plant the varieties that were most showy, so as to educate my own clientele to select and demand the most choice and beautiful flowers. But if I were to plant for shipping to a more or less distant market, I would choose varieties primarily for their keeping and shipping qualities, in which there is a great difference.

For instance, take the cut flower varieties which are best known, festiva maxima and Queen Victoria. For a local trade I would plant festiva maxima, but for shipping away I would favor Queen Victoria, because it is such a good shipper and stands so much abuse. There is about the same difference between these two varieties as there is between a horse and a mule; one is for beauty, the other for utility. These two varieties illustrate another and highly important consideration; that is, productivity or quantity of flower output. Festiva maxima produces large, handsome flowers, but only half as many as Queen Victoria, whose flowers do not rank in the same class as the former.

Festiva maxima, for early, and Marie Lemoine, for very late, produce large, ravishingly beautiful, sweet-smelling flowers, while Queen Victoria, for early, and Felix Crousse, for late, produce quantities of good, average or better flowers, readily marketable and quite desirable. On 4-year-old Felix Crousse, I counted this year from forty to fifty blooms per plant in my fields, planted 3x3 feet. Planting 3x3 would require about 5,000 per acre, not allowing any waste land. That number would produce (at an average of forty flowers per plant) 20,000 flowers per acre, which, if sold to net 3 cents each, would return $600 per acre.

Before we leave the subject of comparing varieties we must consider the kind of market that is to absorb our crop. The Memorial day trade is the great market for peonies as cut flowers. It is not a trade that I would call discriminating or "choicy." Memorial day trade wants quantities of flowers. If they are nice flowers, so much the better, but the great thing is plenty of them. And then it is so early in the flower season that anything seems to look good to some people if they can only get an armful. That is why so many mediocre peonies are sold for Memorial day. But, aside and outside of the Memorial day trade, it seems to me the wisest policy would be to work rapidly over onto the better and finer varieties of peonies, so as to teach the flower-loving and flower-buying public that peonies are the flowers, par excellence, for them to buy and to insist on having. Peony men must look ahead, educate and promote their own market by furnishing the most lovely flowers in the market, which, by discriminating selection of varieties, they can readily do. The peonies are there for you to choose, the finest flowers in the world.

Now, a parting word for the man who is

For the first group my advice would be to study the flower market, to learn whether the cut peonies were to be sold to a trade near the grower or whether they must be shipped to large cities with marketing centers that are known and recognized as such. If I were planning to plant to supply a nearby market for my flowers, I would disregard the shipping qualities of my varieties and choose to plant the varieties that were most showy, so as to educate my own clientele to select and demand the most choice and beautiful flowers. But if I were to plant for shipping to a more or less distant market, I would choose varieties primarily for their keeping and shipping qualities, in which there is a great difference.

For instance, take the cut flower varieties which are best known, festiva maxima and Queen Victoria. For a local trade I would plant festiva maxima, but for shipping away I would favor Queen Victoria, because it is such a good shipper and stands so much abuse. There is about the same difference between these two varieties as there is between a horse and a mule; one is for beauty, the other for utility. These two varieties illustrate another and highly important consideration; that is, productivity or quantity of flower output. Festiva maxima produces large, handsome flowers, but only half as many as Queen Victoria, whose flowers do not rank in the same class as the former.

Festiva maxima, for early, and Marie Lemoine, for very late, produce large, ravishingly beautiful, sweet-smelling flowers, while Queen Victoria, for early, and Felix Crousse, for late, produce quantities of good, average or better flowers, readily marketable and quite desirable. On 4-year-old Felix Crousse, I counted this year from forty to fifty blooms per plant in my fields, planted 3x3 feet. Planting 3x3 would require about 5,000 per acre, not allowing any waste land. That number would produce (at an average of forty flowers per plant) 20,000 flowers per acre, which, if sold to net 3 cents each, would return $600 per acre.

Before we leave the subject of comparing varieties we must consider the kind of market that is to absorb our crop. The Memorial day trade is the great market for peonies as cut flowers. It is not a trade that I would call discriminating or "choicy." Memorial day trade wants quantities of flowers. If they are nice flowers, so much the better, but the great thing is plenty of them. And then it is so early in the flower season that anything seems to look good to some people if they can only get an armful. That is why so many mediocre peonies are sold for Memorial day. But, aside and outside of the Memorial day trade, it seems to me the wisest policy would be to work rapidly over onto the better and finer varieties of peonies, so as to teach the flower-loving and flower-buying public that peonies are the flowers, par excellence, for them to buy and to insist on having. Peony men must look ahead, educate and promote their own market by furnishing the most lovely flowers in the market, which, by discriminating selection of varieties, they can readily do. The peonies are there for you to choose, the finest flowers in the world.

Now, a parting word for the man who is looking for peonies to plant in the land he already owns. Go slow. Study your market. Plant a few hundred peonies of different varieties, so that you may learn how to grow them and learn which is best suited to your own soil and locality and climate. You can be learning at the same time you are studying your market. You will also learn to steer clear of the man who will cheerfully hand you a lot of diseased roots. Visit some good plantings in June and see a large number of different varieties. Don't buy the cheapest you can find. Pay a fair price for good stock. It pays.

Suitable Location.

Now for the other man, who is looking for a suitable location. Your new location will be determined by the market you want to supply. One chief aim is usually to get the flowers into market at the earliest date, so as to get highest prices. This year the first in the market sold for $10 to $12 per hundred. So, you see, the early bird gets as much as $1,500 per acre more than the late one. This early market causes many to go south so as to get an earlier crop of bloom.

There are plantings in Mississippi, Tennessee, southern Illinois and Indiana, northern Illinois, Wisconsin, etc. Mississippi is fully thirty days earlier than southern Wisconsin. Southern Illinois and the south are nearly always in Chicago for Memorial day, while southern Wisconsin seldom is ready. Northern Wisconsin and the northern peninsula of Michigan are in bloom July 4 to 10.

I hear you saying, "The south for me." But wait a minute. Peonies originated in North China and Siberia. So the north is their natural home. They like to get their toes frozen every winter. When we have weather 15 to 20 degrees below zero for weeks in Wisconsin, we have a wonderful crop of peonies next spring. So, you see, you have to coax them to go south with you. And then there are some other little things you must consider. Yes, they are little, but "Oh, my!" They are little worms. So little you can't see them without a microscope. Very few men have ever seen one. Yet they swarm down south in the soil. They are called mematodes. A grower in Missouri told me he supposed that every root grown that far south was full of them. You can't kill them, but if you want to try, you can do so. Some do. Use lots of lime and the right amount of potash. After you plow, put on about two tons of ground limestone per acre and disk it in. After your plants are growing, put on, each fall, a double handful of hardwood ashes per hill. Ashes are about six per cent potash. If you can't get hardwood ashes, use carbonate or muriate of potash, which is about eighty per cent potash. Vary your dose with the strength. Plant in good, rich ground. This is not the place to tell all about planting and caring for peonies. That I have done in my book, "Unvarnished Facts." But here I am to talk about the cut flower market and how to get peonies into it and the money out of it.

Varieties Most Grown.

Probably the varieties most grown are Queen Victoria, for white; Edulis Superba, for pink, and Felix Crousse, for red. Every grower has his own favorite. A large southern grower likes Asa Gray, and a northern one thinks there is nothing like M. Jules Elie. Eastern markets absorb some varieties, while the west may call for others. You must study your market as to varieties, price, seasons, etc.

However, these varieties are the cheapest varieties of the good cut flower sorts: Couronne d'Or, Delicatissima, Delachei, Duchesse de Nemours, Edulis Superba, festiva maxima, Felix Crousse, M. Charles Leveque, Mme. Calot, Mme. de Verneville, M. Jules Elie, Queen Victoria. The following cost more, but are finer flowers; don't be influenced too much by price or cost: Avalanche, Asa Gray, Baroness Schroeder, Grandiflora (rich), Karl Rosenfield, La Rosiere, Marie Lemoine, Mme. Ducel, Pasteur, Philomele, Venus.

Cold Storage.

It is impossible to give a clear conception of the proper stage at which peony blooms should be cut for cold storage purposes. Different varieties respond differently to such treatment; some must be fairly well developed; others will open if cut while the buds are firm. These peculiarities can only be learned by experience. A general rule is to cut the buds after they show color, but before any petals have loosened. The shorter the time they must be left before using, the more open the buds should be at the time of cutting. For example: If a florist should discover that his peonies are likely to be too far advanced for use on Memorial day, or if he fears the results of a sudden hot wave or damage from storms, he can cut the buds when the petals are loosening but before the first petals have turned back, and place them in cold storage. When taken out of storage, the flowers will open, are often larger, are always better developed and will keep better than flowers fresh from the field. The freedom from anxiety

HENRY S. COOPER.

There is a touch of romance in the careers of many who have made names in this trade; it is present in that of Henry S. Cooper, familiar to the trade under his adopted sobriquet of "peony fan." Peonies are his pleasure—just as baseball or another sport might be—after an energetic business life. Back in 1876, as a boy of 19, he started in the hosiery business for the old reason, because his father was so engaged. The father, a retired Methodist preacher, and his sons, built a thriving business at St. Joseph, Mo. At the death of the father, the sons sold out. In time they engaged in the hosiery business again, at Kenosha, Wis. In conjunction, Henry S. Cooper established an underwear factory, and today Kenosha-Klosed-Krotch union suits have made the name of Cooper a household word and Mr. Cooper a wealthy man.

Eight years ago Mr. Cooper selected a site for a home, just west of Kenosha. When Dunmovin—it only sounds Scotch; it's really an expressive composite of two quite common words—was completed, a patch of thirteen acres invited choice as to whether they should be planted with sweet potatoes or corn. Mr. Cooper voted for peonies, long a favorite flower of his. The vigor and vision that had built a nationally famous underwear business soon made this peony patch widely known. Today Mr. Cooper is mostly "peony fan," the active management of the underwear business having been turned over to his three sons and a nephew. Readers of The Review know how Mr. Cooper, with 10,000 peonies from his patch, converted eighty miles of the Chicago & Northwestern railroad into a peony way on his birthday last spring; they recall how he took a dozen blooms to the American Peony Society exhibition at London, Ont., last June and won first prize with the vase shown on the opposite page; and many of them know how absorbingly he has written about his flower favorite in his booklet, "Tips and Pointers," which can scarcely be called a catalogue. Though his peony plantings were not started till he was past the half-century mark and he is now more than three-score—you'd not guess it to listen to him or read his words—Henry S. Cooper is recognized as a foremost figure in the peony world today.

that his peonies will be in proper condition will repay to the grower the expense of storage.

Large quantities of peonies are placed in cold storage and used on Memorial day and for June weddings. This is particularly true farther west, where peonies grown in southern Illinois and Indiana bloom normally well in advance of May 30. Such blooms may have to be kept as long as three weeks before this great demand makes a market for them. Naturally the buds must be cut as tight as it is safe to do with any given variety.

Those growers who are located a long distance from the market and who are obliged in many seasons, because of the rapid development of vegetation, to keep their peonies in storage for a considerable time, realize fully the value of varieties possessing good keeping qualities. It is quite generally agreed in the cut flower trade that the Queen Victoria (Whitleyi) is the best keeping peony. This variety has been kept in storage for at least six weeks in good condition. In quality it is much inferior to a large number of other varieties, but it will remain until a variety possessing an equal or superior keeping quality comes into the trade.

Temperature and Care.

"Some florists say that the bloom should be kept as near the freezing point as possible without actual frost. It is, of course, important that the buds be kept dry, so they will not rot. Some florists recommend that peonies be placed in the apple room of public cold storage plants."

Because I could not better it, I have copied the above paragraph from A. C. Beal's pamphlet, for which you should send to the agricultural department of Cornell University, at Ithaca, N. Y. However, some may want more exact and positive details. The cold storage room should be from 33 to 34 degrees. Storage can be secured in warehouses by renting a whole room or by renting floor space or by paying rent per pail, for, of course, they are kept in water. If you rent a room, you don't have to bother to take a receipt for peonies when put in or give receipt whenever you want to take any out for sale. If you do not live in or near the city where the warehouse is and where your market is, you will have to ship to a flower commission house and depend upon it to handle your peonies passing in and out of cold storage. The commission man sells your flowers for you and reports how many he threw away because they were not fit to sell and how many he sold. He reports at what prices he sold them, and after taking out his commission for selling (customarily fifteen per cent) and other expenses, freight, drayage, etc., he sends you a check. Some commission men, I am sure, are reliable. But my advice is to look them up thoroughly, for, you know, even some bankers prove unreliable. When I was in the sawmill business, I sold lumber through a commission house. When I was growing fruit, I shipped to a commission house. I have shipped poultry to commission men, and I have shipped flowers to commission men. In all those years, I never have been surprised by receiving a check larger than I expected, but I have seen a man who has. I have known a man who received a check larger than he expected to be so ungrateful as to intimate that the commission man was baiting him on for larger shipments. For sometimes one shipper consigns to more than one house and compares returns. So there are tricks on both sides. So, like that knothole in the floor of Lincoln's office, "it will bear looking into."

When cutting for cold storage, you must know the stage of the bud in which to cut. When the field has been cut, the stems, of course, will be short and will not shade the ground. So cultivating must be done to keep down weeds, as well as to encourage growth for next year.

COURSES AT PENN STATE.

Eight courses in flower gardening will be given at Pennsylvania State College this year, according to an announcement recently made at that institution. The courses are to be given by the floriculture division of the department of horticulture in the School of Agriculture.

Among the subjects to be offered will be the culture of annual, biennial and perennial flowers out of doors; house plants, greenhouse construction and maintenance, practice in soil mixing, propagation, potting, watering, planting, the production of cut flowers for the wholesale and retail trade, packing and shipping, floral arrangement, and management of retail stores.

The college has two greenhouses for flowers and outdoor gardens of annual and perennial flowers, which bloom throughout the spring, summer and fall. One of the gardens, which will be 60 years old next year, has been maintained in the same form since the days of the Civil war.

In order that the department of horticulture, in common with other departments of the college, may be expanded, and to provide for a total enrollment of 10,000 students after the college has become the Pennsylvania State University, a building fund campaign for $2,000,000 is now being carried on as the initial step.

GERMINATION OF ASPARAGUS.

For the information of C. J. A., whose inquiry in regard to the percentage of germination of asparagus seed was printed on page 150 of The Review for July 27, I will state some conditions in regard to asparagus seeds in California. It has often come to my attention that ignorant persons pick unripe asparagus seeds and, after cleaning and drying, sell them to the local jobbers, who in turn sell them to wholesale houses. The buyers have no indication as to the fertility of the seed except those given by trial germination tests. My advice is that the consumer buy direct from recognized growers of asparagus seeds.

I drill my seeds in the open ground and have no trouble in getting seventy-five to eighty per cent germination.

LAST CALL TO KANSAS CITY

PREPARING AT KANSAS CITY.

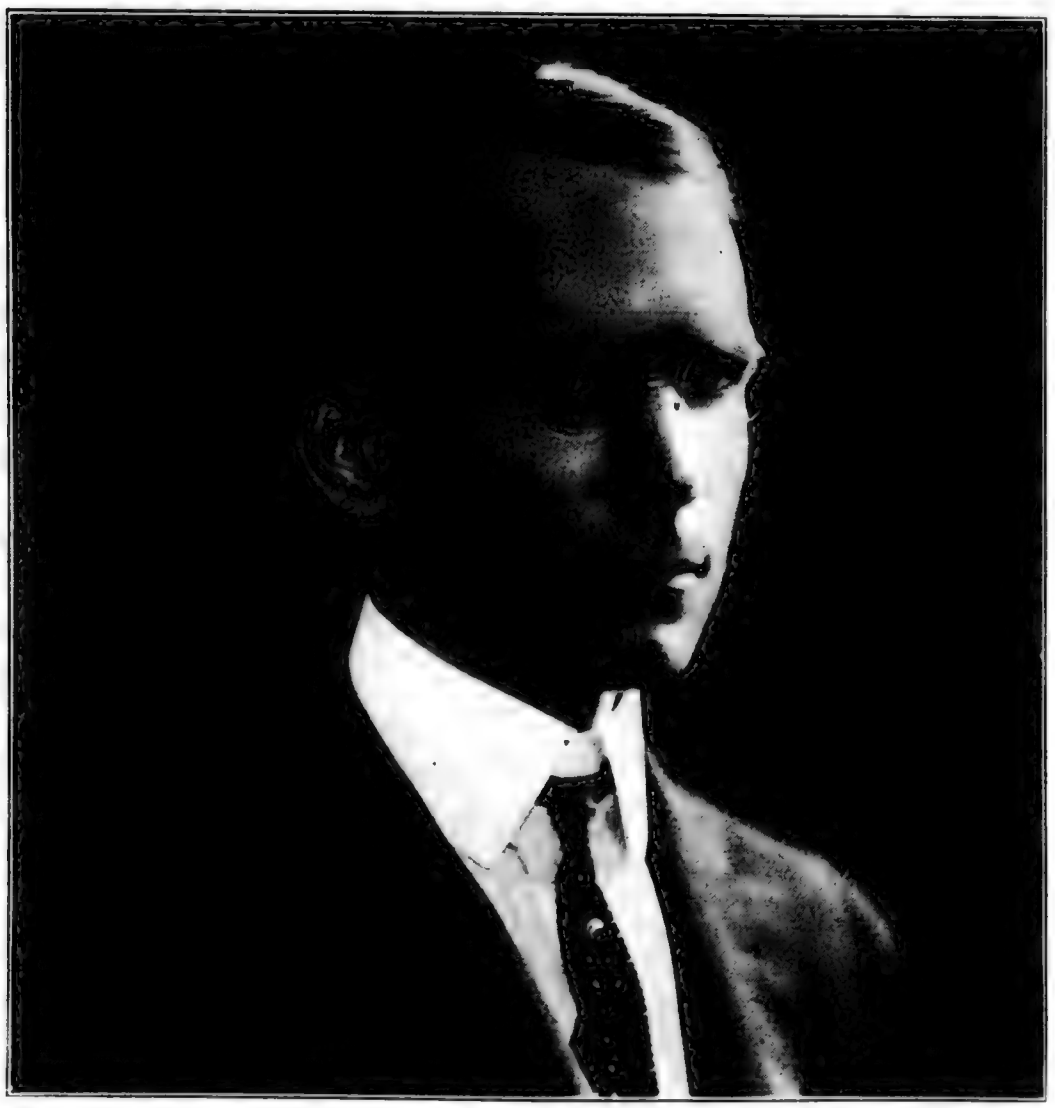
Pre-Convention News.

Local interest in the S. A. F. convention is so intense that all other work is being put aside for the time. John Young, secretary of the S. A. F., arrived in the city July 30. He immediately established headquarters in the Hotel Muehlebach and plunged into detail work for the approaching meeting. Mr. Young also has an office in Convention hall.

Mr. Young, J. F. Ammann and Robert Kift attended the luncheon and meeting of local committee chairmen at the Midday Club Wednesday, August 2. Mr. Young expressed complete satisfaction with the way preliminary work has been handled by the Kansas City florists. The committees have everything in readiness to welcome their visitors. Mr. Young complimented the convention bureau of the Chamber of Commerce for the part it has taken in arranging for the meeting. This bureau has coöperated with the Florists' Club in a most satisfactory manner and has been of valuable assistance in preparing for the convention.

W. L. Rock, general local chairman, had reports from all of the committees, showing their work practically finished.

J. F. Ammann was called upon at the meeting for a few words. He said he felt gratified at the growth of the Kansas City Florists' Club. Mr. Ammann was present at the organization of the club two years ago. This was at a picnic at the range of the Pinehurst Floral Co., Pleasant Hill, Mo. At that gathering Mr. Ammann spoke on the value of coöperation and his encouragement had much to do with the formation of the Kansas City Florists' Club.



Before concluding the meeting, Mr. Rock announced that there would be a committee at the Union station to meet all trains and direct visitors to their hotels and to Convention hall. Members of this committee will wear badges. There is an information bureau in the west rotunda of the station, where all visitors may seek information and all questions will be cheerfully answered.

Prize List Completed.

The golf tournament, which William L. Rock has arranged for the S. A. F. meeting, will be held at Meadow Lake Country Club, at 6 a. m., Wednesday, August 16. A number of entries for this tournament have been received from florists at Chicago and other points, and it promises to be an extremely interesting feature. Mr. Rock has some prizes ready for the winners.

John Klaus, chairman of the sports committee, has completed his list of prizes. Mr. Klaus and the Florists' Club wish to thank the contributors of the prizes.

The bowling events, teams and individuals, for men and women, will be held Wednesday, August 16, at 8 p. m., in Harvey's Recreation, at Twelfth and Wyandotte streets. The prizes include a silver cup donated by the Kansas City Florists' Club; a gold belt buckle from the Joseph H. Hill Co., Richmond, Ind.; $25 in gold from the Denver Wholesale Florists' Co., Denver, Colo.; smoking set from the Lord & Burnham Co., Chicago; outing refrigerator from the A. L. Randall Co., Chicago; smoking set from J. F. Wilcox & Sons, Council Bluffs, Ia.; refrigerator basket from the Burlington Willow Ware Shops, Burlington, Ia.; $20 worth of roses from the Stuppy Floral Co.; $10 in gold from Vaughan's Seed Store, Chicago; $10 in gold from the American Greenhouse Mfg. Co., Chicago; set of table bowls and vases from the Kansas City Wholesale Cut Flower Co.; one flower vase from H. Kusik & Co.; one flower vase from T. J. Noll & Co. The prizes for the women include a silver cup, donated by Samuel Murray; a silk umbrella, donated by T. J. Noll & Co.; a strand of beads, donated by H. Kusik & Co.; a hand bag, donated by the Stuppy Supply Co. and a booby prize, donated by Miss Mary Hayden. J. E. K.

"SAY IT WITH FLOWERS."

As You Travel On.

In eastern lands they talk in flowers,
And tell in a garland their loves and cares;
Each blossom that blooms in their garden bowers
On its leaves a mystic language bears.

To all members of the trade and its affiliated branches who are planning to attend the convention at Kansas City, I am sending this message, "Say It with Flowers."

This is a golden opportunity; make the most of it.

Flowers are plentiful and low in price. Asters and gladioli have wonderful keeping qualities and, with a few sprays of Asparagus plumosus or Sprengeri, make attractive decorations.

Why not decorate your automobiles? A vase or basket could easily be fastened on each side of the windshield and another placed in the rear, behind the license tag or spare tire. Some wet moss placed in the container will keep the flowers fresh for a long while, and if the first lot should wilt, take an extra supply packed in a box, so that you can replenish them. Or you may be able to get more on the way, but by all means let the world know that this is a florists' convention.

If we expect other people to buy our flowers, we ought at least to be willing to use them ourselves.

Just think of the psychological effect if every automobile going to Kansas City for the convention were decorated with fresh flowers and pennants with the slogan, "Say It with Flowers." Why, the publicity value cannot be estimated.

Then, too, it would be a good plan to take enough flowers so that you can give some away as you journey on.

When asking for the best road or other information, give a flower with your "thank you." The man at a gas station, no doubt, would be agreeably surprised if you presented him with a boutonniere. The waitress in the restaurant would surely give you better service in return for a few posies.

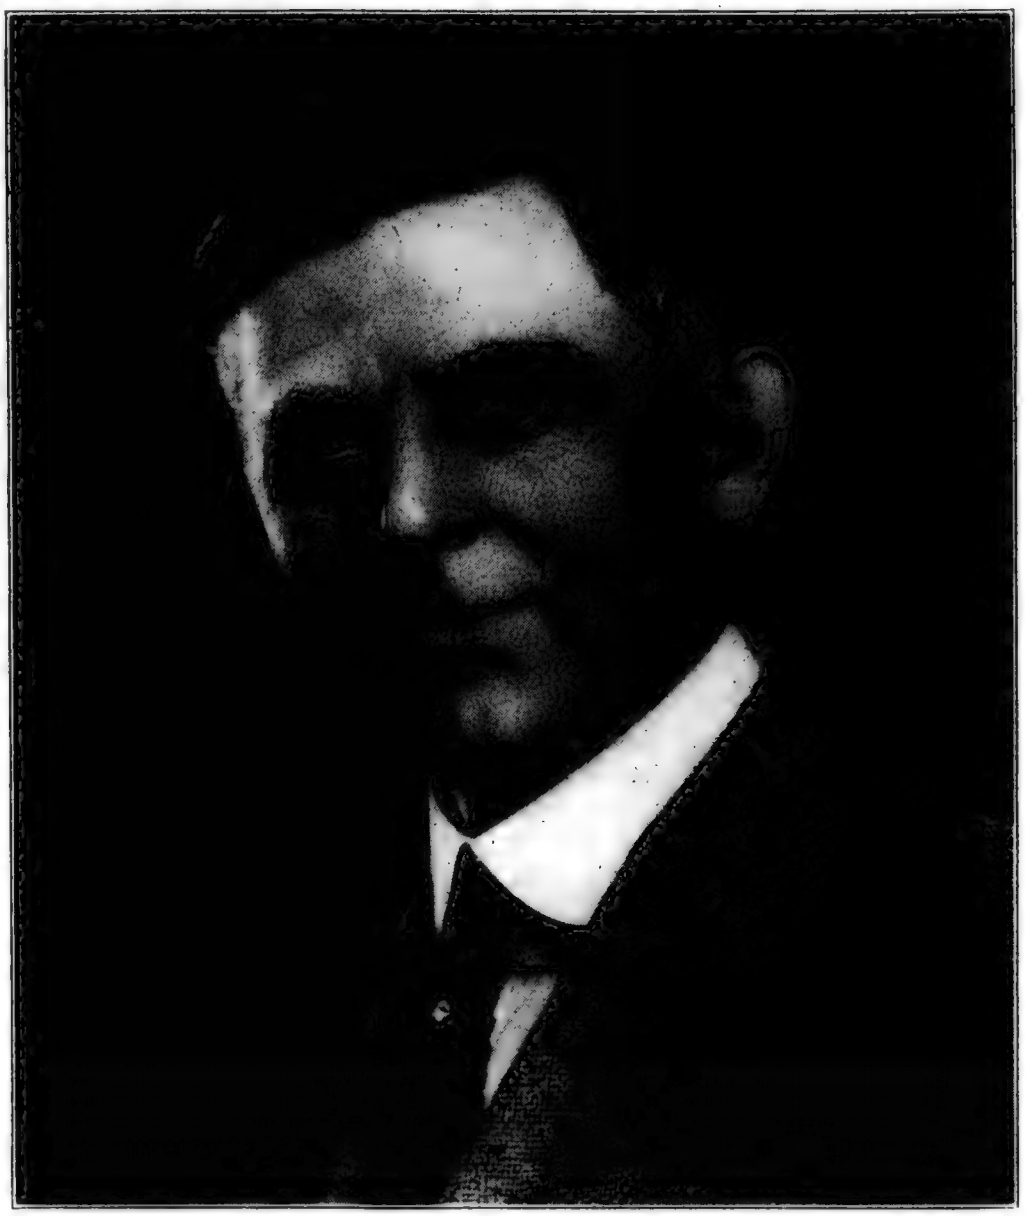
Scatter sunshine and good cheer along the way. Think of the thousands of "miles of smiles" if every florist attending would heed this suggestion.

Let every man, woman and child coming to the convention wear flowers and also during the entire time of the convention.

Those coming on the train ought to bring some to place on their tables in the dining car. It may have a beneficial result on the officials. At any rate it will make the trip more enjoyable.

To the growers and wholesalers, I plead that they send their surplus flowers with the different delegations leaving for Kansas City. No matter how large or how small the offering, it will be gratefully accepted.

Let's make Kansas City glad that we came. If that city is the heart of the nation, let's make that heart throb with joy by taking flowers to the hospitals, nurseries and homes for aged, to the ex-service men, for the mission of flowers is



To minister delight to man,
To beautify the earth,
To comfort the sick—to whisper hope
Whenever the path is dim.
For whoso careth for the flowers,
Will care so much more for Him.

By bringing joy and happiness to its unfortunate citizens, Kansas City will cherish our visit in grateful memory and wish us Godspeed on our return journey.

Lives of great men all remind us
We can make our lives sublime,
And, departing, leave behind us
Footprints on the sands of time.

Yours for greater happiness and service,

Martha C. Gunterberg,
President L. S. A. F.

DAVIS SOLVES FUEL PROBLEM.

A new heating system has been installed at George W. Davis' greenhouse at the corner of Lincoln and Warren avenues, Detroit, Mich. Mr. Davis and other florists who witnessed the tests were enthusiastic in regard to its workings. It is a forced draft system, by which the lowest-grade coal can be used, it is said, with as good results as is now obtained with high-priced coal under natural draft. According to the present price of coal in Detroit, the saving will be about $7 per ton. In the tests made, hard coal screenings and coke breeze were used successfully. This fuel cost $3 per ton. Laboratory tests made at the University of Detroit would indicate that a ton of hard coal screenings, by this forced draft, will give results equal to a ton of high-priced coal under natural draft. Mr. Davis says he will be pleased to explain his new heating system to any florist who may be interested.

PERMITS FOR IMPORT.

The federal horticultural board has announced that regular permits will be issued for importations under regulation 3 of quarantine 37 to customs brokers when the brokers are actual importers in their own name, but such permits are not to be used to cover importations made by other importing firms which they may chance to represent in customs matters. Each importer must receive his own permits and he must be responsible for compliance with the regulations in regard to his own material. The miscellaneous assignment of imported material to brokers' permits leads to confusion, says the board.

When issued, a regular permit is addressed to the collector of customs at the particular port designated in the application. At the same time, a notice of the issuance of such permit is sent to the collector of customs and to the inspector of the federal horticultural board at each port of first arrival where the board maintains an inspection service. Collectors of customs and inspectors of the board at such ports of first arrival are authorized to honor these permits as if issued for their own ports and to release material covered by them and otherwise complying with the regulations.

Special permits for importation under regulation 14 or for importation by mail are issued for Washington, D. C., or San Francisco, Cal., only. Such material may not be released to the consignee or to his agent at any other port, but should be expedited in customs bond to Washington or San Francisco as indicated on the package.

Hillsboro, Tex.—The failure of the cotton crops the last two years and the unwillingness of the banks to extend long credit has resulted in serious financial stringency in this section, but Miss M. C. Wood, head of the Wood Seed & Floral Co., predicts that with the sale of cotton, beginning September, this section will experience the best condition in eight years. The outlook is bright for her business when such prosperity comes.

The Hardy Garden

IRISES FOR CUT FLOWERS.

Please name some of the best irises for cut flowers. We are finding them good for cutting, if taken before the buds open, but some varieties last better than others. C. S. M.—Del.

The following irises can be cut before the buds open and later developed in water with good results: Parc de Neuilly, Monsignor, Gertrude, Lohengrin, Sherwin Wright, Ma-Mie and Parisiana.
W. A. Peterson.

VARIETIES OF PHLOX.

Kindly give me a few names of perennial phloxes, the best in white, red and pink. C. S. M.—Del.

LATE PEONIES.

Kindly give me the names of the latest peonies to bloom, pink, white and red.

Can anything be done for a late pale pink peony which forms a great many buds, few of which open to flowers? The buds become brown and decay.
C. S. M.—Del.

The following varieties of peonies are late: Couronne d'Or and Baroness Schroeder, white; Livingstone, dark pink; Pierre Duchartre and Grandiflora, light pink; Delachei and Gloire de Touraine, red.

Peony buds failing to open is a trait of certain varieties of peonies and it cannot be overcome. Charlemagne rarely develops in the mid-western section of the country. The trouble may also be due to insufficient nutriment in the soil to build and force the buds.
W. A. Peterson.

BEST PEONIES.

Which are the best commercial peonies in white, red and pink for local use?
E. W.—Ill.

Following is a list of ten first-rate commercial varieties of peonies: Duchesse de Nemours, early white; Couronne d'Or, late white; Octavie Demay, early light pink; Venus, early light pink; Pierre Duchartre, late light pink; M. Jules Elie, early dark pink; Livingstone, late dark pink; Claire Dubois, midseason pink; Augustin d'Hour, dark red, and Felix Crousse, midseason red. These, recommended last week for shipping purposes, would also do well for home sales.

To supplement the above-mentioned list of varieties, which would probably command a little higher price when sold direct to the consumer, I might suggest among the more expensive sorts: Baroness Schroeder, 9.0, late white; Marie Crousse, 8.9, wonderful midseason salmon pink; Sarah Bernhardt, 9.0, midseason deep pink; Karl Rosenfield, 8.8, midseason red. The numbers given after each of these varieties are the ballots as voted by the American Peony Society, which shows that these are rated higher than most of the previous list, and are therefore somewhat more expensive. W. A. Peterson.

WINTERING TRITOMAS.

How should we handle tritomas to carry them over winter? If we leave them in the field and cover them, they die. C. H. H.—O.

The tritoma, which some botanists call kniphofia, is commonly known as torch lily, red-hot poker and flame flower, the reason for which is apparent upon sight of the bloom. This plant is hardy south of Philadelphia if covered in winter. Farther north the plants should be dug, placed in boxes with dry soil and stored in a cellar over winter.

WINTERING TRITONIAS.

We have some tritonias and want to know what to do to carry them over winter. We have tried leaving them in the field and covering them, but they always die. C. L. H.—O.

Tritonias are handled about in the manner of gladiolus corms. In the south, where winters are mild, tritonia bulbs can be left in the ground, and they are safe in some more northerly places when covered with a mulch. The usual practice, where they die outdoors, is to winter them in the greenhouse in damp, but not wet, soil.

YORK, PA.

A terrific hail storm passed over this city July 28 and destroyed almost all the glass of H. S. Brandt. The loss of glass and crops amounts to nearly $10,000.

August Schaefer suffered a loss of $10,000; John Dauber, a loss of $6,000, and W. S. Yingling, a loss of $3,000. Charles Schaefer lost nearly 100 boxes of glass. Charles E. Smith & Son were the only ones to escape, losing only about fifty panes.

Hail fell as large as hens' eggs and the ground was covered. It was no trouble shoveling up the hailstones. At the Brandt establishment the top of an automobile standing out in the storm was riddled with holes, some six inches in length.

Geraniums

S. A. NUTT DISEASED.

I am sending you a specimen of Geranium S. A. Nutt that was planted outdoors. Will you please tell me what is the matter with it? The leaves appear to have been punctured and have turned yellow. This trouble does not appear on the Hill or Poitevine geraniums. Fifteen or more years ago I had the same trouble in Nebraska. This disease can spoil a whole bed in a few days.
J. S. L.—Minn.

It is not easy to determine the cause of the disease on your S. A. Nutt geraniums. Ordinarily immune, even this good, old, reliable variety sometimes becomes infected. Most probably some peculiar climatic condition is responsible for the trouble, such as torrential rain, or several days of heat and humidity with little sunshine. Again, this particular lot of plants may not have been as well hardened off as others or are of more recent propagation. Furthermore, plants with soft, luxuriant growths are the most likely to take fungoid troubles. I would advise giving the bed a spraying of Bordeaux mixture, repeating it once or twice at intervals of a week. A dust spray of lime and sulphur blown over the plants in the early morning while they are damp with dew would also be good. Keep the soil about them well stirred to encourage new growth. The plants may lose most of their leaves and look bad for a time, but should eventually recuperate. C. W.

GERANIUMS TURN BROWN.

We have mailed you a specimen of our geraniums. The leaves of this stock turn brown. We purchased all new stock and planted it in new ground. The growth was excellent until July 15. What is the matter with these plants?
M. & S.—Pa.

The condition of the geraniums is probably due to the excessive rains and humidity experienced. Spraying with liquid Bordeaux mixture will help to check the spread of the trouble. A dusting with a mixture of sulphur and lime, applied early in the morning when there is some dew on the plants, will also help. Keep the soil well cultivated between the plants and remove the most severely affected leaves. Burn all of the leaves removed. C. W.

CANAD ANS AT MONTREAL

CANADIAN FLORISTS CONVENE.

Twenty-fifth Annual Gathering.

The Canadain Florists' and Gardeners' Association celebrated the completion of a quarter century of activity this week in a 4-day convention at Montreal, Que. The organization has made great strides in the last three years and the celebration at this time not only looks back over an active past, but also looks forward to still more strenuous work in behalf of the trade in the future.

The local committee, headed by E. J. Hayward, has been preparing for this occasion and the arrangements for an enjoyable gathering made certain its success. Supporting Mr. Hayward's efforts have been Herbert J. Eddy, secretary; R. Scott, treasurer; James McKenna, F. J. McKenna, A. C. Wilshire, H. McKinney, G. A. Smith, Thomas Hill, Ed. Gernaey, R. Burrows, J. Bennett, W. C. Hall, G. W. Pascoe and D. McDonald.

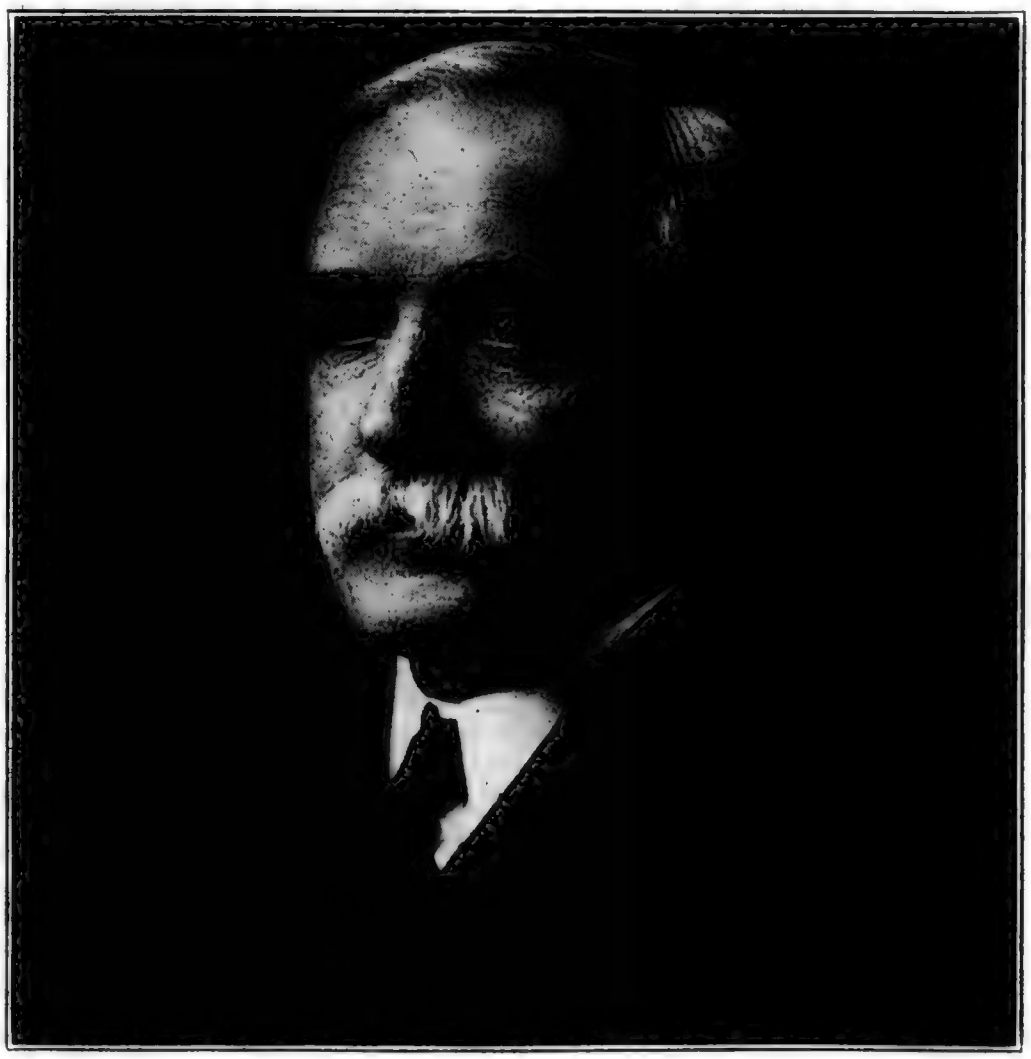
The first session of the convention opened Tuesday morning, August 8. After the routine opening ceremonies the past-presidents in attendance were introduced to the gathering. Pretty nearly all of them were present.

President Groves' Address.

President W. E. Groves then made his official address. He said in opening:

"You will expect that my first word on this occasion should record the fact that this is the twenty-fifth convention of the one national horticultural association in Canada. For a quarter of a century the organization has sought to develop the high hopes of the pioneers; through all sorts of conditions it has kept the flag of progress flying; it has stood foursquare for the highest type of liberty, equality and fraternity, and today, with a past of which it is unashamed, a present on which it can look with pardonable pride and a vision into the future full of inspiration, the C. F. G. A. has every right to congratulate itself and say, 'Well done.' Standing at this end of a long line of presidents and officers, in your name I pay my tribute to the self-sacrificing work they have put in and in all sincerity I say that whatever the years to come may have in store, whatever glory and honor may be ours in the future, we owe a debt of gratitude to those who all along the years have been sowing the seed. Many of them are here today, for which we are thankful; others are here only in spirit, and in your name I extend to everyone our heartiest greetings."

President Groves then expressed appreciation of the work done by Past-president E. B. Hamilton, as chairman of the legislation committee; Major John Connon, of the tariff and taxes committee; E. J. Hayward, of the publicity committee; Henry J. Moore, of the registration committee; W. W. Gammage, of the educational committee, and Harry E. Groves, of the membership committee, and reviewed the work of each. He then said:



"Taking a backward look, I realize with pleasure the happy connection existing between this association and the great societies 'across the line.' For the first time, the S. A. F. (represented here by Charles H. Totty) appointed its Canadian vice-president after consultation with your president—in itself a small thing, but one step towards that fuller coöperation we are reaching after. We may not have been of much real value, yet the simple fact that this kind of fellowship is possible must make for real good. Yet once again I suggest to the great F. T. D. Association that it might do worse than follow this lead. Because I am so sure of the value of the courtesy shown by one great society to another, and because I am equally sure that the F. T. D. Association is missing a real asset by its consistent hesitation to recognize this organization, I again make the appeal.

"Among the public activities of your president it was a delight to carry to the great F. T. D. convention in Toronto your message of greeting, goodwill and welcome. The inspiring gathering appreciated the kindly thought given expression as well as my little talent would allow.

"Before altogether leaving the past I want to tender my sincere thanks to my brother officers, the members of the board of directors and chairmen of committees for a loyalty and assistance that have been of untold value. This simple record is intended to be rather one of effort than of achievement; yet there is cause for thankfulness, and, personally, I am proud of the honor of being in office during years so full of promise and so crowded with possibility. Of the past there is no need to be ashamed, but what of the present and the future? It is not my intention even to suggest a program. One of the glories of changing officers is that one man's methods succeed where others fail, and I think it is not wise for an outgoing officer to suggest a line of work for his successor.

Trying Troubles.

"Some needs, however, are so obvious that it is impossible to pass them by. We want a closer affiliation with the great departments of state. I think the time has fully come when the departments should acknowledge an association like this as a body of business men and women worthy of their coöperation rather than their patronage. I say this deliberately and advisedly and for reasons refer you to the sales tax bungle, the not altogether wise methods of the entomological department, both of which are calculated to antagonize rather than make for friendliness. Every producer who charges tax is a tax collector, just as much as if he were in a customhouse, and he is entitled to intelligent instruction and a consideration at least equal to that shown an employee by an employer. He is getting neither. It would have done no harm if the entomological department had asked the coöperation of either this organization or one or two importers to consider the question of further regulations governing imports if these were necessary. Instead of which, a board of officials—all of whom are admired and respected in their different departments—are appointed and what is the result? Not one of them has any real conception of the difficulties of climate and transit with which the plant importer has to contend. Some of them never see a case of European stock, and without realizing how much they could help us, or how much we could help them, sit around a table in a comfortable office and with a few strokes of the pen propose to place an almost intolerable burden on the buyer from outside countries. It is seriously proposed that every bit of stock coming in shall be inspected at the port of entry before being allowed to proceed to destination, and any importer will easily conceive what this means if a cargo of stock is dumped at, say, St. John in February and has to be unpacked, repacked and reconsigned to a hundred different people. We have the right to ask for reconsideration, I know, but what have we done that we are to be subjected to this quite unnecessary trouble, when a little of the spirit of coöperation would have found us ready to help in every effort to keep down pests? Further, a number of those who are likely to be hit will never know it until it is too late.

W. E. Groves.

(President of the Canadian Florists' and Gardeners' Association.)

Brotherly Feeling.

"Is there still need for a fuller recognition by every one of us of the rights and claims of the other fellow? I leave the answer, but I do venture to remind you that one of the great needs of the little man in the small towns and country districts is your fellowship. While we are glad to feel that the association is doing something for every branch of the profession, it is not too much to say that the most important work done and being done is that for the man at the outposts. Year in and year out he plods along, keeping the flag flying, educating the district where he lives to a greater love for the beautiful, and imperfect though he may be, he deserves every bit of comradeship we can show him.

"To overtake the needs demands enthusiasm and real effort, and I make a closing appeal for both. We want a board of directors, every one of whom is ready to peel off his coat and work. In the main we have this already, but we want to make this body 100 per cent good and there should be no room for mere names on the list, names of those who never attend a meeting or a convention. We want real men. And then, to overtake the needs there has to be some sacrifice. It is said that in our hunt for members and helpers in the campaign, one poor creature refused to work because there was nothing in it for him. He deserves our pity. The things waiting to be done call for some giving of time and strength, of brain and heart, and this is necessary. Then we want vision, a vision that ever sees an elusive something just beyond our reach, that when there has been accomplishment catches a glimpse of something better farther on; a vision that realizes opportunities everywhere for toleration, thoughtfulness, deeds of kindness and of service, and friendships that will blossom and bear fruit. Someone once dreamed a dream of an organization of business men, bringing them together for fellowship and work, and 80,000 Rotarians are today living the gospel, 'He profits most who serves best.' Rotary did not quite meet the whole need, and someone had another vision, with the result that there is now Kiwanis, seeking to build for all that is noblest and best, so full of zeal that quite recently it stirred the city of Toronto to its very soul. Thirty years ago a little band of dreamers caught a glimpse of a brotherhood of florists working along the lines of a real coöperation, uniting in some great beneficent work for mankind, and we have the faith, truth and determination of F. T. D., with all its glorious possibility. Twenty-five years ago another little group of men saw a vision and, though small in numbers, started out with high purpose and firm resolve to bring men and women into comradeship and service, and this association, with all its power for good, is the result. And does not this lead naturally up to the thought on which I close, that of brotherliness? Is it not a striking fact that the organizations such as those I have named, the societies that today are admittedly filling the largest place in the lives of men and nations, are those built upon this great, abiding principle? We are glad to be in line and I plead for a still clearer vision of the eternal truth that

There is a destiny that makes us brothers.
None goes his way alone;
All that we send into the lives of others
Comes back into our own.

"If it is not out of place to paraphrase a scripture, I would like to say, 'Seek ye first the kingdom of brotherhood and all these things shall be added unto you.' We sometimes are tempted to look back to what we like to call the good old times. Occasionally we try to catch a glimpse down the vista of the coming years of a golden age or a good time coming, but the longer I live, the stronger grows the conviction that the only times and the only age in which things are going to be any better than they are today will be when men and women more perfectly learn the article, 'I believe in the brotherhood of man.' Just so far as we each and every one are setting up the ideal, are hitching our wagon to that star and content to follow, just so far are we hastening the dawning of the day of promise, the day about which our poets have sung, for which our preachers have prayed, towards which the eyes of the best men all down the ages have been ever turned and of which the immortal bard of the fatherland of some of you surely had a clear-cut vision when he sang:

But let us pray that come it may,
As come it will for a' that,
That sense an' worth o'er a' the earth
May bear the gree an' a' that.
For a' that an' a' that,
It's comin' yet for a' that,
That man to man the world o'er Shall brithers be for a' that."

In Re Sales Tax.

The remainder of the morning was devoted to reports of committees. In presenting the report of the tariff committee, Major John Connon, of Hamilton, Ont., after touching on minor matters, suggested action in regard to the sales tax. In this connection he said:

"The sales tax has been a real bone of contention during the year, chiefly on account of the unsatisfactory way in which the matter has been handled by the department. Your committee has never fought against the legitimate tax and its application, and in this it has felt that the association was at its back. But for a year there has been so much indefiniteness shown by the department that on more than one occasion we have had to battle for a square deal. For instance, last August a circular was sent out, demanding payment of tax on all stock sold from the previous May. Had it been enforced, this ruling simply would have meant that growers would have paid the tax out of their own pockets. A representative meeting of growers was arranged by the president, at Toronto, at which the attitude of the department was definitely challenged. Strong representations were made as to the injustice of the ruling, and the final result was that the ruling was called off. For some unaccountable reason, the tax administration has been bungled all the way through. The present position is that three rates are being charged, one and one-half per cent, two and one-fourth per cent and four and one-half per cent, and about fifty per cent of taxable stock is bearing no tax whatever. With few exceptions, no effort is being made to check this up, with the result that the buyer who pays is handicapped, as is the grower who is collecting the tax. Your committee has quite recently called the attention of the department to the condition, and also to the fact that no systematic attempt is made to issue to producers any notice of rulings. We respectfully suggest that a representative deputation be appointed to wait upon either the minister or the commissioner at the close of this convention, with a view to having the whole matter clarified and put upon a fair and workable basis."

Education.

Presenting the report of the educational committee, W. W. Gammage, of London, Ont., told of the formation of the council of horticulture, which the committee had been instructed to proceed with at last year's convention. In view of the lack of facilities for horticultural training in Canada, he presented resolutions to be addressed to the prime minister of the Dominion, asking provision for a college in which such instruction might be had. In closing, he presented the following recommendations:

"During the year members of your committee have addressed meetings of horticultural societies and gardeners' associations, with the result, we believe, of a better understanding and greater coöperation in advancing the industry to a higher plane. We recommend a continuance, when opportunity affords, of officers and members of this association addressing public or semi-public meetings, giving demonstrations in the art of floral arrangement or cultural instructions, or doing similar work that will gain public confidence.

"In many sections the public school offers an excellent opportunity of inculcating a desire for better home surroundings by florists' taking an interest in the school gardens and giving short, practical talks to teachers and classes while at work.

"Your committee further recommends that suitable seasonal articles be prepared and handed the press association. These articles should be short and concise, and contain absolutely reliable information. They should emanate from and bear the endorsement of the association, the actual expense for stationery, cuts, etc., to be borne by the association.

"Your committee further recommends coöperative advertising as a means of gaining public confidence, and coöperative instead of competitive exhibits as an educational feature at flower shows and fairs."

Greetings from S. A. F.

Charles H. Totty, of Madison, N. J., as the representative of the Society of American Florists, presented greetings from that body and from its president, S. S. Pennock. In his address Mr. Totty said:

"I understand a committee of close relations will be formed to cement still further the bond of friendship and cooperation between the Society of American Florists and the Canadian Gardeners' and Florists' Association. What is more fitting than that we should get together? We are engaged in the same business, speak the same language, work for the same ideals and grapple with the same business problems, in both the growing and marketing of our products. How true it is that 'horticulture has no frontiers'! Many of our florists are already members of the S. A. F., and I also have the honor, in common with many other American florists, to be a member of your society here. In fact, our interests are so closely woven together that there is a certain dependency upon each other, and we should continually strive to work with and for each other in every possible way. In the registration of new varieties of plants and flowers, for instance, for the sake of uniformity, I believe an interchange should be made frequently between the two organizations, so that a registration with either society would be uniform all over the North American continent.

Raising the Profession.

"Personally, I feel that one of the things most necessary in our business and your business is that it be elevated to its proper plane as a business, so that a florist may be regarded as a real merchant and not, as I have heard him referred to with simply good-humored tolerance, as a fellow with a 'bug' for flowers.

"Improve each other's business methods. Teach the florist to study his costs and overhead, so that when he goes to

STRAWFLOWERS

PREPARING STRAWFLOWERS.

We grow a great many strawflowers and wish you would give us information as to the proper treatment of them, at what stage or time to cut them, and in what place to keep them.

F. & F.—Wis.

Will you kindly tell me how to dry strawflowers? E. E. S.—N. D.

"Strawflowers" cover a variety of everlastings, the term being differently applied in different sections. Most generally planted for commercial use are Helichrysum monstrosum, the double form of H. bracteatum, known as "golden ball," and Acroclinium (Helipterum) roseum flore-pleno. These are easily grown, are free bloomers and give better and brighter color in their dried state than other forms.

The flowers of the acroclinium should be picked just as soon as the buds show color, even if they look almost too small, because if too far advanced their ray petals open up flat, exposing the center, which will soon turn brown when dried and spoil the effect. Those cut early will open up part way, presenting only their full color. In full blooming season they should be picked daily. With the helichrysum one can wait until the bud is of fairly good size, but all the smaller ones will open up also when dried. Those fully open or showing the center at all will turn brown. With both plants pluck off all foliage, place in bundles and hang them, head down, in some dry closet. They should be examined at times, as in the drying the stems shrink and the flower may fall down. They should remain in this dry shelter until the house is heated in the fall, reducing the moisture in the air, otherwise the dry flower stems would absorb the moisture and become limp.

A certain number of "droppers" are wanted when arranging a bouquet, in order to avoid stiffness. These are easily secured. Take a long sheet of a pliable cardboard about eight inches wide, tack one edge lengthwise on the top of a shelf, at the front bringing it out and downward, so as to form a half circle, and fasten it there. Then lay the freshly picked flower stems on the shelf, heads hanging down. It is sometimes necessary to place a book or some weight on the stems to keep them in place. They will dry in the curved form.

The Chinese lantern plant, Physalis Franchetii, which is also grown in some numbers, must be treated differently. The seed-pods are highly ornamental, retaining their brilliancy of color when dried, the colors ranging from a pale green to orange and red. They hang like inverted balloons, on slender peduncles, and lose their graceful appearance unless the main stem that carries them can be curved outward when dry. For drying them, boards on a partition in a wood shed may be used, driving tacks, on each side, close up to the side of the bottom of the main stem, the heads of the tacks overlapping the stick. Run the stem up straight for about six inches, then curve to right or left, and fasten in the same manner. Then, when dried, the lanterns will hang clear of the stem. The seed-pods of the balloon vine, Cardiospermum Halicacabum, work in well among the lanterns. Cut away part of the side of the lantern and see the brilliant wick inside.

CHEMICAL WEED KILLERS.

I have mailed you a specimen of a wild sweet potato, which gives me a great deal of trouble. I read with interest your article on chemicals for killing weeds and thought that perhaps you could give me some advice on killing the weed in question. Is your remedy practical for a 6-acre farm, on which peonies and other plants are grown?

H. C. S.—Ind.

On walks, paths, tennis courts and yards, it is possible to kill weeds easily, and one application of a good weed killer will destroy all weeds for an entire season. You cannot, however, apply such a remedy in a field of peonies without disastrous results to the peonies. The sulphate of copper and sulphate of iron sprays will burn and kill many weeds such as the specimen sent and would not damage the peonies, which have tough foliage. It would mean, however, that a number of sprayings during the growing season would be necessary, as you cannot pour any liquid on the soil which would burn or destroy weed roots without at the same time burning your peonies.

These bindweeds are hard to fight and control, as they grow so persistently from the smallest portion of root. I would, however, have more faith in hand and hoe and persistent cultivation than in any chemical preparations for weed destroyers, where there are cultivated plants. Continued dropping down of the tops will weaken plants more than anything else, and if your field seems hopelessly weed-infested, why not replant your stock elsewhere and sow a heavy smother crop on the vacated land? This and persistent harrowing and cultivation is the best way to clean up weeds. C. W.

CYCLAMENS

CYCLAMEN CULTURE.

Bartsch Outlines Essentials.

Herman H. Bartsch, president of the W. W. Edgar Co., Waverley, Mass., who addressed the Canadian Florists' and Gardeners' Association, at its annual convention at Montreal last week, on cyclamen culture, furnishes the following summary of what he regards as the essentials in producing cyclamens, of which his establishment turns out many splendid specimens each year:

"There is more interest today in the cyclamen plant than in any other flowering plant from the commercial point of view. Why? Because the public likes it. A well grown plant with good foliage and six to twenty-five flowers and plenty of buds gives pleasure and satisfaction to the buyer. It is also liked by the retailer, because it is easy to handle.

"How to produce such plants is the question and problem with the grower. There are many and different methods used by different men. Soil and condition of localities vary, and each grower has to solve his own problem. I shall confine myself to my own methods and observation, having had some thirty years of experience, and having seen many other men handle this plant. I have come to the following conclusions for good production of this plant for Christmas trade:

Seeds.

"Seeds sown in July or the first part of August will start in three to five weeks. About the middle of November and early in December, when the second leaf has developed, we transplant into flats two and one-half inches deep. In February the second transplanting takes place.

"By the end of March potting is started; 3-inch and 3½-inch pots are used. In May the second potting is done, into 5-inch; in June and July the third potting, into 6-inch and 6½-inch; in August and September, the fourth and last, into 8-inch and 9-inch.

Soil.

"A good compost of sod, cow manure, sand, leaf soil, charcoal and lime is used.

"The main feature is good drainage.

Insects.

"Insects form the hardest problem to overcome.

"Mite is one of the cyclamen's worst enemies. Once the plant is attacked, a cure is hopeless.

"We prevent infection of mite and other insects by having the flats, pots and tables thoroughly cleaned and whitewashed, and by regular smoking, once a week, and occasional spraying with a nicotine mixture.

Care.

"Last, and most important, is the man who has the care. He has to like or, more than that, love the plant. He must provide its wants. Food, water, light, shade, ventilation and temperatures are important factors.

"We give as much light as possible without burning the foliage. Light shading on glass outside and cheesecloth is used from May to September.

"If this method is followed up carefully, almost anyone can produce good plants."

PUT ONE ON YOUR GROUNDS

MAKING ROCK GARDENS.

Material and Construction.

The rock garden is a phase of gardening that is new, or, at least, little known to many of you, and has not been attempted to any extent in this country. Our public parks and private places have their lily ponds; so, why not the rock garden, and the bog garden? The three should be in proximity, so that the water can be used by them all. A few years ago orchids and alpines were thought mysterious plants to grow; now this has all passed. On a well constructed rockery, anybody can be a rock gardener, as these beautiful floral gems are not difficult to grow.

The site for the rockery should be in the open, quite free from all trees, walls, fences and shrubberies, so it can get all the light and air possible. You can make it what size or shape you like, either mound, slope or ravine, but, whatever you do, design it so you can add to it in the future without making it look like patchwork.

Start Right.

As the rock garden is to be permanent, it is better to construct it right in the first place. When you have laid your plans, the soil must be taken out fifteen or eighteen inches deep and, should any trees be in the neighborhood, it is better to lay a concrete floor six inches thick to exclude all roots, the floor to have a fall of three or four inches to your outlet, whether you put a concrete bottom in it or not. Use one foot of rough stone to insure a perfect drainage; finish the top with smaller stones, to level it off; next add some fresh cut sod, placed grass downward, to keep your drainage free.

The soil for the body of the mound should be a sandy loam—well decayed leaf-mold and sand in equal parts—with a good addition of small limestone, sandstone, pebbles or old mortar rubble. Should the loam be poor, one-sixth part of decayed manure—old, spent hotbed manure—is excellent, well mixed. Use a soil that will not crack in hot weather, a soil which will give you a free drainage at all times.

The rock to be used must be limestone or sandstone, limestone for preference. All other stone, such as old masonry, bricks, burr, clinkers, or concrete blocks, must be rigorously excluded; there is no life in them. The great majority of alpines are lime-loving plants; they get a certain amount of food from the rock.

Now you are ready for building. Use large stones, not too many. It is better to use ten large ones than fifty small ones. Be sure to lay them flat side down, with a slight dip to the center of the bed. Be sure to bed the rock firmly and fill up all spaces. Place them so they have an artistic appearance, one connecting with another. Do not overlap them. Avoid all pinnacles. The joints between the rock are ideal places for a great many of the companulas. Taste and judgment will be your best guide to give the best effect. Bear in mind that plants are the first consideration; rocks, the second. In placing the rocks, allow for twelve to fifteen inches of soil of the different composts for the plants to root in; have in mind the rock garden clothed in plants with a few rocks peeping out. When the rockery is finished, it should not be more than four feet high, with a base of from twelve to fifteen feet.

How to Water.

One of the greatest features in building a rockery is the placing of a water pipe one foot below the soil at the top of the ridge. This pipe is perforated with minute holes on either side, alternately, six or nine inches apart, so as to produce underground irrigation. In this way you will have a constant supply of water from April to October, according to weather conditions.

Another means of watering: Place large flower pots or land tiles at intervals, level with the soil; these can be hidden by taller plants and, by this means, the plants will be kept thoroughly watered. Do not water overhead. Watering by underground irrigation corresponds with the condition of the plants in their native homes. By this means the moisture will rise at night and give your plants the dew they receive in their native homes. Much water, by underground irrigation, perfect drainage, a dry bed in winter, plenty of light and air, together with proper soil, are the secrets of successful rock gardening.

Kinds of Compost.

The soil in which your plants will root should vary. The great majority are lime-loving. Some of the same family are granite-loving, and some like loam. A good general compost, which will suit the majority of plants, consists of one-half sandy loam sod, cut four inches thick and rooted; one-fourth decayed leaf-mold; one-fourth sand; a good addition of old mortar or limestone, about one-half inch size, well mixed.

For more lime-loving plants a good compost consists of one-fourth loam; one-fourth leaf-mold; one-fourth sand; one-fourth mortar or limestone.

Another compost contains one-third leaf-mold and two-thirds sand, with plenty of water. This will grow Gentiana verna like weeds.

Another compost consists of one-half loam; one-fourth leaf-mold; one-fourth decayed manure, for primulas.

Another compost contains one-fourth broken peat; one-fourth leaf-mold; one-fourth sand and sandstone. Lime must be left out of this mixture, which is suitable for daphnes.

These several mixtures will meet all the requirements. Experience will teach you the most suitable soils and the correct position for every variety.

Now we come to what is known as the "moraine"; that is, a gentle slope with no rock, an imitation of one of the mountain ledges constructed on the same lines. One should use a good supply of water, soil about three feet deep, composed of one-fourth loam, one-fourth leaf-mold, one-half limestone, about one-half inch in size. A portion of this can be divided off for plants that belong to the granite or sandstone. This can be part of the rockery or separate. A large number of plants will do better here than on the rockery.

Now the question might be asked: "What is a rock or alpine plant?" Generally speaking, it is a mountainous plant, when in bloom not more than one foot in height. Anything taller, of the same species, is a herbaceous plant; for instance, some of the anemones, veronicas, gentianas, aconites and ranunculi. They are found all over the temperate zone, up to the Arctic circle and down to the Antarctic circle, growing at altitudes from 1,000 to 15,000 feet. They are bound up in ice and snow from October, are freed in April and commence to flower onwards to September, a large number in May and June, being watered by the melting snow above them and exposed to as much heat and cold as we have here. Generally speaking, the alpine will stand plenty of sun. Some will do better shaded at midday, while others prefer a northern aspect, provided they have plenty of water in their growing season and a dry bed in the winter.

Usable Plants and Ideas.

Without going into a detailed list of plants, there are hundreds: Saxifraga, primula, dianthus, campanula, anemone, phyteuma, androsace, ramondia, draba, adonis, veronica, viola, and others. These are the principal families. Among the bulbs, the snowdrop, crocus, anemone; some of the narcissi and aconites. Also, there are a few dwarf shrubs, the rock rose, cistus, daphne and others.

Nearly all the alpines can be grown from seed. A certain amount of patience is needed, as the seed is exceedingly minute. The seed should be fresh. Use a light, finely sifted soil, which should be sterilized. Use clean pans, well drained, and do not cover the finer seed with soil. Cover the pans with glass and keep them dark until the seeds germinate. Water by immersion. Some seeds will come up quickly. Others will take longer, while the dianthus will often take six months and will come up irregularly. They will all, also, propagate quite easily from cuttings. Use a coldframe. Take out the soil about two feet deep. Use one foot of the leaf-mold and one foot of sand. Raise the light or use a lattice side for plenty of air. Shade from the direct sunshine and water by irrigation. In three or four weeks the plants will be rooted and can be transferred to their permanent quarters. The best time to propagate is after they have done flowering or in early spring before flowering.

Suppose you were importing plants: In all probability a number of plants would come with the soil shaken out. In this case it would be better to cut away all decayed parts, and plant them in the coldframe to recover and propagate from them. Some of the tap-rooted campanulas, dibbled straight into the sand, will be a mass of white fiber in three or four weeks. Then they can be planted in their permanent places. I should like to add that the proper place for the tap-rooted campanulas is wedged close in between the rock. Carefully fill up all air spaces.

Some of the plants are monocarpic; that is, they flower once and die and seed; they produce freely. In selecting seedlings, a broad leaf is a good criterion, both for constitution and flower. The saxifraga is much given to intercrossing, while among the campanulas a blue may give you a white, or a white, a blue.

Alpines, as a rule, like company. They love to push one another out; therefore, plant so as to form a combination of color or one plant to succeed the other, also making a cover for bulbs.

The Care in General.

Go over your plants in spring and gently press them back into the soil; give them a top-dressing of leaf-mold and sand. If there is too rampant a growth, reduce the plants after flowering. Keep all weeds down.

There are not many pests to bother. Slugs are fond of some of the young growth of the campanulas. Orange peel is a good trap. Field mice will often make their home in the rockery.

Another question may arise, with regard to the hardiness or the amount of heat the alpine will endure. You must bear in mind that these plants are found where they are frozen three to six months in a year and they endure as much sun as we get here. They are easily acclimatized, while plants like the calceolaria, coming from that sunless, cold, damp country, Patagonia, do better when once established. These alpine plants are among the floral gems of the earth, perfect in form and color—white, yellow, pink, red, blue, purple, unrivaled by the orchid. Commencing to flower as soon as the frost is out of the ground, they are a blaze of bloom in May and June on to September. When once they become better known, there will be a great commercial future to the hardy plant florist.

In conclusion, I should like to add that some of our native plants find a home on the rockery, among them the sanguinaria, one of our earliest alpines; Phlox subulata, dianthus, cypripediums, Gentiana purpurea, Sarracenia purpurea and penstemons. Also, there is a home for the osmunda ferns in the bog garden.

MOTT-LY MUSINGS

L. C. Hecock, of the L. C. Hecock Floral Co., Elyria, O., was completing two handsome floral sprays, and, commenting upon the admiration expressed by the persons who ordered the pieces, he observed that in order to produce fine blooms, it is essential to keep the greenhouse clean and bright by an unstinted use of paint, adding that painting is an art and the painter who is dexterous with both hands is naturally worth more than one who is not. "Apropos of being well balanced," continued Mr. Hecock, "it seems to me unfortunate, as doubtless it appears to many others, that the meetings of the S. A. F. and F. T. D. are not held at one and the same time. We, being particularly interested in the flower store, propose to attend the F. T. D. meeting at Baltimore. We cannot attend both, so must give up the idea of going to Kansas City, much to our regret. To repeat, we feel that the machinery is out of gear and the sooner it becomes better balanced, the better it will be for the trade at large."

* * * *

Manager Robert Rahaley, of the Michigan Cut Flower Exchange, Detroit, commented upon the surfeit of outdoor flowers, rather inferior in quality, owing to the dry weather. Mr. Rahaley looks for a steady return to normal business as soon as the first cuts arrive from the several growers. The publicity movement is being steadily kept up, and when told of the fact that a leading barber in a nearby town had the slogan, "Say it without whiskers," emblazoned upon a large board so that everybody could read it, he expressed the opinion that the sign is not derogatory to our own adopted slogan, but rather the reverse.

* * * *

"All gone," commented Joseph Streit, of Detroit, Mich., referring to the abandonment, for the time being, of chrysanthemums. Mr. Streit believes this to be the only remedy when the plants are badly affected with the midge. "Possibly after two years we shall try them again," continued he. "Meanwhile Boston ferns will be substituted, the demand for the latter being good, in fact, rarely if ever met." Cyclamens in 4-inch pots and 5-inch pans are in fine shape. A house to be filled with poinsettias potted now from the sand is expected to be in the usual good shape for the Christmas trade. Asparagus, cineraria and calceolaria seeds are now being sown. The last-named is found to make more satisfactory plants when sown at this date.

* * * *

"Buy your own cherries," observed Carl Hagenburger, West Mentor, O., "as the demand for all the varieties of the Jerusalem cherry will exceed that in any previous season. We have increased our stock of Jerusalem cherries, but are not growing as many cyclamens as formerly."

* * * *

The C. Merkel & Sons Co., Mentor, O., is in the lead with carnations and chrysanthemums. Hydrangeas of the kind this firm displayed at Indianapolis last spring are coming along well. Cyclamens, begonias and poinsettias are doing well here.

The Storrs & Harrison Co., Painesville, O., has its usual attractive showing of cannas fronting the railroad. The displays made by the nurserymen of Painesville and Mentor undoubtedly make a favorable impression upon the traveling public.

"Look for us at Kansas City," were the parting words of Harry E. Saier, Lansing, Mich., who has blossomed out into a seedsman, florist, nurseryman and landscape architect, all during a short interval of time, showing what possibilities our elastic profession offers to the live worker. The encouraging fact of Mr. Saier's business is that every department shows a satisfactory return. Mrs. Saier, who has charge of the flower shop, is expected to accompany our worthy craftsman to the S. A. F. convention.

John R. Van Bochove, of Van Bochove & Bro., Kalamazoo, Mich., expects to motor to Kansas City. He is also expecting to meet many old friends and make a host of new ones from the middle west, west and south. George Van Bochove, who has charge of the store and office, plans an eastern tour. He will visit some of the most prominent flower stores en route.

* * * *

"Delighted to greet our friends in our new building," observed Manager Raleigh H. Wells, of the Detroit-McCallum Co., Detroit, Mich. It is an ideal structure of three stories, containing 9,000 square feet of floor space, and situated almost directly opposite the building of the Michigan Cut Flower Exchange. Its location will be convenient for all persons interested.

* * * *

"Best in many seasons," observed Manager Luck, of S. M. Isbell & Co., Jackson, Mich., referring to their diversified seed interests, which are steadily expanding, and which embrace both the wholesale and retail trade. The retail store now carries a full line of supplies, birds, seeds and cut flowers in season. The firm was led to install these lines in response to desires expressed by its home patrons.

* * * *

The Blessing Flower Shop, Jackson, Mich., is in the contented and optimistic class. Rain would be welcome just now.

* * * *

W. H. Seedorff, Battle Creek, Mich., had occasion to refer to the first day's journal of his business and while doing so he found the item: "August 6, 1906, cash capital, $3.80." From this acorn has sprung an enviable seed, feed and coal business, which is a testimonial of integrity and push.

* * * *

The Coggan Flower Shop, Battle Creek, Mich., made a fine display of flowers, plants and baskets, which was conspicuously placed in its window. Funeral work has kept the firm busy for some time.

* * * *

"I read with interest in The Review Joseph H. Hill's opinion as to what he thinks the size of the average house should be to be handled most effectively and economically," observed Henry Turvill, Madison, Wis., who recently added two Lord & Burnham houses, each 36x125.

The Amerpohl Flower Shop, Janesville, Wis., had a fine display of outdoor flowers that doubtless did much in keeping up interest. Certainly the idea of copying an undertaker's window does not prevail here. W. H. M.

NEW YORK GLADIOLUS SHOW.

The Horticultural Society of New York will hold a gladiolus exhibition in the Museum building, New York Botanical Garden, Bronx park, New York city, August 19 and 20. According to the plans already laid out, this show will be bigger and better than anything the society has ever done before. Attractive prizes are being offered, with a great many new classes for all comers. It is thought that this show will in no way interfere with the big show of the American Gladiolus Society, at Kalamazoo, Mich., next week, and all growers who do not intend to enter the competition at the latter show are invited to enter the New York show. The schedule of premiums consists of thirty-seven different classes.

The officers of the organization are as follows: President, T. A. Havemeyer; vice-presidents, N. L. Britton, James W. Cromwell, E. B. Southwick; treasurer, Frederick R. Newbold; secretary, Mrs. A. W. Butler. The honorary vice-presidents are: E. S. Harkness, Adolph Lewisohn, George N. Miller, Clement Moore, George T. Powell.

The exhibition committee is as follows: James Stuart, chairman; Mrs. G. V. Nash, secretary; Robert T. Brown, John Canning, H. A. Gleason, I. S. Hendrickson, J. E. Lager, A. J. Manda, J. A. Manda, John Scheepers, Max Schling, Charles H. Totty.

All communications should be addressed to Mrs. George V. Nash, secretary exhibition committee, New York Botannical Garden, Bronx park, New York city.

GLADIOLUS MAIDEN'S BLUSH.

The accompanying illustration shows blooms from small bulbs of Gladiolus Maiden's Blush, a variety which has this season attracted an unusual amount of attention. These blooms were cut fifty miles from Chicago, July 5, eight weeks after planting. The bulbs were only ½-inch to ¾-inch. It is said that the variety will force in the greenhouse in seven weeks.

Gladiolus Maiden's Blush originated with Grullemans & Sons, Lisse, Holland, being one of a number of primulinus hybrids of pronounced early-flowering habit which this firm has sent to America under import permit issued by the federal horticultural board. The color is an attractive shade of light pink and some good judges think Maiden's Blush will become one of the most widely grown and popular varieties when it becomes well known. It is considered specially well adapted to florists' needs.

AWARD TO BURPEE SWEET PEA.

The National Sweet Pea Society of Great Britain has just given the W. Atlee Burpee Co., Philadelphia, the only award of merit for a new sweet pea made by the society this year. This is the only time that a new American sweet pea has been given the highest award by the National Sweet Pea Society of Great Britain. It was made on an orange-cerise seedling which originated on the California farms of the W. Atlee Burpee Co. Upon receipt of news of the award, the W. Atlee Burpee Co. sent a telegram, July 31, to President Harding, at the White House, in Washington. The telegram read:

> The National Sweet Pea Society of Great Britain has just made us the only award of merit for the finest new sweet pea this year. It is a new variety we originated on our California farms and which has won out in the English trials in competition with 105 other new varieties from all parts of the world. This is the first time the English society has ever given such award to an American sweet pea. It will have international importance. May we have the honor of naming this grand new sweet pea The President Harding? It is necessary for us to cable the name to England before the award can be announced.

The following morning a reply was received from the president, giving the W. Atlee Burpee Co. his consent to name this new variety The President Harding. The company reports that the supply of this seed is extremely short and it will have to be grown another year before it is offered to the trade. The new sweet pea, however, is expected to be disseminated in January, 1924.

OBITUARY.

William S. Burling.

William S. Burling, ex-mayor of Riverside, Ill., and president of the Martin Grate Co., fell dead August 3 on the Riverside golf course. He had been suffering from heart trouble for some time. The former mayor, 62 years old at the time of his death, had been a resident of the Chicago suburb for twenty years. He is survived by his widow and a son, Harold Burling. Mr. Burling was well known to many growers, who use the rocking gates manufactured by his company, because, outside of business, he was a flower lover and enthusiastic gardener. Funeral services were held at the family residence at Riverside, August 5. Burial was in Hinsdale.

Denver, Colo.—Samuel Lundy has announced that he has sold his interest in the Boldt-Lundy House of Flowers to L. Hohman. The firm will now be known as the Boldt-Hohman House of Flowers. Mr. Lundy is going to California.

ingly minute. The seed should be fresh. Use a light, finely sifted soil, which should be sterilized. Use clean pans, well drained, and do not cover the finer seed with soil. Cover the pans with glass and keep them dark until the seeds germinate. Water by immersion. Some seeds will come up quickly. Others will take longer, while the dianthus will often take six months and will come up irregularly. They will all, also, propagate quite easily from cuttings. Use a coldframe. Take out the soil about two feet deep. Use one foot of the leaf-mold and one foot of sand. Raise the light or use a lattice side for plenty of air. Shade from the direct sunshine and water by irrigation. In three or four weeks the plants will be rooted and can be transferred to their permanent quarters. The best time to propagate is after they have done flowering or in early spring before flowering.

Suppose you were importing plants: In all probability a number of plants would come with the soil shaken out. In this case it would be better to cut away all decayed parts, and plant them in the coldframe to recover and propagate from them. Some of the tap-rooted campanulas, dibbled straight into the sand, will be a mass of white fiber in three or four weeks. Then they can be planted in their permanent places. I should like to add that the proper place for the tap-rooted campanulas is wedged close in between the rock. Carefully fill up all air spaces.

Some of the plants are monocarpic, that is, they flower once and die and seed; they produce freely. In selecting seedlings, a broad leaf is a good criterion, both for constitution and flower. The saxifraga is much given to intercrossing, while among the campanulas a blue may give you a white, or a white, a blue.

Alpines, as a rule, like company. They love to push one another out; therefore, plant so as to form a combination of color or one plant to succeed the other, also making a cover for bulbs.

The Care in General.

Go over your plants in spring and gently press them back into the soil; give them a top-dressing of leaf-mold and sand. If there is too rampant a growth, reduce the plants after flowering. Keep all weeds down.

There are not many pests to bother. Slugs are fond of some of the young growth of the campanulas. Orange peel is a good trap. Field mice will often make their home in the rockery.

Another question may arise, with regard to the hardiness or the amount of heat the alpine will endure. You must bear in mind that these plants are found where they are frozen three to six months in a year and they endure as much sun as we get here. They are easily acclimatized, while plants like the calceolaria, coming from that sunless, cold, damp country, Patagonia, do better when once established. These alpine plants are among the floral gems of the earth, perfect in form and color—white, yellow, pink, red, blue, purple, unrivaled by the orchid. Commencing to flower as soon as the frost is out of the ground, they are a blaze of bloom in May and June on to September. When once they become better known, there will be a great commercial future to the hardy plant florist.

In conclusion, I should like to add that some of our native plants find a home on the rockery, among them the sanguinaria, one of our earliest alpines; Phlox subulata, dianthus, cypripediums, Gentiana purpurea, Sarracenia purpurea and penstemons. Also, there is a home for the osmunda ferns in the bog garden.

CULTIVATE CARNATIONS.

After you have finished benching your carnations, you should pot up a few plants of each variety to replace any that may die out. You will be sure to lose a few plants, even with the best of care, and if you have plants established in pots, they can be set in as needed without having to be protected from the sun. Five per cent of the plants benched ought to be a liberal allowance, and in most cases will be more than sufficient. If you do not need them, so much the better.

Just as soon as the soil in the planted beds has dried off enough, its surface should be broken up and leveled off nicely. This action will serve to kill the greater portion of the first crop of weeds, just starting through, as well. If the plants are not suffering for water, allow the beds to stand a day or so after the scratching, before the next watering. When you do water again, give enough to go to the bottom. After that, water the plants as needed and break up the surface as needed to keep it loose. Breaking up the surface on the beds answers the same purpose as cultivating in the field. It lets the air into the soil and prevents baking. If the surface is inclined to turn green between scratchings, sprinkle a little slaked lime over it before scratching. Straighten up any plants that may be lying over, by pressing the soil against that side, but do not apply any artificial supports unless these are necessary to keep the plants upright. You can work the soil so much better without them. Observe carefully whether there is any leaf-spot of any kind on the plants, as a result of the frequent spraying. If there is any, be sure to pick off all the affected leaves you see and immediately spray the plants with Bordeaux mixture and repeat in a week or so unless it disappears. The first month after benching has a great deal to do with the season's success. A. F. J. B.

CARRYING PLANTS INDOORS.

Kindly advise me whether or not carnations can be handled inside for one year without being planted outdoors. By this I mean, can the young stock be carried along in pots or flats until the last of June or the first part of July and then put into the benches?

F. P. B.—Pa.

Fine carnations are grown in the manner you suggest, and under such circumstances as you describe it would certainly be the wise plan to pursue. There are obvious reasons why the plan is not generally followed, the principal one being the shortening of the crop on account of having to throw out the old plants a month earlier, etc. You will also find that unless you have good-sized plants to bench by early June, the early winter crop of blooms will not be as heavy as from the field-grown plants. The field culture produces a bushier growth and the check resultant from the benching causes all the shoots to start off together and a heavier early crop is produced. The indoor-grown plants will bloom more steadily and the quality will be better through the early winter. After January the quantity and the quality will be about equal.

A. F. J. B.

TOPPING CARNATIONS.

At what date would you advise topping red carnations in order to make them produce their heaviest crop at the holiday season? Will your answer apply to other varieties as well?

A. D. C.—N. Y.

In topping for a Christmas crop you will have to be guided by the habit of the variety you are growing. Some varieties come into bloom quickly after being planted, while others will have to be coaxed along to get into full crop for the holidays. You do not state which variety you are growing; so I cannot give you any specific dates. Beacon will throw a few scattering buds through the fall months and these should be removed before the bud shows, as the blooms will be sleepy, and by taking them off you will encourage the main crop to make the holidays. Edna comes into crop quicker and the blooms do not come sleepy in the fall. If you cannot use red carnation blooms through October and November, remove the flowering shoots until early in September. Nebraska comes with a large fall crop and will need to be topped until the middle of September to throw the main crop at Christmas. Red Rosalia needs just a little coaxing to get its main crop in for the holidays, the same as Rosalia, from which it sported. The same is true of Belle Washburn.

AT PAGEANT OF PROGRESS.

At the Pageant of Progress, now being held on Chicago's municipal pier, Henry Wittbold & Son are the trade's sole representative this year. Last year the florists who participated in this event found that few direct sales could be made to visitors, and for firms who cannot make such sales the pageant is merely a means of advertising. Considered the foremost user of various means of advertising in the trade in Chicago, Henry Wittbold & Son accepted this opportunity for publicity. The form which it took is shown in the illustration on this page. Such a display as that in the illustration occupied a circular space directly at each of the entrances to the pier. Hundreds of thousands of visitors saw the name and handiwork of Henry Wittbold & Son, and judging from the number of those who stopped to admire the display, the name and artistic ability of this firm were impressed upon vast numbers. While the street car strike did not diminish attendance to the extent that seemed likely, in consequence of the tie-up the Pageant of Progress will be prolonged until August 20.

Richmond, Va.—J. Scott Parrish has placed an order for a semi-curvilinear greenhouse, 25x75, with the American Greenhouse Mfg. Co., Chicago.

Brownstown, Ind.—William Schwein, Jr., is in the trade. The A. Dietsch Co., Chicago, erected the greenhouse for Mr. Schwein, and the heating system was purchased from the S. Wilks Mfg. Co., Chicago.

SEASONABLE SUGGESTIONS

GARDENIAS.

These flowers are not grown by many country florists; they require more heat than can ordinarily be afforded them. Plants in benches now are growing vigorously and will need occasional pinchings. The arch enemy of this plant is mealy bug, and the spray nozzle screwed on the end of the hose should be used at least twice a week to keep the plants clean. Where only a few plants are grown, they will do well in pots if plunged in a frame where they can be watered and syringed. I doubt if there is much money in gardenias for a small grower, but a few choice flowers come in handy for wedding orders and general work and, as the plants flower over a long season, a few pots may not be unprofitable. Plants can be grown in a winter minimum temperature of 45 degrees and fine spring crops obtained. If you want flowers in midwinter, a temperature of 60 degrees at night is necessary and even then there will usually be a heavy drop of buds.

BEDDING VIOLAS.

The bedding, or tufted, pansies bloom more profusely than pansies; they lack the characteristic pansy face and the blooms are a little smaller. For bedding purposes and mass effects, they are magnificent. In spring bedding they are a beautiful groundwork for bulbous plants and when the latter have passed they make a glorious display. Where they can get partial shade and some water, they can be depended upon to bloom all summer. It is best to buy these violas in separate colors and few rogues will appear in a good strain of seed. Lovely varieties are Admiration, rich dark blue; White Perfection, snowy white; Mauve Queen, light blue, and grandiflora lutea, golden yellow. Pink and lilac colors are also obtainable. Treat the bedding violas precisely the same as pansies.

MYOSOTIS.

There is usually an excellent call for forget-me-nots in the spring, both for home and cemetery planting. At Memorial day small handle baskets are used in considerable numbers on graves in lieu of cut flowers and the artificial creations now so much in vogue. A good variety to sow is M. alpestris Victoria, a pretty dwarf variety; this may be had in white and pink, as well as blue, but the last-named shade always sells the best. M. palustris grandiflora has large, deep blue flowers on long stems; this variety is an almost perpetual bloomer also. M. sylvatica, of more spreading habit, has bright blue flowers and will be found particularly good for spring bedding. It makes an excellent groundwork for tulips and hyacinths. Forget-me-nots do not winter so successfully outdoors as do pansies; dampness in consequence of a winter mulch often causes them to rot. For that reason a frame protection is advised in the cold states.

PANSIES.

Over a considerable section of the country, the last week in July or the first week in August is an excellent time to make a liberal sowing of pansies for next spring's sales. A few weeks ago it was advised to sow seeds of pansies wanted for winter blooming under glass, but it is a mistake to start plants too early which are to be carried over winter either outdoors or in coldframes. Large, sprawling plants are not wanted. The date for sowing will vary according to latitude, and the warmer the latitude the later the sowing should be done. There is no more popular spring-flowering plant than the pansy, and annual sales of this plant run into the millions each season. As between sowing separate colors and good mixtures, the latter are, in nearly all cases, preferred. There are some splendid strains offered, both American and foreign, and it is well to remember that it does not pay to purchase cheap seeds; the most expensive seeds prove the cheapest in the long run.

With the advent of the automobile, there are splendid chances for small country florists to sell pansies and many other flowers. Roadside stands along the main highways of traffic are proving money-makers, and there are some florists who at one time had to wholesale or peddle out their plants, but who now move their stocks over the stands. Nothing will attract buyers more quickly than beds of pansies facing the highways. There is something irresistible about the pansy which makes it sell on sight, and small baskets containing six or twelve plants are a convenient means of disposing of them. A small country florist was advised by the writer to grow a good number of pansies last season. He is fifteen miles from a large city, but is on a street where automobile traffic is heavy. He had 12,500 plants this spring and felt fearful that he would have a large unsold surplus. Ten days before Memorial day all of these had been sold and he had to turn away orders for many thousands more. Therefore, do not be afraid to stock up on pansies.

Pansy seed may be sown in coldframes or outdoors. The small grower should utilize one or more sashes in a coldframe, according to his needs. The soil should be light. The seeds are best broadcasted and not sown in drills. They need only a light covering. Water them carefully, use sashes and shade them until the seedlings appear; then give the seedlings plenty of air and light and remove the sashes, unless a torrential rain storm threatens; this may cause damping off, especially if the weather is hot and humid. Do not sow the seeds too thickly, and do the necessary transplanting before the seedlings become crowded. Plants may be wintered either in frames or outdoors. When they are in the open, the beds should be on a gentle slope where the water will not stand. In sowing the seeds in beds outdoors, be sure to water them well and then give them a mulch of half-decayed leaves, dry sphagnum moss or even hay—anything to prevent too rapid drying out. Be sure to remove the mulch as the seedlings appear.

DOUBLE DAISIES.

These are not to be confounded with the Shasta daisies or the double marguerites of our market; often called "daisies," they are double forms of the common Bellis perennis, "the wee, modest, crimson-tippit flower" of Burns, and have been much improved by selection and careful crossing in late years. The flowers are treble the size of those of two decades ago. They can be had in scarlet, pure white and pink colors and are desirable spring-flowering plants, not unworthy of a place with pansies in a cold greenhouse to supply flowers for cutting, and they are always excellent for selling in small baskets for spring bedding. Like myosotis, they winter better in a frame than outdoors and, of course, they bloom earlier, which is an advantage.

BOUVARDIAS.

You may not grow any bouvardias, but, if you do, give them a little attention now, especially that finest of all varieties, B. Humboldtii, of which one or two improved forms are offered. This pure white, deliciously fragrant bouvardia is really a fall bloomer, but once its culture is understood, it is possible to flower it for June as well as for fall weddings. It does well planted outdoors in summer and may also be planted in beds inside or grown in pots. Personally, I like to grow this plant in boxes six inches deep outdoors in summer, several plants in a box. Weak shoots are cut out. Strong ones have one or two pinchings; the last, early in August. The plants are placed in a greenhouse kept at 48 to 50 degrees at night before the arrival of frost. Aphis and mealy bug love this plant, but fumigation or spraying will care for the former and force of water, well directed, for the latter. The pink, white and scarlet bouvardias, which lack scent, flower later than Humboldtii, make nice pot plants and are excellent for bouquets. They also do better if given rather more heat than B. Humboldtii. I often think it would be a grand acquisition if we could have a pink bouvardia as large and as fragrant as B. Humboldtii. Here would seem to be an opening for an enterprising hybridizer.

LOOK over any up-to-date collection of gladioli and note the proportion of varieties that originally came from Goshen, Ind.

IT does not make much difference how big a florist is, his reputation eventually comes to rest on the promptness with which he pays his bills.

NOTE the increasing number of offers of American-grown bulbs in this paper, especially in the Classified columns and in the Pacific Coast Department.

THERE is every reason to believe that the demand for bedding stock of all kinds will consume at profitable prices everything the trade can get ready by next May.

WHAT part of your flower sales are for funerals and weddings? The greater part! Then study the ways to increase the everyday users of flowers in your community.

NOW is the time to stock up for fall trade. In three weeks it will be September, the schools will open and business will begin to expand, probably faster this year than usual.

HEATING equipment and devices that save coal are going to be in marked demand in this trade, for the coal bill seems likely to hit a high mark next winter. Since the greenhouse owner cannot shave the price, he will want to cut down his purchases as much as possible.

"JUST a special cover," remarked a reader, "would have made last week's Review a Pre-Convention Number. It surely contained enough information about Kansas City and the convention, and it certainly was as big as many special numbers." But the trade's biggest Convention Number will be out next week, when The Review will present the report of the S. A. F. gathering.

WHILE the early end of the miners' strike is predicted, such certainty is not felt regarding the shopmen's strike. Transportation may be handicapped if the present situation is prolonged, and if it is, it will be at a most unfortunate time, when grain and fruit crops are ready to move. The latter fact is impressing itself on government officials' minds, and decisive action may thereby be compelled.

OF course the editor of a trade journal has little to do but read the newspapers that are put on his desk, but when you send a copy of the home-town sheet it would be better to mark the paragraph you want the editor to see.

GET the leading doctor or dentist in your neighborhood to try keeping flowers on his reception-room table. Make it an object to him. Before long he will be unwilling to get along without them and others will copy his custom.

THE growing cultivation of the peony for the cut flower market will probably add to the list of those persons interested in the American Peony Society. Open to both professionals and amateurs, this organization has dues of but $3 a year, with an initiation fee of $2. Application may be made to Secretary A. P. Saunders, Clinton, N. Y.

FLORISTS who make home plantings are likely to have a busy autumn as a result of the building boom. In Chicago, for instance, more permits for the erection of residences and apartments were issued in the first seven months of 1922 than were issued in the entire twelve months of 1921. More is being spent on the construction of buildings under these permits than was ever spent in a whole year before.

ASSURANCE is felt of an early end to the miners' strike. Operators and union officials meeting this week at Cleveland are expected to evolve a plan of settlement. In that event, the supply of coal for the greenhouses next winter will be sure, but prices, without question, will be high, unless it transpires that stocks laid away in bins are bigger than most persons estimate. That the supplies so laid away are large is believed on the support of production figures and because of the unconcern generally evidenced by consumers as to the strike.

WITH real estate worth half a million dollars and investments close to $300,000, the Massachusetts Horticultural Society is without doubt the strongest financially of all organizations devoted to horticulture in the country. Its life members now number 783 and its annual members, 229. Its list of officers and standing committees for this year contains a number of names of members of the trade in the vicinity of Boston, who have worked hand in hand with the amateur members to make the society the power it is today. How important is the work it is doing is shown in the report for the year 1921, which has just been issued.

BUSINESS conditions are rapidly approaching normal and the improvement is expected to assume decided proportions by autumn, according to a survey just made by a prominent commercial journal. The leading bankers, jobbers and merchants throughout the country have contributed to this survey and their opinion was practically unanimous that the outlook was extremely optimistic. In a few instances the telegraphic responses mentioned the fact that the pending strikes have been disquieting, but none was inclined to go so far as to intimate that the strikes have injured fall prospects. The outlook for an excellent season for florists just ahead seems growing better constantly.

ALL ABOARD!

Reports are many of florists from distant points already on their way to the S. A. F. convention at Kansas City, which will open Tuesday, August 15. The long journey is being broken by stops at trade centers en route. Large parties will start later from the principal cities, some by train and some by automobile, for the midsummer gathering provides a destination for those who like to make cross-country jaunts by motor. The indications, all in all, are for a large attendance, probably as large as the trade has known, since the dog days are not so torrid as usual and fear of sweltering sessions is not so strong as otherwise it would be. If you haven't your railroad ticket, better get it today; you'll want to meet the crowd at Kansas City. And don't forget to ask for a convention certificate; it will save you half the one-way fare.

CREATING BUSINESS.

It is surprising how rapidly public-spirited citizens act upon suggestions which lead to the greater beautification of the community or city in which they dwell. An idea born and worked out in a private way will come to the attention of an active member of a community, and immediately in this person's mind the wheels of creative thought and imagination are set in motion. An instance of where the interest of one man in flowers stirred the entire community into activity is reported by Louis Smith, manager of the Brush Greenhouse Co., Brush, Colo. Mr. Smith states that a short time ago the enterprising Brush motion picture theater man, Mr. Lahlin, started a summer garden near his theater. The season being too far advanced to plant trees, he lined the space with flower boxes. As is always the case, one good idea prompts another more extensive and an improvement over the first. Not being satisfied with having accomplished his object and seeing the bigger opportunity ahead of beautifying more of the city, Mr. Lahlin interested the Civic Club of the city in a project of beautification. This live organization of citizens got busy, and now the main street has about twenty-two pretty stands made of cement and planted to flowers. One man may not be able to accomplish much single-handed, but if he persuades those who are in power to admit the logic of his reasoning and thus forces them into action, he can do much good in the world and at the same time improve his own business.

SATISFIED CUSTOMERS.

Everybody knows the adage about the satisfied customer being the best advertisement and large numbers of florists have experienced the pleasure which is directly traceable to the knowledge of having pleased one's patron.

Consequently all those who read this paragraph will understand the satisfaction those who make The Review derive from such letters as this:

Please discontinue my advertisement on roses. Have had very good results.—J. Oliver Click, Springfield, O., July 22, 1922.

If you hear a man complain of the cost of advertising, you can be pretty certain he spends a good bit of money elsewhere than in The Review.

BRIEF ANSWERS.

C. J., Kan.—Probably either Begonia Haageana or vitifolia, most likely the former.

BOSTON.

The Market.

Business is far from brisk, but there is no great cause for grumbling. None anticipates a rushing trade at this season and, on the whole, growers have no reason to feel discouraged. Buying comes in spasmodic spells, but retailers are taking a considerable amount of material, and shipping trade to holiday resorts is fairly good. The weather has been favorable, there having been a lack of the excessive heat and humidity often experienced at this season.

Gladioli continue to dominate the market; their numbers are legion and the quality is of the best. Some varieties sell cheaply and are much overdone. Halley is perhaps the hardest to move, but America, Schwaben, Mrs. Dr. Norton, Pendleton and other good standard varieties move better. There are not a great number of G. primulinus. Old-fashioned sorts are not wanted, and it does not pay to send them in.

Asters are coming in much more freely and prices are lower. The quality, thanks to abundant moisture, is unexcelled. Roses are rather more abundant, but are selling tolerably well at about last week's prices. Columbia continues in greatest favor, followed by Butterfly. There are practically no sweet peas; a large number could be sold, if obtainable. Carnations still dribble in, but the asters far outclass them. The advance guard of the chrysanthemum brigade arrived August 4, the variety being Golden Glow. Some early Frost are almost ready; $3 per dozen is the price obtained for such as have come in.

There are now a considerable number of lilies, such as longiflorum, speciosum, speciosum album and auratum, without much demand. Gypsophila elegans and helichrysums are in good demand. Among other flowers noted are perennial phlox, Euphorbia corollata, Aconitum Napellus, monkshood; Delphinium chinense and the usual assortment of annuals.

Hardly a cattleya is now to be seen and prices rule high. Some valley is offered at $6 to $8 per hundred, and small lots of gardenias are seen. A fair demand exists for asparagus. Flowering plants offered are now almost nil.

Field Day at Lexington.

A great many market gardeners, florists and private gardeners assembled August 2 at the Lexington field station, situated on Reed street, Lexington, under the joint management of the Boston Market Gardeners' Association and the Massachusetts Agricultural College. There are twelve acres of splendid land here, a nice range of greenhouses and suitable buildings for experimental and other work. Prof. H. F. Thompson, professor of market gardening at Massachusetts Agricultural College, is in charge and W. S. Krout assists in the study of various plant diseases.

Demonstrations of plowing under green manure crops, such as red clover, soy beans, sweet clover, oats and other crops, were given. Various tractors and motor cultivators and many useful hand tools were seen in operation. The National Bundle Tyer Co. had a machine in operation tying thirty bunches of beets per minute.

Bordeaux mixing and fertilizer mixing methods proved interesting to many. Professor Parrott, of New York, a leading authority on spraying and dusting, gave the latest and best information on this ever-important subject, following by dusting demonstrations on tomatoes and asparagus.

Firing with crude oil proved popular and F. W. Dempsey had a large crowd to show how the oil heaters attached to the field station greenhouses are operated. Oil heating here has proved eminently satisfactory. Crops grown are cucumber and tomatoes in summer and lettuce in winter.

The Massachusetts State Vegetable Growers' Association held a meeting in the afternoon, with a large attendance, followed by lectures from Sidney B. Haskell and J. D. Willard, directing the experimental station, and Prof. H. F. Thompson, the latter telling of some of the important problems which the station is endeavoring to solve.

Consumption of crude oil for fuel in the greenhouses has been 27,000 gallons in 1921-22. Houses are at present filled with tomatoes and cucumbers. Mildew has been troublesome this year, owing to frequent rains and humidity. The tomatoes showing up best are Lester's Excelsior and Comet. In the cucumber houses tests are being made for the effect of age of seed on yield. A Belleville strain, crossed and self-fertilized, yields up to seventy-five fruits per plant. The variety Heseran, developed at the Ontario Experimental Station, sets without fertilization and does not require bees even in winter; this sort was developed for the Canadian markets.

Washington asparagus was here by far the best variety. Tests showing the relative crops produced by varying weights of manure or fertilizer or a portion of each were of great interest and it was proof positive that florists were keenly awake to the value of the tests made with green manures, animal manures, lime and fertilizers to watch them taking notes. These annual demonstrations attract an increasing number of growers and are proving of great value to florists, many of whom grow vegetables under glass in summer.

Various Notes.

The first Golden Glow chrysanthemums of the season came in August 4, from Thomas Roland's greenhouses, at Nahant.

McAlpine Bros., of Exeter, N. H., are growing Pilgrim, Crusader, Columbia, Double White Killarney and Mme. Butterfly roses this season and have a nice summer crop.

Welch Bros. Co. is having a nice shipping business this season. The writer noted splendid American Beauty roses here. Cattleyas are scarce with the firm. A fine assortment of palms and ferns is arranged in the store.

The North Shore Horticultural Society will hold its grand annual exhibition in Horticultural hall, Manchester, August 22 and 23.

There will be another meeting of the local branch of the National Association of Gardeners at Horticultural hall, Friday evening, August 18, to report progress on arrangements for the coming national convention.

Word has been received of a serious automobile accident to E. Jackson Rogean, the popular salesman at the Boston Flower Exchange. The accident was at Mispec, New Brunswick, and Mr. Rogean's wounds required a number of stitches; he is still confined to the hospital there. We wish him a speedy recovery.

Percy Paine, of Paine Bros., Randolph, left August 5 with his sister and brother-in-law for a fortnight's tour of the White mountains of New Hampshire.

William H. Carr is offering a nice lot of the white and pink everlasting sweet pea, Euphorbia corollata and aconitums.

Wollrath & Sons, of Waltham, have 25,000 Asplenium Nidus-avis in all sizes and the same number of nephrolepis. They are raising thousands of seedling kentias and Cocos Weddelliana. They prefer the new Peerless begonia to Mrs. Peterson. Many thousands of table ferns, principally such Pteris as rivertoniana, Victoria, Wilsonii and Wimsettii, are raised from spores. All the houses are filled to repletion with splendidly grown stock.

William H. Judd and wife left August 5 for a vacation to be spent at Camden and Bar Harbor, Me.

W. N. Craig, Boston correspondent of The Review, tendered his resignation June 1 at Faulkner Farm, Brookline, where he has been superintendent about ten years, to become effective October 1. He has bought a house, several acres of splendid land and convenient buildings, at Weymouth, Mass., twelve miles from Boston, and will grow one or two special lines of hardy stock, including bulbs. The greenhouses will probably be erected a little later. The location is convenient to Brockton, Braintree, Quincy, the south shore, Plymouth and Nantasket and has a 300-foot frontage on each of the two best streets.

The writer noted some nice little pot plants in flower of purple and white Scotch heather and Cornish heath at one of the markets last week. These plants are hardy here and, if given a right location, will thrive well. They need a winter mulch to prevent scorching of the foliage. W. N. C.

CHICAGO.

The Market.

All Chicago paid, last week, for a strike of street car operatives. Inquiry in the trade indicates that the florists' contribution may have been rather less than the loss inflicted on most lines of business, but it averaged about twenty-five per cent of a normal August week's sales. There may have been florists whose decrease in sales was much less than twenty-five per cent, but there were many whose loss of business was more. At retail there was practically little doing except funeral work; the wholesalers, of course, had shipping trade to maintain some semblance of activity.

Business began to pick up August 7, when transportation service was resumed, but a heavily stocked market requires time to show the effect of accelerated demand at this season of the year. Business is better, but there are so many flowers that it is not difficult to get all one wants without paying fancy prices.

The market seldom has offered less variety than at present. Large as is the supply, it consists almost wholly of roses, gladioli and asters. There is a little valley, a few lilies, a small supply of orchids and some odds and ends of garden flowers, but they are too small a factor to be worth further consideration here.

Roses are not numerically in such large supply that marketing them would present any difficulties if it were not for the huge quantities of gladioli and the large supply of asters. The possibility of obtaining these latter at almost one's own price makes it difficult to sell roses at prices which are in proportion to their quality and cost of production. The supply of short roses has run down so that it takes about 6 cents to get anything worth while. The demand is for the best grades.

Gladioli are at the height of their season. The glut came earlier than usual this year and is expected to pass earlier, leaving a time late in the summer when these flowers should bring much better prices. At present the quality is fine, but many are lost. Average prices are distressingly low.

Asters are abundant, but the quality of most of the stock is such that it can be used only for work—and there is little work. Those who have asters good enough to use for other purposes find a good market because of the scarcity of fine flowers on long stems, but the stock is improving, as it always does when the second crop comes along.

On to Kansas City.

As convention date draws near there is much uncertainty as to the attendance from here. Of course numerous supply and equipment concerns at this center will have exhibits and salesmen present, but it begins to look as though many growers and retailers who had expected to attend will be deterred by the uncertainties of the situation. Still, if the coal strike and the railroad strike are settled or business picks up before the end of the week, they are likely to be found on board the Burlington train when it pulls out for Kansas City at 7

The Morning at St. Joseph.

B. W. Murphy, secretary of the Stuppy Floral Co., St. Joseph, Mo., writes as follows:

"St. Joseph florists have extended a cordial invitation to all members and their friends who are coming to St. Joseph on the Chicago special to visit St. Joseph. Arrangements will be made to have automobiles meet the 7:20 Burlington train August 15. After breakfast we will have a short ride, visiting the city greenhouses and other points of interest, including the home where Jesse James, our favorite desperado, was killed by Robert Ford years ago. Interurban cars leave every hour, arriving in Kansas City two hours later. Those who are anxious to arrive in Kansas City before noon may leave on the 10 a. m. interurban express, which arrives in Kansas City at 11:45.

"We are highly pleased to know that a large percentage of the Chicago delegation will visit our city while en route to the convention. We extend to everyone and his friends a cordial invitation to be our guests while in St. Joseph. The St. Joseph Florists' Club will be on hand to assist in making every delegate enjoy this trip to St. Joseph and will accompany them on to Kansas City.

"Frank Stuppy's health has been improving wonderfully for the last two months. He will be at the depot to welcome Chicago visitors."

Edwin Mallinson, manager for the Fleischman Floral Co., is devoting his vacation to the entertainment of his venerable father, who is here from England on his first visit. Thomas Mallinson is as well known a figure in the trade in England as the son is in Chicago. The son met the father at the steamer in New York and, after a few days there, they now are doing together the local points of trade interest.

Many florists consider America an out-of-date gladiolus, but Eric Johnson says it still is one of the best sellers. He thinks it will be a good novelty that will do as well when it becomes as plentiful as America is.

PHILADELPHIA.

The Market.

Business is a little less trying than it was a week ago. There is still an oversupply of asters and gladioli, but roses are less plentiful. There are fewer flowers and there is about the same amount of business. The height of the early aster crop is past. The flowers from this crop are getting poor. The better flowers of midseason varieties are beginning to appear. The height of the gladiolus crop is also past. There will probably be gladioli from now until frost, but not in such large numbers. Another feature of this market is the diminishing supply of orchids.

Disbudding Gladioli.

A flower lover, Mrs. W. S. Pilling, who resides amid six and one-half acres of lawn and garden in Pelham, called at Dreer's store Saturday morning, August 5. Mrs. Pilling was attracted by the beautiful display of gladioli in the window. There were Panama and Schwaben and many other choice varieties. They were grown by Harry C. Sim, at Locust Farm, Mr. Dreer's annex, three miles from Riverton. After admiring his flowers, which are the finest ever displayed at Dreer's, Mrs. Pilling discussed the possibilities of even greater size of bloom in gladioli by removing the end buds when undeveloped. George Wolfrum, the famous New Jersey gladiolus grower, when seen at the store of the Philadelphia Cut Flower Co., said disbudding gladioli was not advisable for market purposes. Nearly all the buds would develop if let alone, he said. Mr. Wolfrum added that disbudding with a free hand was of great benefit when hybridizing. The flowers on the remaining buds come larger and, most important, the pistils are larger and stronger.

At Ridge and Dauphin.

One of the finest flower shops in all Philadelphia is situated away up in the northwestern section of the city, where Thirty-third street borders on the park near Strawberry Mansion. You wonder at the charming appearance of the shop from the sidewalk. It is far from the fashionable district. You wonder still more when you go inside, for the place is like fairyland. The impression instantly formed is that the surroundings bespeak elegance and good taste. Though it is midsummer, there is an air of business about the place; evidently, there is something doing.

The proprietor steps forward; he is Victor I. Ridenour. He is alert; his manner is pleasant. "Why did I come here?" he said. "Well, you see, three members of a family had failed here. I felt it could be made to succeed; there is no competition. When they asked me what I was going to do, I said I was going to clean up. I did." Here Mr. Ridenour glanced with satisfaction about him. "And it has been a go. Not more than one customer in ten comes here," Mr. Ridenour continued, "but we keep up the show for that one customer. It pays." "How do the other nine get there?" is the natural query. Possibly the solution may be in the fact that Mr. Ridenour's name constantly appears high up in the lists of "Among Those Present," so popular in newspapers.

The florists' league baseball committee decided that the first Dreer-Pennock game was a draw in seven innings and must be replayed.

A subcommittee has been appointed to inquire into the case of the "unknown." The point appears to be established that he is a florist and, therefore, has a perfect right to play. The question at issue now is whether he became a florist because he was a good ball player, which is at variance with the spirit of the rule.

A limousine drew up at the Belmont platform on the afternoon of July 31. The fair occupant, with a glance at some thirty-five trucks, mostly labeled "Say It with Flowers," which were drawn up on the ball field, asked what was going on. Walter Davis, chairman of the baseball committee, stepped forward and politely explained that the teams in the florists' league were playing their match games. To this the lady responded that she had no idea there were so many florists in Philadelphia.

The excitement in the Bickmore-Independent game at Morton, August 3, ran high. The score stood 1 to 1 in the fourth, before the Independents had their bad inning. A Bickmore player was unfortunately spiked. The spectators in the stand were wild. Led by the women, they yelled to the Bickmore pitcher to hit the next Independent batter in the head. He tried, but failed. This is not sport. Bickmore should see that this does not occur again at Morton.

Captain Mathews, of the Craig team, claims that the first Niessen-Craig game was not forfeited, as stated in these columns, but postponed. The forfeit was given out officially at the time. In view of Mr. Mathews' statement, the matter has been held open until the return of Manager Harry C. Eisele, of the Niessen team, from his vacation, and the game has been taken from the score card.

Off to Kansas City.

Philadelphia is sending her best to the S. A. F. convention. Samuel S. Pennock, president of our national society, will leave this city Sunday, August 13. Our leading houses will be well represented in the exhibition. Three representatives will precede Mr. Pennock to the meeting, in order to have his firm's exhibit ready. H. Bayersdorfer & Co. will have a large exhibit, in charge of I. M. Bayersdorfer, Stephen D. Green, Howard Royer and possibly one other.

It is likely that Robert A. Craig in person will have charge of the Robert Craig Co. display. James J. Karins and John A. Ruppert will look after the exhibit of Henry A. Dreer, Inc. While not officially announced, it is believed that J. F. Neidinger, H. S. Price and L. J. Seiger will represent the Joseph G. Neidinger Co. Raymond Brunswick left August 10 to head the representation of the M. Rice Co., with the remark that the firm hoped to make an even better showing than at Washington.

C. U. Liggit will personally see to his convention exhibit and meet his friends.

Edwin J. Fancourt will be in command of the display of the S. S. Pennock Co. While not publicly announced, it is believed on the street that Charles Henry Fox will put up an exhibit of note.

ton, N. J., for the Pacific slope, Tuesday, August 8.

Frank R. Hastings and Mrs. Hastings returned Friday, August 4, from a wonderful three weeks' vacation spent at Richmond, Ind.

Henry Bauer was among the interested spectators at Belmont July 31.

J. F. Neidinger's return from Europe has been followed by some charming German baskets.

Victor I. Ridenour sounds the first note of his fall campaign with a wedding order at the Ritz early in September.

George Wolfrum, of Williamstown Junction, N. J., was in town last week. Mr. Wolfrum says that his dahlias are in fine shape.

Herbert G. Tull and family are enjoying their vacation in North Carolina. Mr. Tull is a North Carolinian by birth.

J. J. Habermehl's Sons received a large number of orders for flowers for the funeral of the wife of the manager of Keith's theater, August 1. The orders came from all over, both to the Bellevue flower shop and to the Ritz. So great was the rush that the manager of the Bellevue flower shop, Harry W. Jones, was called home from his vacation.

J. Otto Thilow spoke at East Hampton, N. Y., recently, and at Blue Ridge, Pa., August 10.

J. M. Deutscher attended the funeral of Mrs. Deutscher's uncle, at Dover, N. J., August 5.

Arthur A. Niessen finds the growers' places in exceedingly fine condition this summer.

A sign on the door of the city salesroom of the Joseph Heacock Co., on South Mole street, read, "Will close Saturday at 12." At a few minutes past noon Saturday it read, "Will be back in a few minutes." Did that mean Monday morning?

BETTER BOXES
for All Floral Shipments

Safeguard the freshness of your floral shipments by the use of Hinde & Dauch Corrugated Fibre Board Containers. It is the good condition of a shipment "when delivered" that stamps your place as a first-class house and brings you repeat orders.

H & D Corrugated Fibre Floral Boxes are specially constructed to meet the rigid requirements of floral shipments. There is no gaping of lid or box under the weight of other merchandise in transit, and cut flowers and plants are invariably in better delivery condition when packed in these specially designed containers. Light weight, accurately cut and economical, they offer a most satisfactory packing method.

CANADIAN FLORISTS CONVENE.

the bank to borrow money, for instance, he is in a position to present a lucid statement of his affairs. You may say this has little bearing on horticulture, and yet it has a peculiar bearing, because the florist, by the very nature of his business, is compelled at certain seasons to be a considerable borrower at his bank. I feel quite strongly on this phase; in fact, some years ago, when I was president of the Society of American Florists, I presented a proposition that the florists organize their own bank, the same as other industries have in the past, with great profit and benefit to themselves. Such a bank, with practical florists dictating its policies, would be much better able to judge the financial ability of the proposed borrower than a bank with little or no interest in this line. The widely scattered areas of our country are the barrier that makes this impractical, but I still feel that such a plan will be feasible in the larger centers of trade when the florist is big enough to sink his small differences with his fellow florists and realizes the wisdom of one helping the prosperity of all. The florist is rapidly learning to keep track of costs and overhead; in fact, he is compelled to do so or fall behind in the race.

Common Interests.

"Now that the United States dollar and the Canadian dollar are once more at parity, the troubles that have ensued for the Canadian florists buying in the United States are all ironed out, and there should be no more difficulty on account of the difference in exchange.

"The Canadian florist today has some advantages that his American confreres are denied, owing to the fact that azaleas and many other such items are rendered 'taboo' with us by the federal horticultural board. Still, the American florists, in the main, seem quite satisfied and report that people are taking kindly to the substitutes being offered in place of the stock denied them. This same barrier acts, of course, disadvantageously for the Canadian florist shipping stock into the United States, but I am sure every florist here realizes that this embargo was not created by the wish of the American florists trying to corral their own market.

"One of the greatest links that acts to unite the two countries is the F. T. D. Many of you are already members of this organization, and I believe that at no far distant date every florist, not only in the United States and Canada, but also in European countries, will join this organization and be more closely welded together for the common good.

"Two years ago I toured France and Great Britain, and while the leaven has not started much in France, I noticed considerable interest and not a few members in Great Britain. Max Schling, in New York, told me he could make deliveries in such far-off places as Palestine or Hongkong on a few hours' notice. When we consider the world was in a turmoil a year or so ago, and even yet is not entirely straightened out, I think this is a wonderful achievement. The possibilities of this particular phase of our business are absolutely unlimited, not to mention the good that will ensue by the closer contact between the nations by business operations such as this.

"The Society of American Florists

Any proposition you can advance that will work for our mutual interest will be gladly received, discussed and acted on at our convention in Kansas City, next week. There has always been the most friendly feeling between the American and Canadian florists, and we want this kindly feeling to continue to grow and prosper.''

Other Addresses.

Another representative of the trade south of the border was present in the person of Herman H. Bartsch, head of the W. W. Edgar Co., Waverley, Mass., who presented an address on cyclamen culture, summarized on another page of this issue.

An able address was made by F. Gilbert, of London, Ont., on rock gardening, in which he explained its fundamentals in clear and concise fashion. His remarks are given in full on another page.

At this convention addresses were few, and opportunity for visiting and sight-seeing was given a large place on the program. In fact, the latter occupied the greater part of the time after the opening day. One session, that on Wednesday morning, was given over to the retail section of the organization, and another session, Thursday evening, was set aside for closing business of the association.

Chadron, Neb. —Rapid progress is being made in the construction of the new greenhouse being erected by W. Williams and O. B. Ellis. The house is 30x100 feet and of steel construction. A propagating house was erected early last spring by these same men.

HAVE YOU SEEN THE NEW WRIGHT FERN?

WRIGHT'S FLOWER SHOP
224 W 4th St., Los Angeles

THE RETAIL STORE

A PAGE OF HINTS AND HELPS FOR THE RETAIL FLORIST

MAKING DAHLIAS LAST.

How can the lasting quality of dahlias be prolonged?

After cutting dahlias, dip about one and one-half inches of the stem in boiling water for two minutes, the same as is done with poinsettias, and they will last from five to six days.

FOR PALMETTO LEAVES.

What substitute of long-lasting quality can we use for palmetto leaves? We often have small decorations in which we use them, and often we cannot secure them in time because we are so far away from the commission house.

Every florist should keep in stock some prepared palmetto leaves or erica foliage. They can be secured from the same houses.

FIGURING SELLING PRICE.

What is the best method to figure out selling price?

The F. T. D. has advocated multiplying the cost of dead merchandise, such as baskets, jardinieres, etc., by two and that of the flowers and plants by three. When the expenses are high and abnormal, one must do that to show a fair profit. Where expenses are normal, it is best to add the overhead to the merchandise, and double. For instance, if roses are $1 a dozen and the overhead is 50 cents, make the selling price $3. On some articles, especially flowers out of season or rare flowers extremely high in wholesale price, only fifty per cent can be added and sometimes not that much. This type of sales is looked at as accommodation to customers. They are counterbalanced by those of other articles, which are sold on a profit basis out of proportion with the regular profit.

SPRINKLING FLOWERS.

Should all flowers be sprinkled before being sent out?

A bouquet or a basket which is to be shown to a customer every florist wants to make look pretty, and he sprinkles it a little so that the water stands like dewdrops on the petals of the flowers. That does not mean that all flowers should be sprinkled. The grower, when he cuts flowers, places them in a cool cellar or shed. He will find, if he puts the hose on them, that a heavy sprinkling will not harm them, but that they will stiffen up and be much better for shipping the next morning. In a store, however, when chrysanthemums have been kept overnight in an icebox and then sprinkled, they get brown spots. In a store chrysanthemums should be sprinkled only below the flowers; that means on the foliage and the stem. Roses and dahlias will stand sprinkling, although it is not necessary. Lilies of the valley and all other bulbous stock, carnations, asters and flowers of similar texture will suffer when sprinkled.

PAPER BETWEEN BLOOMS.

Should paper be used between flowers when they are packed in boxes for delivery to retail customers?

If it is a matter of taste, yes. You can use any method to make your box look pretty when it is opened. Personally, if I could get a guarantee that flowers sent out would be delivered within a short period of time and immediately unpacked and put in water, I would use some kind of tissue paper or oiled paper between the heads of roses or other flowers, but, knowing that we never can tell conditions and our flowers are often in a box two or three hours, and longer, before being delivered, I am using fancy ferns to line boxes and nothing between the individual flowers, unless the order goes far, when I use fancy ferns, which should be moist. Why a rose should be protected from another rose near it by oiled paper is something I cannot understand. The petals of one rose will never bruise the petals of the other. In fact, they will bruise less than with the oiled paper between them. A well packed box should look as pretty as a bouquet, and since one sends out a bouquet and doesn't use layers of paper between the different flowers, why should we use layers of paper between the flowers when they are packed in a box? If the box is too high and is not filled with flowers, use a few fancy ferns and a little asparagus to cover the flowers, put a sheet of oiled paper over them and then fill the box with other packing material, so that the flowers will not be disturbed in traveling.

The Review is always glad to answer inquiries and give help to retail store proprietor and to greenhouse owner alike. Its resources are ever available to both. To retail florists, Max Schling, whose service to the trade has made him widely known, offers the benefit of his experience and knowledge, of which many already have made use. On this page appear his answers to a few of the questions he has received; they contain many suggestions helpful to others besides the inquirers. If you want advice or information on retail store matters, a letter to The Review Office or to Max Schling direct, stating you are a Review subscriber, will fetch it promptly.

WINNING CUSTOMER BACK.

Last September a good customer ordered a basket of flowers for his wife's birthday. Unfortunately, we delivered it on the day after, by mistake. The customer paid for the basket, but we lost him. Repeated calls and letters did not bring him back to us. How can we get him back?

First of all, you should not have accepted payment for the basket. Then, you called on the wrong party when you called on the customer. You should have called on his wife and apologized to her. Wait until next September and send a basket complimentary to her for her birthday and call on her afterwards. You will get your old customer back.

WIRING ORCHIDS.

Should orchids be wired for use in corsages?

Wiring is not necessary when orchids have a stiff stem, but for a good customer who sometimes does not treat the flowers as carefully as we do, an orchid can be wired or should be wired if it is done right. If a spray of Asparagus plumosus or Sprengeri, or even a little piece of fancy fern, is laid along the stem of the orchid and the wire is wound loosely around the stem, holding the green down, it will be found practical. That the wire is not stuck into the flower, but is wound around the stem, is important. It will stiffen the orchid, make it more pliable to the designer and will protect it from breakage when worn by the customer.

SELLING ROSES FROM BOXES.

Can roses be kept in wooden boxes on ice and sold from them directly?

In a busy place it often happens that florists receive roses by express in a wooden case and, instead of vasing them up, they put the box on ice as it is. When an order comes in they take the roses right from there. The roses are never so firm and do not reach the customer in as good condition as those which have been kept in water. Also, if the roses are not sold within a short period, in the boxes kept on ice they change their color quickly; pale pink and red roses, especially, get a bluish tinge. Every florist should aim to have his stock reach his customers in the best possible condition.

BEHIND THE COUNTER.

Is it practical for florists to work and serve customers from behind a counter?

It is practical for a practical florist to work anywhere and the place has no influence on the quality of the work. But to serve customers from behind a counter is a different matter. The florists' business is a personal business. To have no counter between the salesman and the customer puts the salesman on an entirely different footing. He will be more free to speak to the client; he will have a better chance to guide his customer where there is an article which should be sold. From behind a counter a salesman will be able to sell possibly one or two items. On an open floor, where he can walk around, he will sell many more items.

Here's Hoping That We Meet and Greet Each Other
At the Kansas City Convention

Yes, I am selfish.
Just plain unvarnished selfish.
So doggone selfish in fact, that I want the pleasure of meeting a lot of you, who have every once in a while been reading my talks and sort of know me.
Now what I would like to do, is meet you face to face.
Some of you think I must surely be a nut. (But after all, nuts are not so bad, provided the meat isn't all dried up and bitterish.)
Others of you have gone so far as to write me letters which I value highly.
Letters of encouragement and letters of goodly criticism.

Am inclined to think I value the criticisms a bit the most.
Allow me to thank you again most heartily for each and all of them.
Am looking forward with pleasurable anticipation to meeting at the Kansas City Convention those of you I know, and equally so to those I don't, but who I am hoping will make themselves known.
Just come up and hit me on the back and say "Hello, Stumpp; my name is so and so."
Leave the rest to me.
We may talk S. A. F. or F. T. D.
And then again we mayn't.

FOR INCOMING STEAMERS.

Can we take orders for passengers on incoming steamers?

You can take them, but they can be filled only in rare instances. Incoming steamers are more protected and guarded than outgoing vessels. Uncle Sam does not allow anyone on the docks of incoming steamers. Passengers who are traveling without servants do not come in contact with the public until they leave the customs department, in which place no outsider is allowed. The wealthier class leave the steamer immediately and their servants stay with the baggage to have it inspected. The only way to deliver orders for home-coming passengers is to secure the address of their first stop. So far, with the assistance of the steamship officials, we have managed to secure the address of the first stop of home-coming parties and have delivered the flowers to them at their hotel or in care of friends.

AVOIDING THE RUSH.

How can we prepare our plant baskets and jardinieres or boxes for the holidays before the rush starts and still keep the plants in good growth?

Use wooden vessels inside your jardinieres. Select for baskets square boxes and have liners of thin wood instead of tin. Provide ornamental boxes and in them wooden inserts. In these wooden inserts plants can be placed four, five or six weeks before the holidays, left in the greenhouse and shipped to the store when needed. There they are slipped into their outside covering and are ready for sale. Plants in wooden vessels grow as well as in pots when rough, porous wood is used.

GROWING GARDENIAS.

How can one grow gardenias successfully?

There are several methods. We met success by planting our gardenias in a bench, which we fill in the following manner: We use three inches of cinders, not too rough, lay over the cinders one-half inch of sand mixed with ashes and put on top of that four inches of soil. In the beginning we keep them rather moist, spraying them heavily, but the moment they begin to make roots we spray lightly three times daily, keeping the ground rather dry. We keep them in the same house with Adiantum Farleyense and crotons. The moment the gardenias get wet feet and don't have a chance to dry out, the foliage becomes yellow and they throw off buds.

KEEPING CUT GARDENIAS.

How are cut gardenias kept best?

When gardenias are cut in the greenhouse, they are laid in boxes lined heavily with newspapers. The newspapers are soaked, the gardenias are sprayed, and the latter are covered air-tight with the newspapers overnight. In the morning they are shipped in the same box to the store. In the store we have an air-tight tin box with a glass cover; the box is filled with fancy ferns; the cut gardenias are placed in this box and sold from there. They are kept always air-tight and moist. Anyone who receives gardenias from distant points should place them in a dish filled with water where they can float freely, and cover the vessel air-tight. Within two hours they will stiffen up and regain their freshness, even if they were soft.

ADS IN COLLEGE PAPER?

Is it profitable to advertise in college papers?

It is profitable for those who have their business in a college town, not otherwise. Students call on florists to ask them for advertisements because of the purchases of their parents. I believe this to be an imposition, the student knowing what the florist does not always know, that each college, in frequent cases, has a special committee advising students where to buy their flowers or combining their purchases for one of the home florists who offers them the best facilities or some kind of inducement. I have been told that in some colleges the poorer students take orders from those who need flowers and by placing them secure a small income.

GROWING GARDEN FLOWERS.

Would it be profitable to grow garden flowers where people have gardens and grow many flowers themselves?

It would. There are many varieties of garden flowers, including annuals and hardy plants, that are useful. The florist who is interested will find that only five or six of the common varieties are grown in small gardens, and the florist can select those which are even prettier and not so common to grow for his work. The wealthier persons who have large country places grow more varieties than do small garden owners; still they come to us florists and buy the same thing they grow at home to send to their friends. The florist must appreciate the fact that his customers are not only coming to him to buy his flowers; they want to buy his work with the flowers.

PALESTINE ORDER.

I had an order for a funeral for Palestine and could not deliver it. What shall I do if I get a similar order?

If your customer received a cable about the death of a friend in Palestine, and you cabled the order back immediately, it would arrive too late for delivery, because, first, it takes two days for a cable from Palestine and reply, and, second, it is the existing law in Palestine, Turkey and all through that part of the world that burials must take place within thirty hours after a person dies.

When you get such an order again, tell the customer that you will manage to have the flowers placed on the grave a day or two after the services. There are private individuals who will be able to take care of such an order on cabled instructions. There are few florists in Palestine, and there is not a good one in Jerusalem. The best florist in Palestine is Maider, at Haifa, about six hours by rail from Jerusalem. I am in contact with him now, and have ar-used for centerpieces, in June weddings and in general?

That which is nearest us we most often overlook. If, instead of wiring the flowers on sticks and making a centerpiece out of moss, you use some small, inexpensive vessels and pack them with some kind of green in which you can insert the flowers with their natural stems so that they reach water, you can use verbenas, Dianthus chinensis, double-flowering petunias, Tagetes gracilis minima, T. signata pumila, schizanthus, all the nemesias and many other flowers which, when cut and wired, will not last an hour, but which, if put in water, will last for two or three days, are easy to grow and repay the little care they get.

ROWE'S RAMBLES.

Water Lilies by the Pondful.

About eight miles from Public Square, Cleveland, O., adjoining an improved highway, is the town of Independence.

The Rambler was talking with a gentleman in Cleveland, who said: "Why don't you run out to Independence and see Buskirk's water lilies? You can make it in two or three hours and you will see something worth while."

So I hopped an Akron motor bus around 1 p. m. and made the trip. Leaving the bus at the end of a long row of shade trees, I walked down the driveway, trying to look both ways at once for the first glimpse of the lily ponds. The first pool, at the right of the roadway, is possibly 200 feet long and about 100 feet wide. The surface at the edges of the pool was literally covered with the broad pads, punctured here and there with blooms of surpassing loveliness, varying in color from the familiar white Nymphæa odorata to the dark red of William Falconer.

Hardy Varieties Grown.

A short distance beyond this first pool is a much larger pond—so large that a canoe is used to get about on its surface. At one side and on a little higher ground are other pools, much smaller, of course, but each containing one or more varieties of water lilies. In these outdoor pools are grown the hardy varieties, which, in addition to those previously mentioned, will include the deep red Attraction, the rose pink Eugenia

DeLand, and that dainty new variety, christened Mary by Mr. Buskirk; the petals are pure white, with a slight marking of pink toward the base, and surround a great number of light yellow stamens. The blooms are carried well above the surface of the water and are quite fragrant, two desirable characteristics in water lilies. Among other varieties growing in the various pools is Paul Hariot, considered by professional growers one of the best. This is in bloom almost continuously, throwing up flowers with clear yellow petals, slightly shading to red at the center and base. The variety William Falconer stands out like a danger signal, and is probably the most desirable red variety in cultivation.

Many Pools Seen.

Mr. Buskirk took up growing water lilies some six or eight years ago, beginning with a small pool and a small house. Today there are at least a dozen pools of various sizes, four houses, and a new iron-span house erected last winter. For the present at least this latter house will be used for growing carnations and other flowers for cutting, rather than water lilies. It is so arranged, however, that it can readily be adjusted for water lily culture.

Mr. Buskirk told the Rambler that interest in water lilies is increasing rapidly among amateur gardeners, and that orders are received from all parts of the country. If the tubers are properly packed, they can be shipped without difficulty, even though they may be on the road for several weeks. Water lily growing seems to be just as easy as growing asters or sweet peas; about all that is needed is a tub or half-barrel sunk in the ground, a little good soil, and an ample supply of water. Of course, if the gardener has money to invest in a concrete pool, he may have a better looking arrangement, but he certainly will not get any more fun nor any more blooms.

The open pools, which were extremely quiet and with practically no flowing of water, made the Rambler think of mosquitos. "Needn't worry about them at all," said Mr. Buskirk. "There are goldfish in all of these ponds and the larva of the mosquito doesn't last a minute when the fish gets its eye on it. There is absolutely no trouble with these insect pests, if the gardener will put a few fish in the tub or the pool."

exceeding the demand; this has caused a depression in prices. Most gladiolus consignments are fine, while asters are small in flower and short in stem. A good, soaking rain is badly needed to put them on edge. In the absence of good carnations, asters are selling well.

There has been a considerable quantity of roses coming in daily and the best of these clear. Carnations of good quality are practically out of the market. While many arrive every day, their sleepy appearance hurts the sale.

Daily shipments of delphinium, Easter lilies, hydrangeas and other outdoor flowers have a considerable demand.

In greens the trade buys heavily of asparagus and ferns. Good smilax is in demand, but is quite scarce.

Various Notes.

The August meeting of the St. Louis Association of Gardeners was held August 6, at Forest Ridge, the estate of William Hill, at Wydown boulevard and Pennsylvania avenue. The meeting was well attended. Many important matters came up for discussion, such as the annual meeting of the National Association of Gardeners, the S. A. F. convention and the annual convention of park superintendents. After the meeting the members were escorted through Forest Ridge, which is one of the exclusive suburbs of St. Louis.

August 1 the A. W. Gumz Wholesale Floral Co. announced through the mail the opening of its plant department, in connection with the wholesale cut flower department. The firm will handle the stock of the Bourdet Floral Co., W. H. Kruse, Henry Toenges, Fred Schierloh and C. E. DeWever. This department will be run along the lines proposed at the meeting of the St. Louis district of the National Flower Growers' Association, at Rock Island, Ill., recently.

The officers of the St. Louis Florists' Club held their monthly conference recently at the home of Vice-President Julius Schaeffer. During the evening an interesting program was arranged for last week's club meeting, at which the annual election was held.

The board of directors of the St. Louis Flower Growers' Publicity Association held a short meeting at publicity headquarters. Five of the nine directors responded to the call. In the absence of Chairman Bourdet, J. F. Ammann presided. All outstanding bills were ordered paid. A discussion was brought up on fall and winter advertising, but, owing to the small attendance, this will be again discussed at the next meeting, which will be the first Tuesday in September, at 2:30 p. m. tributing to this fund will be invited to attend for an election of nine directors to serve the coming season.

The new flower shop, under the style of Jensen, Inc., at 5653 Delmar avenue, opened its doors last week with splendid announcements inviting the public for a visit. The new shop is in a fine location and excellent judgment was used in the selection of the fixtures and refrigerators, which are in blue and gray, and which were installed by Buchbinder Bros., of Chicago. L. P. Jensen is president of the company.

"Doesn't the time fly!" remarked J. J. Windler, of the Windler Wholesale Floral Co., August 4, as this was the date of his marriage seven years ago. His wedding trip was to San Francisco, Cal., during the S. A. F. convention in 1915.

business many years at Eighteenth and Geyer avenue, announces that she has retired from business and that her brother, John O. Masek, has taken over the business, which he will continue at the old stand.

George Berner, with his wife and three children, has returned from a three weeks' motor trip as far north as St. Paul, Minn. His cut flower department at Wolff-Wilson's did well in his absence, in charge of his sister.

Julius Dilloff, representing Wertheimer Bros., New York, called on the trade last week. He is making his way to the S. A. F. convention, where he will be in charge of the firm's display.

W. Blair Impson, of the Waldbart Floral Co., and Mrs. Impson are traveling throughout the east for a two weeks' vacation. When last heard of, they were enjoying a river trip up the Hudson. Mr. Impson will return in time for Messrs. Hoffman and Michel, of this firm, to attend the S. A. F. convention.

A. F. Jablonsky, of A. Jablonsky & Sons, reports busy times with the planting of carnations. The firm has nearly 200,000 Betty Jane cuttings for early fall delivery. Orders for these have been filed.

Harry Hall, St. Louis representative of the A. L. Randall Co., Chicago, has returned from his northern vacation trip. William Trillow, who works with Mr. Hall in the interest of this firm, left August 1 for a trip through Missouri. He will meet his friends at Kansas City, convention week.

store, at Eighth and Charles streets, has an attractive summer window display that has a cooling effect on passers-by who stop for a second look. The work is artistic and was designed by Mr. Artmann, head designer for the company.

Frank X. Gorly, with Mrs. Gorly, left for a month's northern trip August 6. Mr. Gorly reports that he will be in Chicago August 14 and will meet a number of New York and Boston retailers at the Congress hotel, the whole party to leave the same evening for the S. A. F. convention at Kansas City.

Henry Berning, since his return from his western trip, has been kept close to business, with his working force on weekly vacations. Mr. Berning and his manager, George Kuehner, will be in Kansas City for the S. A. F. meeting.

Andrew Hoffman and family returned home from a ten days' trip spent in and around Chicago. Mrs. Hoffman and daughter, and Mr. and Mrs. A. Hoffman, Jr., made up the party. The trip going and coming was made in their new pleasure car. Julius Schaeffer, George H. Pieser and Edwin Denker are among those in the local trade who contemplate a motor trip to the convention city; they will leave here August 12.

The Opperman Floral Co. has opened its new quarters at Kings Highway and Columbia avenue. The big rear conservatory, which is of Lord & Burnham construction, is nearing completion.

The two new 400-foot houses of the St. Louis Rose Co. are nearly ready to receive the young rose stock, which has been growing at the company's Collins road greenhouses. The cut stock of this new range will be handled by the St. Louis Wholesale Cut Flower Co., ac-

WORCESTER, MASS.

Midsummer dullness pervades the trade in this city. Gladioli are in abundance and the prices went down in consequence. Other flowers, however, are not overplentiful. Cosmos for some reason or other is backward. The growers are more or less pleased with the tardiness of some of the crops, feeling that the slackness of the market is better for all concerned.

Queen of the Market asters are plentiful, but they lack the fine qualities of the later varieties. There is no lack of moisture in the soil, and when the demand becomes good the growers will be there with a bountiful supply of stock.

WASHINGTON, D. C.

The Market.

A large amount of funeral work last week used up a large part of the good flowers that were offered in the local market. Flowers, as a whole, are not so plentiful as they were a few weeks ago, with the exception of gladioli. The best of these find a market at $40 per thousand, while the poorer grades, offered at $20 per thousand, are hard to move. The latter prices represent just about the cost of the bulbs and the growers are not well satisfied with the returns, because these do not afford any profit to them. There has been an oversupply of gladioli generally since the outdoor stock began to come to Washington from the south early this spring.

Roses are moving well, especially the locally grown stock. Good Columbia and Mock are bringing $6 to $8 per hundred. Many short-stemmed roses are offered at $2 to $4 per hundred. This price is a little higher than that which prevailed last year, due to the fact that prices generally seem to be holding up pretty well this year. Usually at this season short-stemmed stock is offered at $1 to $1.50 per hundred and great difficulty is often found in moving it even at those prices. Only a few short-stemmed American Beauties are coming in now and they are filling the demand for red roses, for this color seems to be a little scarce.

Few good asters are now on the market, and those of the better grades sell readily at $4 per hundred. The lower grades bring only $1 and $2 per hundred. Easter lilies were in good demand during the week, on account of the increased amount of funeral work. Large quantities of rubrum lilies are offered, but they move slowly. The short-stemmed stock is offered at $3 and $4 per hundred, while the long-stemmed stock is held at $8 per hundred. The growers and wholesalers are complaining that when there is a stock of stephanotis there is no demand for this flower, but now that the supply has slackened materially, the wholesalers have received many calls, which were filled only with difficulty; the prices range from $4 to $6 per hundred. Lily of the valley was called for last week, and in some cases other white flowers had to be substituted because of the lack of the former. These orders were filled with swainsona and stephanotis.

Never before have the florists of Washington seen such large marigolds and zinnias as are this year offered. There are plenty of larkspur and snapdragons on the market at times. There are many other good outdoor flowers being offered by the wholesalers at the present time, with a wide range of colors, giving to the retailers the opportunity to supply their customers with varied combinations.

More attention is being given to the production of zinnias. The growers do not now just put these into the ground and let the flowers grow. They disbud the plants and subject them to the same careful treatment that other flowers are given. Consequently, the returns from zinnias are much greater this year than ever before. T. N. S.

NEWARK, N. J.

Growers in Newark and vicinity have fine chrysanthemum plants maturing for the fall trade. Prices this season will probably be lower than they were last
